Canalejas Confident That Any Outbreak Next Thursday Can Be Suppressed.

BUT PUBLIC ARE UNEASY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES
LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 11.—A telegram from Madrid to The Times says: "I had the honor of being received by Premier Canalejas, who assured me that he did not anticipate that the Lisbon revolution would exercise the slightest effect upon the political situation in Spain. The undoubted success of the republicans in Portugal might act as a stimulus to the party in Spain, but he ridiculed the suggestion that because a republic had been established in Portugal, the same should be imminent here.

"Spain," he added, "would maintain a strictly neutral attitude toward the new régime in Portugal.

"It is clear that the success of any revolutionary movement in Spain depends upon the attitude of the army. It is now maintained in many quarters, probably with reason, that the Government can rely upon the loyalty of the army to the throne, notwithstanding the assertion that republican ideas have found their way into certain regiments.

"It certainly appeared that Señor Canalejas felt confident that the precautions he had taken, especially in Barcelona, would prevent untoward events on the approaching anniversary of Ferrer's execution, (next Thursday.)"

MADRID, Oct. 10.—Premier Canalejas's warning to Parliament that the agitation of the Clericals and anti-Clericals among the workingmen is liable to plunge Spain into civil war has not served to ease the mind of the public, which is continually discussing the possibility that the flame of revolution will overlap the Portuguese frontier and engulf this country.

The reported message of Alejandro Lerroux, chief of the Republicans at Barcelona, to Provisional President Braga of Portugal, "Start your revolution; we will take care of ours," is widely printed in the Radical press as indicating Republican plans for an uprising.

The Government feels the greatest anxiety at the approach of next Thursday, Oct. 13, which is now popularly known as "Ferrer Day," when it is feared that the manifestations marking the first anniversary of the execution of Prof. Ferrer, the Director of the Modern School of Barcelona, who was convicted of inciting last year's revolutionary movement, will result in rioting.

All requests for permission to hold Ferrer meetings of protest are refused. With Thursday passed safely, the Government considers that the worst will be over, as it counts on the absolute loyalty of the army, which in its entirety is held in readiness to stamp out the first spark of rebellion.

BARCELONA, Oct. 10.—A state of increasing excitement exists in Barcelona. The success of the revolution in Portugal appears to have fanned the fire of rebellion that has smouldered since the furious outbreak of a year ago.

There was the greatest animation in the streets to-day. The people pretend not to notice the patrols, which are being strengthened gradually in preparation for eventualities on Thursday, the anniversary of the execution of Ferrer.

Gen. Weyler, Captain General of Catalonia, admits that the strike of miners here is taking on a revolutionary character. He says that his orders are to suppress any active disloyalty with a firm hand.

Yesterday 10,000 stern-faced miners marched to the cemetery in the suburbs and placed wreaths upon the tombs of Ferrer and the Revolutnoist Garcia, who also was executed in consequence of what has come to be known as "Bloody Week." Violent speeches were made by leaders of the miners, who denounced the Clericals, charging them with responsibility for the executions. A spectator who shouted, "It was your fault as well as the Clericals," was seized by the miners and had been beaten almost to death when he was rescued by the police.

The military and police forced the manifestants to return to Barcelona in small groups.

PORTUGUESE MONKS ACCUSED.

Minister Says They Fired on Troops—Treasures Go to State.

LISBON, Oct. 10.—Official decrees expelling the Jesuits and declaring their property confiscated, and also expelling foreign monks belonging to other orders, were formally promulgated to-day.

The decrees, which appear in the Official Journal, specify that Portuguese members of religious orders other than Jesuits who accept secularization may remain in Portugal and return to their families, but those refusing to become secularized must leave the country.

The Provisional Cabinet is conducting exhaustive inquiries with the object of fixing the nationality of persons belonging to religious bodies.

Many of the nuns who are being expelled have announced their intention of going to America.

Under the decree of expulsion all the Jesuits' property reverts to the State. The property of the other religious communities will be sealed, and disposed of later in accordance with whatever relations are established between the State and the Church.

The Jesuits have enormous property in land, in addition to gold and silver church ornaments, vestments, and chalices studded with precious stones, also valuable cellars of old wine.

It is reported that the Irish Dominican friars and nuns, who possess a church and a convent here, will be exempted. No masses were celebrated in Lisbon yesterday in any church except that of the Dominican Fathers, over which the British flag floats.

Gen. Pimentel Pinto, one of the few monarchical leaders who took an active share in attempting to suppress the revolutionary movement, has been liberated on giving an undertaking that he will do nothing to disturb the republic.

The revolutionary leaders, having over-

FRENCH RAILWAY STRIKE

May Have Begun on the Northern Line—Government Prepared.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The long-standing uneasiness and agitation among French railroad employes developed to-night into a declaration to strike on the part of the men employed on the Northern Road.

The decision is a result of the refusal of the company to grant the demands of the men, chief of which is that the minimum daily wage shall be 5 francs ($1.)

The men preserved the strictest secrecy regarding their plans, but it is understood that the strike is to begin in Paris at midnight and in the provinces at 8 A. M. to-morrow. Up to a late hour, however, trains left the Gare du Nord as usual.

The terminus was occupied by military, Municipal Guards, and police as soon as the Prefecture was apprised of the decision to strike. The Government was not taken unawares and had made preparations to preserve order.

Similar provisions have been made in the provinces, and troops are held in readiness to guard the tracks should such a step be necessary.

The trainmen declare that they will not be intimidated by the Government's measures, and that they will refuse to obey orders as Reservists, if they are issued, on the ground that they are illegal. The men assert that the law only provides for mobilization of railroad men for the purpose of transporting troops.

It is reported that the strike is likely to spread to the employes of the State railroads.

POLICE DRAPE NUDE STATUE.

Special to The New York Times.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Major Richard Sylvester, head of the capital's Police Department, to-day took pity on the shivering statue of Miss Natalie Barney, reclining on the lawn of her mother's fashionable house on Massachsuetts Avenue, and caused a blue coated patrolman to drape the plaster form with a heavy cloth. The policeman, it is said, approached the work of art with averted eyes, performed the duty assigned him by his superior, and then retired with all speed to the station house.

A chorus of groans came from seven "rubber neck" wagons lined up in front of the mansion when the policeman draped the figure, but a delegation of housewives gathered on the opposition side of the street and gave three cheers. If, as Major Sylvester fears, the managers of the Sight Seeing cars or the vulgar curiosity seekers should remove the covering, it is possible that the Police Department will build a house or a brick wall around the statue to shield it from the public gaze until Mrs. Barney and her family return from Europe a year hence.

The statue, which is of plaster and was executed by Mrs. Natalie Barney's elder sister, Alice, has been on the lawn for about a week. The fact that it had no drapery whatever did not attract very much attention, for Washington has seen unadorned figures before, but when the news became public that it was the work of one daughter of the wealthy house of Barney, and that another daughter had served as model, the procession began heading toward the mansion. Moreover, the leaves of the hedge, which somewhat protected the figure from the outside gaze last week, have nearly all blown off during the last few days.

Mrs. Albert Clifford Barney, the mother of the two young women concerned in the episode, has for many years been a prominent figure in the public eye, both on account of her wealth and because she went in for art, drama, music, and many other things in a manner that compelled attention. Miss Natalie Barney created a sensation in Paris a year ago with her dramatic poem, "Sapho," which the critics said was a bit pronounced and radical even for Paris.

A. W. MELLON SUES WIFE.

Banker Names Briton in Petition—Mrs. Mellon to Contest Suit.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Oct. 10.—A petition for divorce has been filed in Common Pleas Court No. 3 by Andrew W. Mellon, head of the Mellon National Bank of this city, against his young wife, Nora Mary McMullen Mellon. He names Alfred George Curphey of London, member of a prominent English family. An absolute divorce is asked. The action is said to have been expected among Mr. and Mrs. Mellon's acquaintances, as there had been rumors of an estrangement. The Mellons occupy a fine house in Forbes at the entrance to Schenley Park.

An effort was made to keep the proceeding a secret. The papers do not appear on the official files of Allegheny County nor on the court dockets, although it was learned they were filed Sept. 14.

When questioned to-night Mrs. Mellon did not care to discuss the case and referred inquirers to her attorney, Paul S. Ache. The latter in a statement to-night said that the case would be contested to the end, and that a great injustice was being done to his client's honor and good name.

"The charges are absolutely unwarranted," she said, "and we will prove this at the proper time. The fact that Mrs. Mellon is living at the present time in her husband's house in Forbes Street with the two children in her possession speaks for itself. Before the matter is finally disposed of she will be vindicated."

Mr. Mellon is occupying a suite of rooms at the University Club, in the Schenley Farms, where he had been for some time previous to the filing of the divorce proceedings. He spends part of his time at his country home in New Florence, Penn.

The Mellons were married 10 years ago in Hertford, England. Mrs. Mellon was 20 years old at the time, and her husband is 28 years her senior. She has a fortune estimated at several millions in her own right. Shortly after the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Mellon came to Pittsburg and took up their residence at the family home. The family traveled extensively, spending much of their time in Europe and on the McMullen estate in England.

BUYS WHITE FACE SUMMIT.

Special to The New York Times.
SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Calvin Pardee of Philadelphia, has purchased 2,368 acres of land on White Face Mountain extending from the shore of Lake Placid up the mountainside and including the rocky summit, from which the peak takes its name. The purchase includes land on both sides of the White Face trail, which is climbed annually by thousands of visitors to the Adirondacks.

Mr. Pardee secured the land in separate purchases from J. H. Prall, W. H. Prall and others. It lies wholly within the town of St. Armond and added to the Eagle's Eyrie estate already owned by Mr. Pardee makes the purchaser perhaps the largest land holder on the shores of Lake Placid. The tract includes some of the most valuable first growth of pine timber in the State. Mr. Pardee's intention in securing the land is not announced, but it is believed he will convert part of it into a game preserve. The White Face trail will remain open to the public. The peak is believed to be the first of the five highest mountains in the State to come into the possession of a private individual.

FIRE ZONE COVERS AREA OF 85 MILES

Thousands Need Relief—Many Yet to be Rescued—Wild Animals Mingle with Cattle in Fleeing.

WARROAD, Minn., Oct. 10.—Latest reports of the forest fires in the Rainy River region of Minnesota to-night increase the horrors of the situation, if not the number of lives lost. Estimates of the number of persons killed range from 75 to 400 to-night. Several conservative men of business and authority place the deaths at more than 100. One report received to-night was that 100 bodies had been found near Spooner and Beaudette. But the greater concern for the present is the rescue of the helpless and the relief of thousands of homeless men, women, and children.

The Duluth express to-day took many refugees from the fire zone to Winnipeg. "If the fire keeps on the way it is going, there will be mighty little left of the population of that part of Minnesota," said Engineer Smith.

"The flames have died down a little," he continued, "but it only needs a puff of wind, and they will start again as bad as ever. There is one good thing. The fire cannot come near one of the railroad lines again, for all the timber is burned away. For miles around Baudette and Spooner, where there were large tracts of bush, it is now as level as the prairie."

"Everything is wiped out. The wind went at such a terrific rate that the fire had no chance to burn anything but what was directly in front of it. All the charred tree trunks along the tracks are lying away from the direction the wind was blowing. The earth around the tree trunks is on fire. There has been forests in that part of the country for so long that the earth is peaty. When a tree fell over with the force of the wall of flame it began to burn to the roots and the earth around the roots.

"A special train with machinery and workmen is going over the entire Canadian Northern system, strengthening all the bridges on the road. Many of the bridges we had to go over have been slightly charred, but their strength has not been seriously weakened.

"From the engine it looked as though every timber mill in the country had been burned. All the ties of the road have been charred. We stopped every little while to take on some people, but the most of them got off just outside the danger zone, so that they could go back as soon as possible to rebuild their homes."

The fire zone covers an area of eighty-five miles in length, from the gravel pits west of Warroad to Stratton, the fourth station east of Rainy River, and in width about thirty miles, covering all the territory between Red Lake and the Lake of the Woods. The fires, in addition to wiping out the villages of Beaudette, Spooner, Graceton, and Pitt, have destroyed Myron and Malcolm, two small settlements in Beltrami County, south of Warroad.

To-night Warroad is saved after three days and nights of tireless effort. During that time all business was suspended and every available man and boy, headed by Mayor Moody, fought hand to hand with the flames.

The greatest property loss occurred at Beaudette and Spooner, which are practically one community, being paralleled by a narrow river. The other towns consisted of only a few small buildings.

Bodies found along the railway track three miles west of Beaudette were brought to Rainy River to-day. There was not a particle of clothing left on any of them save parts of shoes. The bodies had the appearance of having been baked in a red-hot oven.

Searching parties were organized to-day and went south to relieve suffering and pick up the dead. It will be days before all the dead can be reached owing to the great trees which have fallen over the roads. These will have to be chopped away before wagons can get through.

Some Find Refuge in a Well.

In some instances houses near the town are filled with refugees who are without food. Matt Hendrickson came to Rainy River from his claim, 3½ miles southwest of Baudette, to-day and told of thirty persons who were housed in his shack without food. He says that when the fire struck his place sixteen of them got into a dry well 18 feet deep and remained there, nearly suffocating from the heat and smoke, until the fire had passed. While the tornado of fire passed over the well it veered to the southeast of his house, which was not burned.

Many settlers got into the Rapid River and saved themselves by wading in the water, although their faces were blistered by the heat. Several bodies, which are probably those of the Roulin family, were found in a clearing in the woods.

The fire still threatens the few houses along the river in Old Beaudette. The Engler Company's men gave up hope of saving their property two miles down the river, and sent all their horses to a place of safety. This mill is valued at $250,000, and was only completed last August.

In Rainy River 100 Deputy Fire Wardens also have been sworn in and, divided into groups of ten, have started to fight the fire from all sides. Another wind such as came up on Friday would seal the fate of this town. Tired and worn out, destitute men and women and children roam the streets. Mayor Williams of Baudette called the business men of Baudette and Spooner together on the streets here to-day and an organization was effected to distribute all possible supplies to the destitute.

A special train has arrived at Rainy River, on the Minnesota & International Railway, bearing provisions. The Bemidji company of the Minnesota National Guard will take charge of its distribution and keep order on the burned site of Baudette. The burned district will be placed under martial law.

Mayor Berg of International Falls has appointed a Relief Committee to arrange for the care of nearly 1,000 refugees, who have reached that town.

The bridge which went down at Winter River and carried a Canadian Northern freight train with it, spilled wheat across the river bed and completely dammed the river. The refugees in the caboose had a narrow escape. Along the Canadian Northern track on the riverside, were great piles of ties which were burning, and every minute those in the caboose expected to be roasted alive. They lay down on the floor to keep from smothering. Occasionally some of the men would crawl out on their stomachs and scrape sand on the burning ties to keep the flames from the caboose.

All Livestock Destroyed.

Practically all the livestock in the surrounding country is burned. The bodies of horses, dogs, cats, and other domestic animals are lying about the streets of the stricken towns. So intense was the heat in the streets that horses died while hitched to telephone poles with the bit clasped in their teeth. The iron trimmings of their harness lay on the ground, but not a vestige of a strap remained. Hair and skins of the horses were burned off.

It was reported that the Spooner school was saved, but this is not so. Not a building in the town escaped.

There has been no train service for two

THREE MEN SAVED FROM BLAZING BOAT

EACH ONE BADLY BURNED

One Injured Man Swims to Sinking Companion and Holds Him Up Until Rescuing Rowboat Reaches Them.

A glare lit up the little clearing on the Jersey shore just below the Inter-State Park at the foot of the Palisades, where Thomas F. Gallagher was having supper with his mother last night in the lonely shanty that serves as the Jersey terminal of what is known as Cox's Ferry. Then they heard a loud explosion, and glancing out over the river, they saw a large raised deck cruiser launch about 300 feet off shore ablaze from bow to stern. Long spurts of gasoline were bursting from the fuel tank, drenching the deck and three blinded and panic stricken men aboard. The three men dashed to the stern of the burning launch, and themselves aflame, leaped into a small dory hitched behind it. The dory upset, and the three men were thrown overboard.

Then, while he shoved off in a rowboat, she ran back to a telegraph pole used as a signal post to the ferryman on the Manhattan shore. Quickly she lighted three lanterns and pulled them aloft with a line and pulley fixed to the pole. The signal meant "Danger! Help!" to those in Cox's boathouse.

Gallagher, pulling with but slow progress against the strong tide, was straining every nerve to reach the three men near the burning launch, 200 feet away. Two had swam back to the launch and were clinging to the gunwale. The third, who seemed unable to swim, was clinging to the overturned dory, his clothing still ablaze around his neck and shoulders. With one hand he tried to beat out the flames. Blotches of blazing gasoline floated off from the launch, drifting toward the two men who clung to it and driving them ever and again away from the boat. The fire had spread over the whole deck, too, and was singeing their hair and burning their faces and hands.

Gallagher, hastening toward them, saw the man in the rear lose his hold upon the dory and sink. One of the two others loosed his hold on the launch and swam out to the drawning man, catching him as he rose and holding him above water, while he cried to Gallagher to go to the rescue of the man at the launch, saying that he could keep himself and his companion afloat till then. Gallagher reached the third man at the launch, pulled him aboard the rowboat, and then hurried over to the two others. Both were so badly burned that they almost fainted as he pulled them into the already almost overloaded boat.

In the strong current the blazing launch, by this time, had already drifted far downstream. As Gallagher rowed back to the Jersey shore he saw that his mother, at the foot of the telegraph pole, had hoisted a fourth lantern and was swinging it, a signal of extreme danger. Cox's large launch, the Okeete, from the Manhattan side, was now nearing the shanty.

With the help of his mother Gallagher lifted the three injured men from the boat. A few minutes later the rescue launch reached the landing with Cox, his assistant, Robert Tyler, and Policeman Foley. They said there would be an ambulance waiting on the Manhattan side for them, in answer to Mrs. Gallagher's last signal.

The three men were taken across in the launch, and there put into an ambulance from the Washington Heights Hospital.

The injured men were William H. Nicolay, an electrician, of 857 Third Street, Brooklyn, owner of the launch; Edward O'Neil, a real estate agent, of 521 Sixth Street, Brooklyn, and H. A. Simons, an insurance broker, of 2,220 Beverly Road, Brooklyn. O'Neil, who had been unable to swim, and who had been held above water by Nicolay, was most severely burned about the hands and body. The others, too, were blistered and singed over the hands, face, and shoulders.

The party of three had left Brooklyn on Saturday afternoon for a three days' excursion to Peekskill and back. They were due home late last night. The launch, which Nicolay bought a few months ago for $2,000, was burned to the water's edge, and drifted to the rocks about a mile down stream, and became a complete wreck.

PLATINUM JUMPS IN PRICE.

Up $2.50 an Ounce in a Week and Christmas Jewelry Will Be Higher.

Platinum took a jump of $2.50 an ounce in the last week. Maiden Lane has been kept on edge by the upward movement of the metal, but this last advance has caused consternation, as it comes in the middle of the busiest season, when the jewelry manufacturers are getting ready for the holiday trade. Diamond rings and all other diamond jewelry, that have their largest sales in the holiday season will be dearer owing to the rise in platinum, which has advanced 100 per cent. in the last two years.

Gold jewelry now costs only half as much as ornaments made of platinum, so that the latter has become by far the most precious of the metals used by the jewelers. The quotation for soft platinum, the metal in its pure condition, is now $36 an ounce, and the quotation is the same at all of the refineries. The more iridium is used with the platinum the more expensive is the alloy, thus reversing the condition as to gold, in which the alloys are the cheaper.

Platinum is replacing gold and silver to some extent in the manufacture of neck chains, watch chains, and other ornaments. The higher the price of platinum gets, said a manufacturer yesterday, the wider grows the demand for it in replacing gold and silver.

Prospectors in a number of States, in South America and in Canada, in all of which platinum has been found in small quantities, are searching for deposits more eagerly than ever before.

BIG FALLING OFF IN REGISTRATION

Complete returns from the first day of registration show a considerable falling off in all the five boroughs of this city. Democratic districts have suffered in common with those generally returning Republican pluralities, and the decline is universal in every section of the city. Only one district—the Twenty-third of Manhattan—a banner Republican district, shows a slight increase over the figures of last year.

As indicated by the table showing the totals from the different boroughs, Manhattan and the Bronx fell behind the registration figures for the first day last year by 12,487, or nearly 20 per cent., the total this year being 177,568, as against 190,055 a year ago. Then the early registration figures were low enough to cause despair among the campaign managers in both the Republican and Democratic camps.

In comparison with the figures from 1908, the last Gubernatorial year, the falling off more than doubles that from last year in many instances. In 1908 there was a Presidential election, which always brings out a heavier vote than a mere State election.

VERMONT'S COUNT 355,956.

State's Increase of Population in Ten Years 12,315.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The population of the State of Vermont, as enumerated for the thirteenth census and made public by the Census Bureau to-day, showed an increase of 12,315, or 3.6 per cent., the total number of inhabitants being 355,956, as compared with 343,641 in 1900. In the previous decade, from 1890 to 1900, Vermont increased its population 11,219, or 3.4 per cent.

Barre	10,734	8,448
Bennington	6,211	5,656
Bellows Falls	4,883	4,337
Brattleboro	6,517	5,297
Burlington	20,463	18,640
Montpelier	7,856	6,266
Rutland	13,546	11,499
St. Albans	6,381	6,239
St. Johnsbury	6,695	5,666
Winooski	4,520	3,783
Peultney	3,644	3,108

The population of Decatur, Ill., is 31,140, an increase of 10,386, or fifty per cent. as compared with 20,754 in 1900.

The population of Macon, Ga., is 40,665, an increase of 17,393, or 74.7 per cent. as compared with 23,272 in 1900.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Officials and detectives of the Passaic Express Company in St. Louis to-day are trying to solve the disappearance of three packages of money, containing approximately $9,000, while being shipped from St. Louis to Fort Worth, Texas.

The money was locked in a safe, the combination of which was not known to the messenger, when it left here last Thursday. At Little Rock, Ark., when a district foreman of the company opened the safe the money was missing. There was no sign that the safe had been tampered with.

BRAZILIAN TOWN BOMBARDED

RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 10.—The Governor of the State of Amazonas, Col. A. Aribeiro Bittencourt, has been overthrown by the Opposition, aided by a Federal force.

Serious disturbances followed the Governor's removal, and the Federal flotilla bombarded the town of Manaos, which is the capital of the State.

Manaos is an important Brazilian port. It is on the Rio Negro, ten miles from its mouth, on the Amazon.

The city is the centre of a large trade in the products of Northern Brazil. It contains a palace, a fine cathedral, a priests' seminary, an industrial school, many fine residences, and various industrial works.

The population has been growing very rapidly, and is now probably between 75,000 and 100,000.

CARUSO HURT ON STAGE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
BERLIN, Oct. 10.—Enrico Caruso slipped on the stage of the Munich Royal Opera last night in the course of a performance of "Aida" and suffered a painful injury to his right knee.

It is not known as yet whether the tenor will have to abandon the rest of his October engagements in Germany.

CAN'T SUE LEISHMAN.

French Lawyer's Writ of Attachment Against Ambassador Is Quashed.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Oct. 10.—A writ of foreign attachment against John G. A. Leishman, American Ambassador at Rome, was quashed in the Common Pleas Court here to-day by Judge John D. Shafer. The writ was brought by O. E. Bodington, a lawyer of Paris, France, who claimed something over 22,000f. for services in adjusting a marriage settlement when the Ambassador's daughter became the Countess de Gontaut Biron.

The Ambassador filed a petition setting forth that he is still a resident of Pittsburg and had never abandoned his domicile here. The court held that a writ of foreign attachment does not lie in this State against the defendant, since the debt was contracted in France.

SEVERAL VESSELS WRECKED.

Disasters Due to Storm on Newfoundland and Nova Scotia Coasts.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 10.—Stormy weather on the Nova Scotia and Newfoundland coasts has caused numerous wrecks.

The three-masted schooner Rose May is a total wreck at Anticosti; the fishing schooner Maggie May is on the rocks at Jeddore, N. S.; the schooner Zanymph, with coal, is a total wreck at Fortune Harbor, N. F., while the schooner Ella Francis, with fertilizer, is breaking up near by.

The schooner Amazon, which was ashore at Grand Etnry, has been floated in a damaged condition.

ROOSEVELT WOULD RUN.

If He Thought He Could Carry a Southern State—He's So Quoted.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—"By George, if I thought I could carry a single Southern State, I would willingly run for the Presidency!"

Col. Roosevelt made that statement Saturday, it was learned to-day, in the presence of Mayor Maddox and other members of the Reception Committee which escorted him through Atlanta's streets.

As the procession moved along with the Colonel bowing his acknowledgments to the thousands on either side, Mayor Maddox told Mr. Roosevelt that he had lived in Atlanta all his life and the crowd was the largest he had ever seen massed in the streets.

"You see, Col. Roosevelt," added Col. Fred J. Paxon, President of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, "what the people of Atlanta would do for you if you gave them a chance."

With manifest enthusiasm the ex-President then made the remark about running again.

"I regard it as unfortunate," said Mr. Paxon to-night, "that the matter reached the newspapers, as Col. Roosevelt was the guest of the city, and I regarded his statement, made in his usual enthusiastic manner, as confidential."

CATHOLICS TO HOLD ALOOF.

Will Not Share in St. Louis Reception of Roosevelt, Says Priest.

Special to The New York Times.
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Col. Roosevelt's visit to St. Louis will be a repetition of the "Peoria affair," so far as the Catholics of St. Louis are concerned, declares the Rev. Father D. S. Phelan, editor of The Western Watchman, who has just returned from a four months' tour of Europe.

"Archbishop Glennon," said Father Phelan, "will not be in the city. He was to have returned home last Thursday, but will not return until after Mr. Roosevelt leaves. Of this I am certain.

"It is just a matter of delicacy between Mr. Roosevelt and the Archbishop. It will save them both from an embarrassing position."

"But about the rest of the Catholics of the city?" Father Phelan was asked.

"As far as I am concerned," he answered, "I have not received an invitation to the numerous receptions prepared for Mr. Roosevelt, and with the others, I think you can say for certain that the invitations will not include them."

ROOF FALLS ON FIREMEN.

Two Companies in the Blazing Building, but No One Is Much Hurt.

While Engine Companies 42 and 82 were working last night in the burning second floor of the large three-story frame storage and carpentering building in the rear of the Liberty Brewing Company, which covers the block between Third and Fulton Avenues, in 170th Street, the Bronx, the roof suddenly caved in. Engine Company 82, nearest the window, abandoned its hose, and scrambled hurriedly out over the ladder to the street. The men of Company 42, however, further inside the building, were caught by falling beams and rafters, and six of their number, including their Captain, John Barrett, were bruised and cut.

Capt. Melvin of Engine Company 82 immediately ordered his men back into the burning building to help their comrades out. All were rescued and attended on the street by an ambulance surgeon from the Fordham Hospital.

Forty horses stabled in a building just behind the carpenter's shop were led out safely before the blaze spread to the stable. Scores of families living in near-by tenements were hurried out of their homes, while firemen, under the direction of Battalion Chief Ahern, played streams from the tenement fire escapes upon the blaze. The frame shop and the stable were completely destroyed at a loss of $10,000.

ELY, UNDAUNTED, WILL FLY ON TO-DAY

NOW NEAR GARY, INDIANA

Special to The New York Times.
CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Eugene B. Ely, who started yesterday from Hawthorne Race Track here on the 1,000-mile aeroplane flight to New York for the $25,000 prize of THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post and the additional $5,000 prize offered by Clifford B. Harmon, came to earth just before 5 o'clock to-night, roughly twenty-five hours after his start and just about twenty-two miles from Chicago. He had made three attempts at flight to reach this point near East Chicago, Ind., and the entire period since his start yesterday had been a chapter of accidents. Twice Ely's machine was wrecked, and twice the aviator narrowly escaped serious injury. Twenty-five hours practically have been wasted out of the precious 168 in which Ely must make New York if he is to win the prizes. Yet the airman was not discouraged.

"What am I going to do?" said Ely, in response to a question over the long-distance telephone from a TIMES reporter who had been waiting for him on THE NEW YORK TIMES special train at Gary, Ind. "What am I going to do? Why, I'm going through, of course, and I'm going to win that prize. I've got the time yet with an even break of luck, and I think that must be coming to me to make up for the bad luck I've had so far."

The Day's First Accident.

Ely's first accident to-day occurred just an instant or two after he arose from Beverly Hills, where he had dropped the night before. The evening hours and those of this early morning were devoted to repairing the engine and the front wheel of the biplane's chassis, which had been broken yesterday when Ely made his second attempt to rise. He was to have started at 7:30 o'clock this morning, but spent some time in testing out his engine, and it was not until 8:23 that he actually rose from the ground easily to the accompaniment of the plaudits of a crowd of several hundred, among them many school children. He had not accomplished half a mile when his engine, which had missed yesterday because of the clogging of the needle pin in his carburetor, began to miss again—this time because the feed pipe connecting the gasoline tank with the carburetor had broken loose from its fastenings.

"It must have been shaken loose by the rough ground over which I had to travel before I could mount into the air," explained Ely later.

Whatever caused the accident it made prompt descent imperative. Ely picked a spot for landing in a field ahead and succeeded in getting over this field with his rapidly wasting power, only to find that a deep ditch lay directly in the path which his biplane must take. With even one last ounce of power he might have escaped it, but his engine was dead. There was nothing to move the biplane, and he was compelled to let it fall to the ground as gently as he could.

It struck the turf and rolled forward toward the ditch, Ely jamming on the brakes which retard the wheels with all his strength. He could not stop his craft, however. It shot forward, the front wheel dropped into the ditch, and the craft practically came a cropper. Ely was flung from his seat and sent rolling over the ground a dozen feet ahead of his machine.

The front wheel of the machine was smashed, and as this support gave way the front control plunged nose-on into the turf. There was a rending, tearing noise, and the bamboo and oil-coated silk was ripped and torn. When Ely rose to his feet I was to confront a wrecked aeroplane.

Meantime the crowd which had seen the start was rushing to the airman's aid. When they came up, a man was sent forward to the special train, which was waiting on the main track at Gary. Glenn H. Curtiss, a passenger on the special train, with Mrs. Ely and Ely's two mecanics taking some spare parts, took an automobile for the scene of the accident.

Repairs were completed. Mrs. Ely returned to the train by 4 o'clock, and the crowd at the Gary station heard that the flier was up again and might be expected at any moment. He did not appear, however, and it was 5:45 before anything was heard from him. Then came the report.

The Second Accident.

More messages followed, and at 6 o'clock the telephone bell in the station rang, and it was Ely himself on the wire.

"I'm all right. Tell my wife," were his first words. "The machine's smashed, though, and I can't get out of here until to-morrow. Don't know what's the matter, but my engine stopped again."

A relief party started immediately by trolley car for the unfortunate flier, who had reported that he was only five miles from Gary, while the special train steamed back into Chicago.

Ely was found to have landed in a swamp near East Chicago, and between that town and Whiting. His craft was badly smashed, the front control for the second time in the day having been wrecked and almost torn from the rest of the biplane. Ely was worn looking and tired as well as disgusted with the luck that had pursued him.

"Do you know," he exclaimed, "I could see Gary from the seat of my biplane just before I was forced to alight. I was getting along nicely, more than 1,000 feet in the air, and was just getting ready to look out for the white-painted roof of the special train when my engine began to miss. I tell you I was discouraged. I thought of my ill-luck of yesterday and of this morning and prayed to myself that presently all the cylinders mighth get working again. I was to have no such luck, however. Instead of improving the engine got worse, and presently I realized that I would have to come to the ground. As was the case this morning, I had mighty little time to pick out a landing place, and the result is that I'm in this swamp. Once again my landing was bad, this time because of the nature of the soil into which the wheels settled. So once more I found myself pitched out on my face with the front of my craft a wreck.

"I suppose it'll take me till to-morrow noon to get the car in shape to go again, but once I do, look out. I'm going to beat it just as far and as fast as I can. It won't be my fault if I don't make a fine mileage, and after that if the luck holds I expect to keep up nearly sixty miles an hour right into New York.

"Do you know," he added, "I have a sort of suspicion that perhaps the gasoline I am using is not just the right sort

If it had any foreign substance in it or were not pure it would have just the effect on my engine which has come to pass. I don't know what made her miss this last time, the connections are all right and the carbureter is working well. I suppose I'll learn that to-morrow. Right now I'm too tired to look; however I'll be on the job in the morning."

Ely is spending the night in East Chicago to be near his machine to-morrow morning. Curtiss and his mechanics are with him. They expect to see the airman well on his way again by noon to-morrow.

WELLMAN WAITING TO START.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 10.—While the head winds blowing off the Atlantic Ocean continued to-day they were not so heavy as those of yesterday, and seemed to be the tail end of the all-week storm which has delayed the departure of the Wellman-Vaniman airship America for its projected transatlantic flight, on which Marconi wireless messages will be sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES, The Chicago Record-Herald, and The London Daily Telegraph.

The long snakelike equilibrator on which the probable success or failure of the enterprise is figured mostly to depend was carried out of the hangar to-day ready to be attached at the water's edge as soon as the airship is brought out for her first efforts above the ocean. The lifeboat which is to hang below the America's car was detached and made ready also to be hung on in the open air. It was found that the 228-foot gas bag did not have clearance way below the hangar's roof to move out with the lifeboat attachment.

Mr. Wellman said that on the trial trip which will be made for some distance up the Jersey coast both the boat and equilibrator will be attached, so that the ship will be entirely prepared for her over-the-ocean effort if the going is found to be good.

A seventh member of the crew, Jean Jacon, a French motor engineer, was added to-day. Jacon has been Mr. Vaniman's chief assistant in the construction of the America, and was with him through two seasons at Spitzbergen. He was mechanician for Nichols Poppoff, the Russian aviator, for a time, and assisted him with the construction of the aeroplane in which he was seriously injured while preparing to fly before the Czar after winning the Grand Prix at Cannes.

Weather Director Moore's special bulletin to Mr. Wellman this afternoon was to the effect that the prevailing head winds will continue between here and Nantucket Lightship through to-morrow, but will change for "moderate to light and variable." The bulletin caused the America's crew, which has grown restless through the long delay, to renew its hope that the sailing date is near at hand. Those members of the crew who take their weather wisdom from the local skippers insist that the ocean is already fit for eastward sailing, but Mr. Wellman prefers to have the local prognostications confirmed from the Washington Weather Office before he trusts them.

GERMAN AVIATION WEEK.

Lindpainter Remains in the Air for 2 Hours and 20 Minutes.

JOHANNISTHAL, Oct. 10.—The National aviation week began to-day. The flights were watched by representatives of the War Ministry and the General Staff.

Lindpainter gave the best exhibition, remaining in the air for two hours and twenty minutes and reaching a height of 2,263 feet.

MOISSANT AT FLYING FIELD.

Inspects Field at Hempstead Plains—Rush Work on Belmont Park.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Oct. 10.—John Moissant, the American who won distinction abroad as an aviator in his recent flight from Paris to London, was a guest on the aviation field at Hempstead Plains, near Garden City, this afternoon. He inspected the grounds, talked aviation for a little while with Charles K. Hamilton, and then went back to New York. Mr. Moissant is keenly interested in the plane which he is having built entirely of metal.

A stiff wind made flying of any account impossible to-day, though Masson made a few trials in the Brauner biplane. Work is rapidly progressing at Belmont Park, with carpenters working night and day to accomplish the changes which are being made at the race course before Oct. 22, the first day of the international aviation meet.

ANOTHER AVIATOR ARRIVES.

Hind, Radley's Associate, Here from England—Moissant's Machine In.

Among the recent arrivals in the aviation world is Norman S. Hind, an amateur, who is associated with James Radley, the British speed champion. Mr. Hind reached this city yesterday on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka, and will be associated with Mr. Radley during the latter's visit to this country. He said that one of Mr. Radley's Blériot machines was already here, and that another two-passenger machine would be shipped from the other side.

The Minnetonka also brought over John Moissant's big Blériot machine with which he flew from London to Paris. Moissant arrived on Sunday on the Savoie. The machines of Radley and Moissant are expected to arrive at Belmont Park to-morrow.

90 MILES ON ENGINE PILOT.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Oct. 10.—Three boys stole a ride on the pilot of the engine drawing the North Adams Express in order to get to New York to seek work. Their experience after traveling ninety miles to North White Plains Sunday night was somewhat thrilling. The boys were Charles Child, 12; Thomas Funk, 14, and Robert Marsh, 16 years old, all of Albany. They walked from Albany to Chatham and from there to Hillsdale Station, a distance of thirty miles. When the North Adams Express bound for New York pulled into the station, the boys had been put off two freight trains, and decided to try a new way of getting to Manhattan. They climbed on the pilot and sat close to the boiler head. It being dark they were not noticed. The train ran at a sixty-five mile an hour rate to North White Plains, ninety miles, without a stop.

The North Adams Express changed engines at this point, where the electric zone begins. When the engine driver ran his locomotive into the roundhouse he discovered the three boys in the front huddled together cold and stiffened from the fierce wind they had encountered. He helped them into the engine drivers' quarters, where they received food.

The boys said that they had run away from their homes in Albany, as they were tired of attending school, and they thought that if they could get to New York they could obtain jobs as messengers.

Engineer Thomas Bressett took the boys to New York and kept them at his home over night, and this morning the boys were only too glad to be sent back to Albany. They were put in charge of the conductor of the 8:45 A. M. Chicago fast mail out of Grand Central Station, and a telegraph dispatch was sent to their parents to meet them.

Convention Deadlock Unbroken.

ALBION, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Unable to agree, the Republican Senatorial Convention in the Forty-seventh District adjourned to-night without making a nomination. The final vote stood as the first one did: Mackenzie, 7; Kirby, 7. Unless some one is nominated by petition, there will be no contest, and the Democratic nominee Gittens will be elected.

ROOSEVELT TAKES ISSUE WITH TAFT

HELPS OPEN ARKANSAS FAIR

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 10.—In his speech at the opening of the Arkansas State Fair here this morning Col. Roosevelt declared again in favor of National assistance to the States along the Mississippi River in the drainage of their swamp lands. What he said was similar to his declaration at the National Conservation Congress at St. Paul on Sept. 6, the day after President Taft had taken the position that there was too much call on the National Government for such assistance and said he "deprecated" it.

The drainage question is of great importance to Arkansas and the rest of the Mississippi River States. Among them they hold about 25,000,000 acres of swamp land, most, if not all, of which is held to be reclaimable by proper drainage. Arkansas has some 7,000,000 acres of it.

The committee which met Col. Roosevelt at Memphis last night to welcome him to Arkansas urged him to include in his speech to-day a statement in favor of National assistance in draining these lands. Toward the close of his speech today Col. Roosevelt referred to some "things about the open country which should be done by the National Government, that is by the representatives of all of us working together."

"Arkansas is one of that group of States with an enormous area of swamp land," he continued. "Until drained that land is worthless, but when drained it is a block of the most fertile land in the entire Nation. The National Government must do its part in helping the drainage, because the drainage is an inter-State affair. Arkansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Louisiana, and Mississippi are all concerned, and ought to work together, and the National Government should render all possible legitimate aid."

Besides this declaration about drainage Col. Roosevelt talked to the Arkansans about the new Nationalism, going over substantially the ground covered in his speeches at Bristol, Va., and Atlanta.

It was a great day for Hot Springs and a great reception for the Colonel. An elaborate programme had been prepared for the formal opening of the State Fair. Gov. Donaghey, the two United States Senators, James P. Clarke and Jeff Davis; the members of the Arkansas delegation in the House, and a host of other local dignitaries had been invited to take part, along with the Governors and officials of neighboring States. This invitation to other Governors had included Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, who was prosecuted by the Federal Government under the Roosevelt Administration for complicity in land frauds in Oklahoma.

There was a lively exchange between Col. Roosevelt and Gov. Haskell during the Taft campaign two years ago. Haskell issued a statement some time ago to the effect that if he ever met Col. Roosevelt he would demand an explanation of the beginning of that prosecution. This invitation offered that opportunity, so far as Haskell was concerned, but he declined it, basing his declination on "personal grounds." Whether or not Gov. Haskell thought he was revenging Senator Lorimer was not explained to the Hot Springs committee. Nor was there any indications of what Col. Roosevelt would have done if he had found Gov. Haskell in the list of those whom he was to meet here.

Senator Clarke was one of the committee who met the Colonel last night at Memphis. Senator Jeff Davis was not. Davis had no part in the proceedings, but he was on the platform in the grand stand at the fair grounds this morning. In fact, he was the first arrival there. In his first outburst in the Senate, when Col. Roosevelt was President, Senator Davis had compared himself to Mr. Roosevelt to the great disparagement of the Colonel and his own evident satisfaction. To-day he had nothing to say from his inconspicuous seat in one corner of the platform, and took an early opportunity to disappear.

The arangements for the day were in the hands of a committee composed of leading citizens from all over the State, and which was reported to number about 900. The committee men brought Col. Roosevelt to the fair grounds a little after 10 o'clock. The grandstand was already well filled, and more than 16,000 admission tickets had been sold. Directly across the race track from the platform where Col. Roosevelt sat, a special stand had been erected, and there 1,600 children of the Hot Springs schools were arranged in order to represent a Star Spangled Banner.

As soon as the flag had been formed two heralds rode down the track sounding trumpets and followed by the company of regulars. This was the guard for Gov. Donaghey, who arrived in a carriage, accompanied by two young ladies, one in blue and the other in grey, but both in hobble skirts. They took their places on the front platform in front of the flag, the Governor in the centre. Col. Roosevelt was to speak from the platform under the Liberty Bell and a double line of young women in white, with red, white and blue parasols, formed across the track as a special guard of honor for his march from the grand stand to the speaking platform.

With everything in readiness a band in the grand stand played "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and then the 1,600 children of the human flag sang it. The crowd joined the blue veterans in cheering this, and then the band played "Dixie."

There was a great shout at that, an old-time "rebel yell" that rang over all the place. The children followed with "Dixie," in song, and the veterans in gray leaped from their chairs and led the yelling that followed.

Then President George Cole of the State Fair Association introduced Gov. Donaghey, who declared the fair formally opened, in a speech in which he made the surprising statement that if the people of Arkansas had had the fixing of the prices they received for their bounteous crops they would have fixed lower prices than they actually received.

Seated beside Gov. Donaghey under the liberty bell was a man dressed in red, white, and blue, to represent Uncle Sam. After the formal opening of the fair Col. Roosevelt, escorted by a top-hatted guard of committeemen, marched between the lines of young women across the track and up to the speakers' stand. The crowd cheered him heartily all the way, the first real cheers of the day for him. Meanwhile the hobble-skirted girls, looking decidedly discontented with their lot, had left their places with the veterans and opened a couple of baskets under the liberty bell, liberating a pair of unhappy white doves of peace, which declined to soar and remained sulking on the ground until shooed away. Then the gray girl went to the blue veterans and the blue girl to the gray veterans, and both scattered paper flowers over the old soldiers while the crowd grinned and applauded.

When Col. Roosevelt came up to the speakers' stand he saluted first Uncle Sam and then Gov. Donaghey, and then he shook hands with the girls in the blue and gray hobble skirts. The girls responded by pulling some white ribbons that ran up to the bottom of the Liberty Bell and straightway opened out and dropped a mass of real red roses all over the Colonel to his decided surprise.

Then everybody sat down; the people in the grand stand and in front of it were invited to come down and stand in the track so they could hear, and Gov. Donaghey introduced Col. Roosevelt. The Governor made a speech which caught the crowd and evoked very hearty cheers. It was a good speech, made under difficulties, for throughout it a pair of anvils [illegible] out a twenty-one-gun salute at intervals ranging from two seconds to a minute and a half. What especially aroused the enthusiasm of the crowd was when the Governor said of the Colonel:

"He has advocated many reforms and measures, with some of which we agreed and with some of which we disagreed. But there is one in which all ought to agree, and that is the mighty struggle he is making to secure more purity in private life and more honesty in public life. He is fighting for the common good of the country, and in that every man on this continent ought to give him his support, every lover of liberty, every supporter of law and order ought to be with him."

The Arkansas Democrats gathered in thousands about the stand cheered that statement of the Governor to the echo, for Gov. Donaghey himself has made a record in Arkansas for being clean and efficient in office. Col. Roosevelt rose to respond amid renewed cheering, and expressed his thanks to the Governor for his introduction.

"Words are of value only as they are backed by deeds," he said, "and I greatly prize what you have said because you in public life have shown yourself an honest public servant."

"Fundamentally," Col. Roosevelt said, "the welfare of all of us depends more upon the welfare of the farmer than upon that of any other man, and we should all of us join in doing whatever can be done for building up the man who lives on the farm in the country.

"It is just as foolish for the farmer today to say that he will not adopt new methods because his father did not use them as it would be foolish for the National Guard of Arkansas to say that it would not use repeating rifles because the men of the civil war did not have them.

"The only man whom I have ever found that nobody could teach was a fool.

"The spirit of justice, the spirit of common sense, the spirit of insistence on right and high performance of duty, that spirit must be kept as our forefathers kept it. But we need the new implements, the new tools of the trade of citizenship, just as the soldier needs the new tactics and the new weapons that modern conditions have rendered necessary.

"Men of wealth, as much as some of our private citizens now possess, are economically and industrially of such overgrown size that it is unsafe to leave the average individual at their mercy. They may behave well, very possibly, but I want to see that they behave well, not as a favor, but because they have to.

"That is all that side of the New Nationalism means. It does not mean anarchy, and it does not mean Socialism, and it does not mean attacking men of wealth.

"What we are striving to do is to secure equal rights—that is, to eliminate special privileges; to try to start all men in the race of life on a reasonable equality."

From the fair grounds Col. Roosevelt went to luncheon with Dr. Greenway, father of Jack Greenway, the old Yale athlete and Rough Rider, who was chiefly instrumental in getting the Colonel to come here to-day. He went to the Arlington Hotel at 3 o'clock and held a short reception, and then went for an automobile ride about the Government reservation here.

On this ride the Colonel heard about Sid Houpt, who has just been appointed Sheriff in place of his brother Jake, who was killed by horse thieves in a street car in front of the Court House a few weeks ago. Sid was on one side of the car when Jake got in at the other and tried to take two horse thieves whom he recognized among the passengers. There was a battle and Jake was killed. Sid opened fire and killed one of the horse thieves, wounding the other so that he was taken. Then Sid was made Sheriff.

He got down to the car and had a few words with the Colonel just before the train started for St. Louis this evening. Col. Roosevelt said of him: "That's the kind of a man I want to meet. He's Rough Rider stock."

CONGREGATIONALISTS MEET.

7,000 Delegates and Visitors Assemble at Boston for Ten-Day Session.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Thousands of Congregationalists from all sections of the United States, together with missionaries of the denomination from all parts of the pagan world, met in Tremont Temple tonight for the formal opening of the Triennial National Council of Congregational Churches and the co-operating societies of the denomination. Only a comparatively small portion of the 7,000 delegates and visitors attending the Council were able to gain admission.

Thomas C. MacMillan, the retiring Moderator of the National Council, presided. Addresses of welcome were made by Gov. Eben S. Draper and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

The ten days' series of meetings and conferences is the greatest in the history of the Congregational Church. The centennial anniversary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, which is observed this week, is considered an important factor in attracting so large a number of delegates.

Fall from Car Kills a Policeman.

Joseph B. Gorsline, a patrolman attached to the Atlantic Avenue Police Station, Brooklyn, was killed by a fall yesterday while trying to board a moving trolley car at Atlantic and Utica Avenues, that borough. He had just been relieved from duty and was on his way to his home, at 1,186 St. Mark's Avenue, when the accident happened. He slipped and fell backward from the step of the car, striking his head on the pavement. His skull was fractured, and he died a few minutes after being taken to St. John's Hospital.

days, and will probably not be for twenty-four hours.

Special Policeman Walter Faris of Rainy River last night was so badly beaten by hoodlums that he lay all night in a ditch in an alley unable to call for help. He probably will die. Armed guards patrol the streets at night, but so many men are carrying firearms it is dangerous for persons to be out. So far, however, the hundreds of laborers have acted admirably.

The women are showing wonderful fortitude. Though for the most part without clothing or money other than what they have on their persons, they are trying to show a brave spirit.

Railway officials at Rainy River are holding all available cars to enable the people to escape should the fire get into the town. Over fifty freight cars were burned on the tracks at Baudette, as well as all the coal on hand for the railway.

The fire came so suddenly that people in Baudette and Spooner who had packed up fearling such a contingency did not get a chance to save a thing.

No rain has fallen in this region since the snow left, save enough to dampen the ground once or twice. The swamp ground burns as fiercely as coal, and makes a dense pungent smoke so stifling that no one can live in it. The only hope for safety is a protracted rain or severe cold weather.

Animals raced wildly about the edge of the fire and then, contrary to their habits, turned and plunged into the deep and wide Rainy River and swam across to Canada and safety. They followed the human flight. Cattle released by their owners at the approach of the flames, likewise fled to safety. Accompanying the horses were hundreds of deer, caribou, and moose. Cattle lay down with the bears, wildcats, and timber wolves, encountering no danger from them. They were all flying from a common enemy. Never probably in the history of this country was there ever such a herd of wild animals as passed before the eyes of human refugees. None of them was shot or molested.

Many tales of suffering are brought in by refugees. Oscar Johnson and his wife and three children stood five hours in the Baudette River, ducking their heads when the heat became too intense. They say the water in the river was heated to an uncomfortable temperature and that hot vapor rose from the surface. When they escaped, it was as through a furnace of dying coals, with here and there a blaze reaching out for what it might destroy.

The property loss in the three towns alone, including the Rat Portage Lumber Company's plant and yard at Rainy River and the yard of the Shevlin-Mathieu Lumber Company at Spooner, will total $1,500,000.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 10.—A relief train left St. Paul to-night for the forest fire zone in Northern Minnesota. Gov. Eberhart and Adjt. Gen. Wood are on the train, which will arrive at International Falls to-morrow morning. Two Red Cross nurses are on board.

Three carloads of tents and tools are on the train. Twenty National Guardsmen will board it at Bemidji for duty in the fire zone.

RYAN OFFERS $10,000 AS AVIATION PRIZE

FOREIGNERS ENTER BIG MEET

Grahame-White, Rene Barrier, and E. Audemars to Compete for International Trophy—New Machines Coming.

Thomas F. Ryan has entered the aviation field by offering a $10,000 prize for the fastest flight from Belmont Park around the Statue of Liberty at the international tournament which opens on Oct. 22. Mr. Ryan announced this prize last night in a cablegram to his son, Allan A. Ryan, who is acting as the business director of the tournament. It will be the largest single cash prize to be competed for at the tournament.

Upon receiving the announcement of the prize the Aviation Committee began working on the rules governing it in order that they may be printed in the official programme. All details of the contest could not be announced last night, but it is likely that each aviator will be allowed to take any route he chooses in reaching the statue. If the flight is made in direct line and over South Brooklyn the distance to the statue and return will be about thirty-three miles. Should he fly from Belmont Park to the harbor and then over the water from that angle to the statue the distance would be about sixty-five miles.

Arrangements will be made to place the Statue of Liberty in wireless communication with the judges' stand at Belmont Park, so that it will be shown at all times what progress is being made in this flight and the exact moment when each aviator turns about the statue will be instantly announced to the crowds at the tournament.

In competition for this prize it is likely that the aviators will be permitted to try for it at any time when all conditions seem most favorable for such a flight, and without giving the usual notice of intention to start that is required in most of the other contests; therefore the crowds at Belmont Park will be constantly on the alert, expecting at any moment to see one of the big machines suddenly wheel out of its course and start for the Statue of Liberty.

In his cablegram Mr. Ryan simply offered the $10,000, instructing that it be used for any prize that Allan A. Ryan and De Lancey Nicoll might determine upon. They at once selected the Statue of Liberty as the goal.

Claude Grahame-White, one of the British team selected by the Royal Aero Club of the United Kingdom to compete for the international speed trophy at Belmont Park, formally signed his entry yesterday at the headquarters of the International Aviation Tournament. Mr. Grahame-White said that two new racing machines which he has ordered will arrive in New York in a few days. One is a 50 horse power monoplane, which will arrive on Oct. 12 on the Adriatic; the other is a 100 horse power racing machine of the type to be used by Alfred Leblanc of the French team. This machine will arrive on the Niagara with all the other machines belonging to the French team.

Grahame-White says that he will use these new machines at an engagement in Washington, after which the machines will be shipped direct to Belmont Park. In addition to these, Mr. Grahame-White already has in this country another Blériot of 50 horse power and his Farnam biplane, all of which he will use at the tournament.

Rene Barrier and E. Audemars, two more celebrated French aviators, were also added to the list of those who are to appear at the tournament in Belmont Park. Their official entries for the tournament were made by cable after it was definitely determined that Leon Morane would not be able to come to America on account of his recent accident while flying for the $20,000 Michelin Prize.

When Morane was injured his 100 horse power Blériot had already been put in the hold of the steamship Niagara, which is bringing to America the other aeroplanes of the French flying squadron. It then became a question as to who should take Morane's place, as there are only two or three aviators in France who can operate these powerful machines. Barrier was regarded as the most proficient in handling the racing Blériots, with the possible exception of Morane, and he was, therefore, selected by Morane's business manager, and will handle the big machine at the international tournament.

Audemars, although classed as a Frenchman, is a Swiss by birth, and for several years was known as one of the leading motor cycle racers in the world. He is coming with a Nieuport monoplane, another type of the humming bird class of the flying brood.

Roland Garros is coming with a Demoiselle, another type of the midget monoplane, and it is expected that these two wonderful little machines will be among the most attractive features of the tournament. Garros and Audemars are skillful operators of the small type machine and have attracted a great deal of attention wherever they have appeared at the European meetings this Summer.

With the addition of Barrier and Audemars there will be eight French aviators in the international tournament. They are Alfred Leblanc, Hubert Latham, Count de Lesseps, Emile Aubrun, Rene Thomas, Rene Simon, Roland Garros, and E. Audemars.

The aviation prophets who have been observing the practice work on the Hempstead Plains for the last few days are now of the opinion that the Gorden Bennett Trophy will remain in this country for at least another year. After observing the marvelous speed and general construction of Charles K. Hamilton's machine, they were most emphatic in their prediction that it would outfly and outlast any of the 100 horse power Gnome-driven monoplanes.

Alfred Leblanc, who is to drive the 100 horse power Bleriot on the French team, since arriving in New York has expressed doubt as to whether that type of machine would hold up at a mile-a-minute speed over the sixty-mile trophy flight. The high-power French monoplanes are still in experiment so far as sustained flight goes.

JOHNSTONE HAS A FALL.

Drops Fifty Feet at St. Louis, but Escapes Injury.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Ralph Johnstone was flying in a biplane at a height of fifty feet on the aviation field this afternoon, when he lost control making a sharp turn, and fell with the machine, which was wrecked.

Johnstone was stunned by the fall. Before he was removed from the grounds he said: "I'm not hurt. The radiator saved my life."

LITTLE HOPE FOR ENTRAPPED MINERS

FIND WORKINGS WRECKED

Get Within 900 Feet of Men—Poisonous Gases Stop Them—Discover Air Fan Blown to Pieces.

STARKVILLE, Col., Oct. 10.—As darkness settled to-night over the entrance to the Starkville Mine, the hope which had buoyed up the watchers at the pit mouth throughout the day that some of the fifty or more men entombed there would be found alive grew faint, and gloom settled again over the silent crowd.

This morning the experts at the head of the rescue party were confident that some of the men walled in by Saturday night's explosion were alive. They believed that the portable fan forcing pure air into the workings would keep the men in the extreme southern portion of the mine alive until they could be reached, but as the day rescue party stumbled slowly out tonight, they saw little prospect of rescue.

After a day of hard work in the face of constant peril, the rescue party penetrated the mine nearly 12,000 feet, or within 900 feet of the men imprisoned nearest the main entrance.

Instead of finding the mine clear of débris and afterdamp at this point, the workings were found to be wrecked, and poisonous gases were again encountered.

It was decided to retreat to the open, leaving the portable fan going until the interior of the mine was freed of afterdamp.

Ten thousand feet from the entrance the room where a fan had been operated before the explosion was found wrecked. The fan was torn to pieces and scattered hundreds of feet. The 1,200-pound motor had been thrown fifty feet from its base. The party was compelled to stop and make repairs. A dog which had accompanied the party wandered ahead and was found later, overcome by afterdamp.

The dog's experience proved valuable, and reconnoitering parties were sent ahead to test the air, which proved bad in all directions. General Manager Weitzel was advised by portable telephone and he ordered the men out of the mine until the air could be improved.

All day long the hills facing the mine were covered with women and children waiting for news of the entombed men. As the rescue party told them that no bodies could be found for some time, the mothers gathered their little ones and settled to wait and watch through the night.

thrown the monarchy, are now confronted with the scarcely less serious task of putting an end to the excesses on the part of the rougher element of their own followers, who, having had a taste of mob rule, are prone to continue lawlessness for lawlessness' sake.

The decree of summary banishment of the religious orders gave excuse for burial outrages on the clergy. The Provisional Government has now recognized the seriousness of the situation, and to-day the police adopted sever measures to prevent the population from sacking the religious establishments and to check the demonstrations against the monks and nuns pending their expulsion.

Reports that the clericals were carrying on guerrilla warfare from the windows of their establishments inflamed the public resentment against them, and many were chased from their churches and convents.

The mob which battered down the doors of the convent in the Rua do Quelhas was led by fanatics and a gang of ruffians, who seized the occasion to destroy everything in sight. Images and statues were wrenched from the niches in the chapel, altars were wrecked, furniture was broken, and the sacredotal vestments were carried off by the rioters. Later the police recovered the greater part of the vestments.

The district in which are the Santos Church and the French Legation was startled by the crack of rifles, and at once a report was circulated that the monks were firing from the windows of the church. A crowd flocked to the scene, but the military arrived in time to protect the church and the legation from possible violence.

Subterranean Tunnels Found.

Arrests of disguised and fleeing monks continued to-day. The discovery of secret subterranean tunnels at the monasteries set afloat rumors that many monks were still hiding underground, awaiting a favorable opportunity to emerge and continue the fight against the new régime. To satisfy the crowd the military initiated subterranean explorations, and in one instance went so far as to dig a trench to locate the suspected tunnel.

As was the case at the time of the Barcelona riots, the popular feeling seems to be restricted to the monks and nuns and does not manifest itself toward the secular clergy.

Antonio Almeida, the Minister of the Interior of the Provisional Government, is quoted in an interview as saying that the fighting with the monks was provoked by them, they having fired upon the soldiers and people from the windows of the monastery without a shot having been fired at them. The monks, he said, evidently planned a counter-revolt. He added that not more than sixty persons were killed in the recent revolution.

Dr. Costa, the Minister of Justice, today ordered the release of Cardinal Joseph Sebastian Netto, former Patriarch of Lisbon, who had been seized and his expulsion from the country ordered. Costa explained that the real object of the arrest was to protect the Cardinal from possible outrage.

The Minister declared that several monasteries and convents belonging to Portuguese or foreign orders were veritable arsenals and that the activity of the Clericals, who persisted in obstinate resistance to the advent of the Republic, hastened the order of expulsion, which, he added, was necessary to tranquilize the public spirit.

It is understood that all the officers who aided the revolution refused offers of promotion, affirming that they had only done their duty to the nation.

The Theatre Queen Amelia has been renamed the Republic.

With doubtful expediency, the bodies of Prof. Bombarda and Admiral Reis, the revolutionaries, remain exposed at the City Hall. The republican flag hangs from the caskets, between which a bust typifying the republic is draped in black. The funeral will be next Sunday. A monument to the victims of the revolution will be erected.

Lisbon En Fete Sunday.

Throughout yesterday the city was in festival garb. Thousands came in from the country districts and visited the scenes of the recent fighting. They wore medals in the form of republican emblems and carrier improvised republican flags. The bands played the republican hymn, and the artillery fired salvos in honor of the members of the Ministry and other leaders of the Revolutionary Committee, who drove from place to place amid the cheers of the populace.

The demonstrations at the capital are being paralleled in the provinces and the remote country districts. From everywhere come reports of fetes in honor of the new republic.

Tranquillity prevails throughout the country. The [illegible] life of the nation proceeds [illegible] ordinary appearance. The business routine has been renewed.

No boats are allowed to approach the three Portuguese cruisers anchored in the Tagus.

The United States cruiser Des Moines and the British cruiser Venus arrived today.

HUELVA, Spain, Oct. 10.—The Bishop of Beja, who has been expelled from Portugal, after hiding three days in a mountain village, passed through Huelva today on his way to Seville.

CORUNNA, Oct. 10.—Many fleeing Portuguese families arrived here to-day.

The greater number are royalists, who say they prefer emigration to accepting a Republican Government.

BADAJOS, Oct. 10.—A large number of monks and nuns, fleeing from Portugal, have arrived here.

The Under Secretary of the Navy of the last Portuguese administration has also reached Badajos after a hasty flight across the border.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The French Lazarist priest Espinouze, who was believed to have been killed at Lisbon with Superior Frague, is alive and unharmed.

He hid for three days in the Portuguese capital and then escaped to the Spanish frontier, whence he telegraphed to friends here.

PORTUGAL TO DISMISS ENVOYS.

Alte Will Go from Washington and the Famous Soveral from London.

LISBON, Oct. 10.—The Government will make a complete change in its representatives abroad.

This will mean the retirement of Viscount de Alte, Minister at Washington since May 1, 1902.

Portugal has one foreign Minister who has taken his place among the most celebrated diplomats of recent years. The Marquis de Soveral, who for the last thirteen years has represented his country as Minister to the Court of St. James's, may, indeed, almost be put in a class by himself.

The Marquis was the only foreign envoy who became a close personal friend of the late King Edward. He was a member of that very small inner circle which accompanied the King almost continually. It is well known that whenever King Edward accepted the hospitality of one of his subjects he personally edited the list of other guests. It soon came to be recognized that the King almost invariably wanted the Marquis invited.

De Soveral, who is an English Knight, having been made both a Grand Commander of St. Michael and St. George and a Grand Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, was with King Edward when the King was at the theatre for the last time. His witty conversation and unfailing fund of anecdote would cheer his Majesty when everything else failed.

He has been for many years in the Portuguese Diplomatic Service, and was at London as First Secretary a quarter of a century ago, when he first met the then Prince of Wales. From 1895 to 1897 he was Portuguese Foreign Secretary. His departure from London will be regretted by an immense number of friends.

QUIET AT LORENZO MARQUEZ.

In Letter to Premier He Said He Had Been Faithful to Portugal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Commander Luby of the cruiser Des Moines to-day reported his arrival at Lisbon, and announced that he had called upon American Minister Gage, that the republican flag was flying generally, that everything was quiet, and that business conditions had apparently returned to the normal.

From Lorenzo Marquez Consul Chamberlain telegraphed to the State Department that the Governor General continued in office under the new régime, that the Portuguese Republic had been proclaimed throughout the province, and that the transition was peaceable.

The American diplomatic representatives have been authorized to transact necessary business with the responsible officials at Lisbon on any matters arising in the course of the period of uncertain status of the Portuguese Provisional Government, but such communication does not signify any formal recognition of the new Government.

The recent general circular note to the powers from Provisional President Braga, announcing the new republic, has not yet been acknowledged by the Washington Government, but this will be done in a few days, it is stated.

CIPHER TELEGRAMS REFUSED.

Portugal Will Not Permit Even Code Messages to Legations.

ROME, Oct. 10.—Much surprise was expressed at the Vatican this morning when cipher dispatches containing important instructions to the Papal Nuncio at Lisbon were returned to Cardinal Merry del Val unsent, with the explanation that the International Bureau of Telegraphs at Berne, upon the request of the Republican Government of Portugal, had suspended, as it is entitled to do by the international convention, all ciphered telegraphic communications to Portugal.

This action is considered almost unprecedented by the Vatican, and as indicating that the Provisional Government does not feel its position to be secure.

The Commercial Cable Company yesterday notified its patrons that it had been prohibited by the Provisional Government f Portugal from accepting or delivering in that country messages in code or cipher.

MANUEL TO LIVE IN ENGLAND.

He and His Mother Will Leave Gibraltar in a Few Days.

MADRID, Oct. 10.—The Spanish Government has received confirmation of the report that King Manuel will shortly proceed to England, where he will take up his permanent residence.

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 10.—King Manuel and Queen Mother Amelia decided to-day to proceed for England.

They will probably depart in a few days, but have not determined whether they will travel by land or on sea.

The Italian warship Regina Elena arrived here to-day to take on board the Dowager Queen Maria Pia, who will go to Italy.

"I am compelled, owing to stress of circumstances, to embark, but wish to inform the people of Portugal that my conscience is clear.

"I have always acted as a faithful Portuguese and I have always done my duty.

"I will ever remain at heart a true Portuguese, and hope that my country will do me justice and try to understand my feelings.

"My departure must in no way be taken as an act of abdication."

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 11.—A telegram from Lisbon says it is stated that the Government will confiscate the King's property, but will respect Queen Amelie's fortune, which was inherited from her father.

The Lisbon correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch dealing with the situation following the revolution, says that when elections are held and a new President and Cabinet are chosen Dr. Brito Comacho will become Minister of War, and Dr. Menezes Minister of Marine. These two were primarily instrumental in engineering the revolution.

The crude green and red flag will then be discarded, and the old Portuguese flag, but without the crown, will be adopted as the emblem of the Republic. The Marquis de Soveral, the Portuguese Minister at London, will be recalled.

A late dispatch from Lisbon says it is reported that the War Minister has ordered the entrenched military camp, which was to be razed to-day, to be retained intact, with all its artillery, in readiness to repel any Royalist attack.

Neither the Foreign Office, the Duke of Orléans, nor the Marquis de Soveral is as yet aware that King Manuel and Queen Mother Amélie are coming to reside in England.

Queen Amélie asked the Duke of Orléans by telegram to remain at his English home, Wood Norton, for the present, and the Duke replied that he placed himself completely at the service of his sister and her son.

According to a Lisbon dispatch to The Morning Post, overtures will be made to King Manuel with a view to inducing him to sign a renunciation of the crown.

RENEWED RIOTS IN LISBON?

A Rumor in Paris That the City Is Enveloped in Smoke.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—A rumor is current here late to-night that fresh disorders have begun in Lisbon, and that the city is enveloped in smoke.

No confirmation of this report has been received.

Priests Attacked in France.

ST. ETIENNE, Oct. 10.—A Catholic procession at St. Paul-en-Jarret was attacked to-day by a group of Free Thinkers, who assaulted the priests and tore their banners. The police intervened and made several arrests.

MEMORIALS TO FERRER.

First Anniversary of His Death to be Marked by Many Meetings.

The first anniversary of the death of Francisco Ferrer, Oct. 13, will be celebrated in Cooper Union, New York; in Faneuil Hall, Boston, and in twenty-five other American cities. The demonstration meeting here will be held under the auspices of the Ferrer Association, of which Leonard Abbott is President.

Speeches on Ferrer, his life, his work, and his death will be delivered in English, German, Spanish, Yiddish, Bohemian, and Italian. Emma Goldman, Charles Edward Russell, and Jaime Vidal are to talk, and the announcement further sets forth that "the children of the Ferrer Sunday School will pay homage to the memory of the great teacher."

In honor of this first anniversary the association has published a brochure, which contains messages on Ferrer's work from such pens as those of Ernest Haeckel, Maxim Gorky, Havelock Ellis, and Jack London.

"The man we celebrate was a pioneer and an idealist," the pamphlet says. "His vision pierced so far that only a few understood. The others killed him on false charges. But in his death he has become more powerful than during his life. He transcends all national boundaries. His name is a new symbol of martyrdom. He takes his place with Socrates, Christ, Savonarola, Huss, and Giordano Bruno."

That should be your spirit if you manufacture goods for human beings—the farmer's money is just as good as anybody's—and you should add to this spirit the knowledge that the farmer will buy your goods if he knows about them. STIMSON RAINBOWS CHEER MANAGERS

County Chairmen Give Assurance That It Is Only a Matter of Getting the Vote Out.

NO DISSENSIONS AT ALL

Col. Roosevelt Could Not Speak So Often as Expected, and His Schedule Is Revised.

It was a day of rainbow making at Republican State headquarters yesterday. A lot of the Republican County Chairmen from up-State called there and had talks with Henry L. Stimson, the Gubernatorial nominee, and State Chairman Prentice. Some of the up-State Chairmen said they would roll up a bigger vote for Stimson than was cast in their respective bailiwicks two years ago, when William H. Taft carried the State by 200,000. Others were more modest in their estimates, but nobody would admit that there was any likelihood of a Republican disaster at the polls.

John W. Hutchinson, head of the Speakers' Bureau, busied himself during the day with a speaking tour for Mr. Stimson and Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who is to be the real star of the campaign. Col. Roosevelt cannot, it now develops, give as much of his time to the Republican campaign as the managers of Mr. Stimson's campaign had hoped, so the original schedules for his tour have had to be revised. From now until the voters begin to deposit their ballots, there will be little rest for Stimson. He will speak at Columbia University to-morrow afternoon, at Carnegie Hall and at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Friday evening. On Saturday he will tour Long Island, and this will be play compared to the work that has been laid out for him up-State on the tour that is to begin next Monday morning.

Aside from Col. Roosevelt, who will keep up an intermittent fire on the breastworks of the Democratic foe during the entire campaign, the Republicans will reserve their heaviest guns for the final week. Then, it was announced yesterday, speakers of National reputation will invade the State, among them Senator Elihu Root, Attorney General Wickersham, and others. There was a report yesterday to the effect that President Taft himself had been asked to enter the fight. Chairman Prentice of the Republican State Committee said, however, that no such request had been made of the President.

Prospects in a Bright Light.

State Water Commissioner Robert H. Fuller, who until a couple of months ago was the secretary of ex-Gov. Hughes and one of the former Governor's few personal advisers, came down from Albany yesterday and had a long conference with Chairman Prentice at State headquarters, and later on with Mr. Stimson at the personal headquarters he opened yesterday at the Hotel Manhattan.

Prior to the conferences Mr. Fuller said he had sounded the sentiment throughout the State.

"The prospect for the election of Mr. Stimson and his associates on the Republican ticket is most encouraging," he said. "I have talked with many of the leaders of the counties in the interior of the State where Republican majorities come from, and they are unanimous in saying that their counties will give the usual Republican vote. The up-State Republicans, and many Democrats besides, are for Stimson, because they want to see the standards set by Gov. Hughes maintained, and they know, as every one knows, that Mr. Stimson is the man best qualified to maintain them. The country Republicans want to see the Administration of President Taft upheld and not rebuked, and they are fully aware of the fact that Republican defeat in New York would be hailed all over the country as the forerunner of Republican defeat in the Nation."

Mr. Fuller added that the feeling against Col. Roosevelt that was apparent in this city did not exist up-State, where, he said, the Colonel's popularity was on the increase rather than on the decline.

Cheerful View for Stimson.

"The opposition to Col. Roosevelt is very clearly understood up-State," said Commissioner Fuller. "It is daily being more clearly revealed. But this is not a reactionary year in New York, any more than it is in Maine, Iowa, or California."

"The farmers and the wage-earners are doing well under the Administration of President Taft, and they do not propose to be stampeded into Democratic hard times. Neither do they propose to place Tammany Hall in control of the State Government or of its Treasury. The wild extravagance of the Tammany government which Mayor Gaynor and his associates are now endeavoring to check without Tammany's aid do not, in the opinion of the up-State voters, qualify Mr. Murphy to hold all the State offices by proxy."

The procession of Republican County Chairmen to see Mr. Stimson will continue through the early part of the week. Those who called to-day included E. D. Stratton of the Cattaraugus County Committee, J. W. Holcomb of Clinton, J. L. Eades of Cortland, H. S. Carter of Franklin, Charles W. Taft of Oswego, A. L. Payton of Rensselaer, and J. Fred Hammond of St. Lawrence. Other politicians who called at State Headquarters and talked with Chairman Prentice and Mr. Stimson were Representative Hamilton Fish, Senator Chauncey M. Depew, President Lloyd C. Griscom of the Republican County Committee, Public Service Commissioner William R. Willcox, Senator Herbert P. Coats of Malone, and Henry C. Johnston, Republican State Committeeman from Queens.

After his talk with the County Chairmen Mr. Stimson and State Chairman Prentice both said that they had received encouraging reports regarding the situation in the rural counties.

"About the only thing that worries them at the present time," said Mr. Prentice, "is how to get the vote out. If the voters come out the men I have talked to feel that they will vote right. However, the campaign has not gone far, and there is no doubt that when it goes further we will arouse enthusiasm for the ticket."

Here is the itinerary prepared for Col. Roosevelt:

Oct. 17—Yonkers, Poughkeepsie, Hudson, and at night Troy, Cohoes, and Schenectady.
Oct. 18.—Northeast counties. Plattsburg at night.
Oct. 19—Malone in the morning. St. Lawrence county points, Ogdensburg at night. Return to New York.
Oct. 24—Visit abandoned farms with Congressman Dwight and speak in Binghamton at night.

Mr. Stimson will follow this schedule, which has been prepared for him:

Oct. 17—Start from New York City on West Shore Railroad; rear-end platform speeches to Newburg; afternoon speech there; night speech at Kingston.
Oct. 18—Speeches at points on Delaware & Ulster Railroad; afternoon speech at Oneonta; night speech at Binghamton.
Oct. 19.—Talks in Owego, Ithaca, Candor, Cortland; night speech at Syracuse.
Oct. 20—Talks in Wayne and Cayuga Counties; night speech in Auburn.
Oct. 21—Canandaigua, Waterloo, Seneca. night speech in Geneva.
Oct. 22—Visit points on Falls branch of the New York Central, in Orleans and Niagara Counties.
Oct. 23, (Sunday)—Buffalo.
Oct. 24—Attica, Livingston County points. Night speech Hornell.
Oct. 25—Places between Hornell and Jamestown.
Oct. 26—Dunkirk to Batavia.
Oct. 27—Oswego and points in Oswego and Jefferson Counties.
Oct. 28—St. Lawrence county, Malone, Saranac Lake, Plattsburg, (night.)
Oct. 29—Points on D. & H. R. R. Cohoes, Schenectady, and Troy.

The last week of the campaign Mr. Stimson will devote to the Mohawk Valley and Hudson River communities. Job E. Hedges will go along to inject a few laughs in an otherwise altogether serious campaign.

Chairman Ezra P. Prentice of the Republican State Committee last night appointed the Executive Committee to which will be alloted the task of running the campaign for Henry L. Stimson, the Republican nominee for Governor. The names of former State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff and William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, who was leader of the Old Guard forces in their fight with Col. Roosevelt, are conspicuously missing from the list, but aside from this the Old Guard and progressives will be rubbing elbows. Here is the committee: Ezra P. Prentice, Chairman; Lafayette B. Gleason, Secretary; George W. Dunn, Lloyd C. Griscom, Fred Greiner, William L. Ward, F. J. H. Kracke, J. Sloat Fassett, Cornelius V. Collins, James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Francis Hendricks, Edwin A. Merritt, Jr., and Jacob Brenner.

Mr. Prentice said last night that probably a couple of days would elapse before he appoints a campaign Treasurer.

WILSON TO STUDENTS.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 10.—Nearly a thousand Princeton students, some carrying torches, marched to Prospect, Dr. Woodrow Wilson's home, to-night just before curfew rang from Old North, and gave the Democratic candidate for Governor one of the most rousing receptions that he has had in any community since he entered the race.

After two rousing "tigers" the crowd was greeted by Dr. Wilson, who stepped out of the house, and from a grassy knoll addressed them on insurgency and its meaning to the American people. He said:

"I do not come before you as a candidate because I could not ask you for your votes. You have already given me your suffrages and I appreciate your support more than I can tell you. In contemplating leaving Princeton and saying good-bye to you young fellows I am guided by the strong belief that I shall do so, not as a politician, but as a Princeton man going forth to do his duty and put the stamp of Princeton on the affairs of the country.

"This suggests the idea of insurgency, for the people are awakening to a new era and are determined that machine politics shall no longer be supreme. I address you, therefore, as an insurgent who, along with many others, believes that form is badly needed in political affairs. I do not believe in knocking the other fellow, or of preaching pessimism, but I firmly believe that reform is needed and will be quickly forthcoming.

"The time is near at hand when party lines will be largely obliterated and the new idea of Government will hold full sway. The American people are tired of the clap-trap of the old-time politician. The time is at hand when an individual may stand with confidence on the platform and tell the people sincerely that they are being wronged, and, without demanding oratory, they will believe it.

"The world cannot progress without insurgency. It is here to-day. It has been here in the past and it will continue to be in the future if the Nation is to go ahead. Take the advancement of any nation, for example, and you will find that whatever progress it has made has come through those who have rebelled at existing conditions and have spoken their convictions like honest men."

At the conclusion of Dr. Wilson's speech the crowd gave two lusty "Tigers" for Wilson and one for Princeton. Dr. Wilson stepped back into his study and the crowd went back to dormitories and books.

EUROPE EXPECTS ROOSEVELT

Believes He Will Run in 1912, Says Maximilian Morgenthau.

Maximilian Morgenthau, who returned from Europe yesterday in the North German Lloyd steamship George Washington, said:

"That Theodore Roosevelt will be a candidate for the Presidency in 1912 is the general belief in Europe. You have no idea of the great interest European people have in the political situation in America. When Judge Parker came out with his statement that the Democratic Party does not stand for free trade, the leading European papers wrote long editorials expressing astonishment, as they always understood free trade would be a plank in the Democratic platform.

"As to business conditions here, I am an optimist. I believe things will steadily improve. I was not quite so cheerful when I left in August, and, on arriving in Europe, found that opinion there was about the same. But toward the latter part of my stay the conviction began to gain ground among the leading European financiers that the business situation in America was rapidly clearing up, and that we have every reason to believe that business in general will be fair this Fall."

CAN'T FIND CANDIDATES.

Massachusetts Democrats Still Unable to Name a Ticket.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Four hours of deliberation by the committee of four appointed by the Democratic State Convention to name candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts ended to-night in a deadlock over a vote to name Congressman Eugene N. Foss of Boston or ex-Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Hamlin, also of Boston, for the nomination for the head of the ticket.

R. J. Crowley of Lowell and William P. Hayes of Springfield voted for Hamlin and Frederick J. MacLeod of Cambridge and J. A. Maynard of Boston voted for Foss.

The Lieutenant Governorship nomination was offered to William P. Hayes of Springfield by the other three members of the committee, but Mr. Hayes declined positively to accept.

The committee adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

FOR NON-PARTISAN JUDICIARY

Brooklyn Independence League to Support the Choice of the Republicans.

The Independence League in Brooklyn has decided to support the non-partisan Judiciary ticket named by the Republicans in the Second District, which is made up of the Counties of Kings, Queens, Nassau, Suffolk, and Richmond. The commitee appointed at the convention of the League last Thursday to select candidates announced yesterday that it would nominate Justices Samuel T. Maddox and Garret J. Garretson, Republicans, and Justice Harrington Putnam, Democrat.

Justices Maddox and Putnam have also been named by the Democrats, who, however, have named Assistant Corporation Counsel Patrick E. Callahan, a Democrat, instead of Justice Garretson.

$2,692 TO BEAT SHERMAN.

Progressives of Oneida County Spent That Sum at Primaries.

ALBANY, Oct. 10.—The Progressive Committee of Oneida County, which made a fight at the primaries against Vice-President Sherman and the regular organization of that county, has certified to Secretary of State Koenig that it spent $2,692 in connection with the contest. Most of the money was paid to poll workers and canvassers.

The receipts were made up of subscriptions, including $370 from Senator Frederick M. Davenport, and $20 from State Lunacy Commissioner W. Cary Sanger. The largest sum, $1,207, was advanced by F. D. Crim and ex-Assemblyman Merwin K. Hart, the latter being Chairman of the league.

GORE MAY COME EAST AND SPEAK FOR DIX

A DOWNTOWN MEETING

John A. Dix, the Democratic nominee for Governor, and Winfield A. Huppuch, new Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, had a long conference yesterday at Democratic State Headquarters, 1 West Thirty-fourth Street, arranging plans for the Democratic campaign this Fall. Mr. Dix came down from his home at Thomson, Washington County, on purpose to turn over to Mr. Huppuch, who succeeded him as head of the State Committee, all the data regarding the Democratic situation throughout the State which he had collected prior to the Rochester Convention. Then Mr. Dix went back home on the evening train to be in readiness to take part in the notification ceremonies to-morrow afternoon.

Mr. Huppuch plunged at once into the business of establishing a campaign bureau. One of his first acts was to put Congressman Francis Burton Harrison in charge of the Speakers' Bureau. Mr. Harrison appeared at headquarters later in the day, but said he would not be able to announce for several days just who the principal speakers of the campaign would be. He said that already there were many applicants.

The speaking campaign for the Democratic State ticket, Mr. Huppuch announced last night, will open at Buffalo next Monday night. Alton B. Parker, Temporary Chairman of the Rochester Convention, and Thomas F. Carmody, candidate for Attorney General, will be the principal speakers at this rally. From Buffalo Mr. Parker will go to Elmira, where he will speak on Tuesday night, Oct. 18, from the same platform with Herbert P. Bissell, the Permanent Chairman of the convention.

This is all the arrangements for speakers that have been made so far, but there is talk of bringing Senator Gore of Oklahoma here to follow in the wake of Col. Roosevelt. Chairman Huppuch said yesterday that Mr. Dix had decided to adhere to his determination of making no extensive stumping tour, and that the date and places of his few platform appearances during the campaign had not yet been settled.

The Democrats opened their speaking campaign in the city yesterday with a noon meeting in the dry goods district under the auspices of the Commercial Travelers' League, at 648 Broadway. The speakers were Asa Bird Gardiner, ex-Assistant District Attorney Hal Bell, formerly a Republican, and John J. Martin. A band attracted a large crowd into the hall before the speaking began. Meetings will be held daily until election.

High cost of living, the tariff, and trusts were the principal topics of the speakers. A banner with the words, "Let Us Rise Above Party Politics and Stand for Business Principles," was strung over the platform.

"They say the high cost of living is to help the farmer," said Mr. Gardiner. "Why, I've just come down from the Catskills and I couldn't find a pound of butter made there for sale. No cattle are raised locally and no butcher would dare patronize a New York State cattleman because the Beef Trust would soon put him out of business. So the poor farmer has to go on raising other things in competition with the great West and getting poorer all the time.

"We've got a graft investigating committee in the City Hall, which is an illegal committee and should be put out of business by injunction, as the Legislature is not in session, and the committee cannot have powers greater than its creator. It is only investigating dead men. Hughes got $25,000 for his insurance investigation, and Bruce will probably get the same, all of which we have got to pay for."

Mr. Bell said he had left the Republican Party a year ago because it had betrayed the people. The Republican Party, he said, was mad with its success of forty-five years and had made every workingman a slave to the trusts.

"Vote for Dix," said John J. Martin, "so we can have a man in Albany like Gaynor. Dix and Gaynor will give us primaries so that we can elect our own men and not be subject to the whims of a little shrimp of a leader and a boss."

INDORSES COURT CANDIDATES

The Citizens' Union Hopes to Keep the Judiciary Out of Politics.

The City Committee of the Citizens' Union held a meeting last night in its rooms at 41 Park Row and indorsed these judiciary candidates:

Justice Edward B. Whitney, Democrat, First Judicial District, who was not nominated at the County Convention of his party, but who may be named by the Republicans and the Independence League.

Justice Garret J. Garretson, Republican, Second Judicial District.

Justice Harrington Putnam, Democrat, Second Judicial District.

The Chairman of the committee, William J. Schieffelin, made this statement:

"The aim in the recent campaigns to take the judiciary out of politics is threatened by the action of the Democratic Convention in refusing to nominate the complete non-partisan ticket in the Second District and failing to nominate Justice Edward B. Whitney for re-election in the First District."

Republicans Indorse Hearst Man.

The Republicans of the Fifteenth Senatorial District, at the adjourned convention held last night at 760 Eighth Avenue, indorsed the Independence League candidate, Thomas F. Devine. It was explained by some of the delegates that this action was taken mainly because the Independence League had indorsed the Republican candidate for the Assembly in that district. Thomas J. McManus is the present Senator from the Fifteenth.

Brooklyn Business Men for Dix.

The Brooklyn Business Men's Association, composed of both Democrats and Republicans who have not been actively identified with politics, has given its support to the candidacy of John A. Dix, the Democratic nominee for Governor, and has opened campaign headquarters at 22 Court Street. Andrew J. Corsa, an insurance broker, is President of the association.

Dix Spent Nothing for Nomination.

ALBANY, Oct. 10.—John A. Dix, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, stopped in Albany a few minutes to-night on his way from New York to his home in Thomson. Mr. Dix certified to the Secretary of State to-day that he spent nothing in aid of his nomination.

Nominated for Congress.

20,000 Tailors to Strike To-day.

More than 20,000 members of the Custom Tailors' Union will strike to-day for a shorter workday, a union agreement, and higher wages. Hyman Novik, secretary of the union, said yesterday the unoin, which was formed four weeks ago, has become affiliated with the United Garment Workers of America. The strike headquarters will be the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street; Odd Fellows' Hall, 98 Forsyth Street, and two halls in Brooklyn. A Settlement Committee will formulate the demands to-day.

The New Novel by the Author of
"THE MASQUERADER"

MAX

By Katherine Cecil Thurston

THERE are some stories one can't tell about—it wouldn't be fair. "Max" is like that—the plot is so new, so fresh, so untouched, and the mystery of it has such alluring charm that one feels like an eavesdropper in even hinting at the strange and delightful vistas the unfolding of the story brings. There is, however, one thing it seems right to tell—the story is a tale of an unusual personality, just as "The Masquerader" was. You remember how "The Masquerader" held you, the varied delight of it all? Well, "Max" is like that, only more so. It is a unique love story, for the heroine is also the hero.

ATTACKS AMERICAN RHODES SCHOLARS

THEY HAVE THEIR OWN CLUB

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 11. — The Daily Mail contains an article by "an Oxford man," declaring that the American Rhodes scholars at Oxford do not further that good understanding between England, Germany, and the United States which the late Cecil Rhodes hoped to bring about by the educational relationship he founded. The writer says:

"Against the colonials and Germans there is nothing to be said. They do associate with the rest of the undergraduates and are with and of them. As regards the Americans, however, it is different. He does not entirely fulfil his part of the contract. He takes from Oxford everything she has to give and withholds from her anything that it may be in his power to give in return.

"It would naturally seem that, if the men selected by the executors came within measurable distance even of the high standard set up in the bequest, that fact alone would have guaranteed the execution and success of the Rhodes idea. Either, however, there are no men in America possessed of the various qualities of manhood which Mr. Rhodes stipulated that his scholars should have, or, once having succeeded in obtaining a scholarship, all idea of carrying out their obligations goes by the board.

"The American Rhodes scholar becomes an undergraduate of Oxford only in so far as wearing the cap and gown and the obtaining of athletic honors permit. For the rest he keeps himself to himself and seeks to know nothing of his English surroundings and fellow-undergraduates nor to impart any of the ideas and opinions of his own country for their discussion and approval or disapproval.

"That the American scholar should be one of the Oxford undergraduates, should join in their social life, should make friends with them, should become, in fact, their brother during their three years at the university, was always the root idea of the bequest. He does none of these things. By the foundation of the American Club in Oxford all possibility of his fulfilling these objects is destroyed, and from the first moment of his arrival till the time of his departure the American Rhodes scholar makes friends only with his compatriots."

The writer argues that this is not Oxford's fault. He asserts that the English undergraduates go out of their way to make the stranger within their gates feel at home, but says that after the first week at Oxford the American murmurs at British insularity and retires into his shell—the club—where he reads American papers, discusses American politics, sings American songs, and might, indeed, just as well be back in America for all the good he does himself or Oxford.

"Oxford Man" admits that the American carries out the spirit of the Rhodes bequest in the field of athletics, saying:

"Here he shows himself to be thoroughly well at home, though sometimes in a manner which raises grave doubts in English minds as to his comprehension of the word 'sportsmanship,' but at least he is of use to Oxford, for his excellence gains him the coveted blue and is of material assistance to Oxford in her rivalry against Cambridge.

"Although Oxford cannot on any grounds be accused of the idea, the American seems to retain in his mind the fact that he is a stranger and that therefore Englishmen will be inclined toward favoritism to their countrymen, and in consequence a feeling of antagonism, however slight, remains as a barrier between him and them and completely fills up this possible opening. It is only necessary to look through the lists of university representatives to be perfectly satisfied, from the ever-increasing number of Americans who figure there, that any suspicion of favoritism is impossible."

"Oxford Man's" final complaint against the American Rhodes scholar is the following:

"The American Rhodes scholar receives £300 ($1,500) a year wherewith to defray his university expenses. This means that the various items of undergraduate life at Oxford should be covered by this sum. The Rhodes scholar, however, contends that expensive journeys in first-class saloon cabins to the ends of the earth on vacations should also be paid out of this annual allowance. Consequently he keeps his Oxford expenses down to the minimum and does no more entertaining than he can possibly help, in order that as soon as the term is over he may shake the dust of Oxford from his feet and explore the nooks and crannies of civilized and uncivilized parts of the world.

"Does this benefit Oxford? Is this in the spirit of the scholarship?"

Sixteen Horses Burn with Stable.

SEIZE JEWELRY OF CHICAGO WOMAN

Mrs. Samuel B. Steele Fails to Declare Dutiable Possessions on Arriving from Europe.

DETECTED BY A WOMAN

Diamonds and Sapphires Found on Honolulu Agent of an English Concern Also Seized.

Mrs. Samuel B. Steele of 3,339 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, had to appear at the Custom House yesterday and explain to the Surveyor and George Smyth, his assistant, why she did not declare all her dutiable possessions upon her arrival on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington.

The several trunks belonging to Mrs. Steele were passed as having been correctly entered upon her declaration. Miss Ellsworth, Customs Inspectress, suspected that Mrs. Steele was bringing in articles concealed on her person. She confided her suspicions to Deputy Surveyor Peter Simmons, who ordered Mrs. Steele taken on board the vessel and searched.

This search revealed a chamois bag containing a large diamond-studded barette, a silver mesh bag, with a diamond-set monogram, and a gold coin purse. In addition were found a diamond bracelet which Mrs. Steele said had been bought in Paris several years ago and a silver coin purse. She testified that this purse had been presented to her in Paris. The articles about which there was no dispute as to purchase were seized by the Surveyor.

A. C. Spohler, manager for an English concern in Honolulu, arrived on the George Washington. He declared that he and his wife had purchased only $4 worth of goods abroad. An Inspector questioned him as to the purchase of a diamond ring he was wearing, a diamond and sapphire marquise ring his wife was wearing, and a silver mesh bag she was carrying. Before Mr. Smyth Spohler admitted that they had been purchased abroad. His excuse for not declaring them was he did not know he had to enter articles of personal use. The jewelry, valued at $460, was seized.

W. E. Wood, a jeweler from London, came under the customs observation through the activity of Timothy Donohue, a special. In a pocketbook Donohue found four scarf pins of diamond, sapphire, ruby, and pearl set. Mr. Wood explained that he wore a different pin each day in his scarf. The pins showed no signs of wear. Mr. Wood is said to have admitted that he intended going into the jewelry business here. He denied he brought the scarf pins over to sell. In spite of his story the pins were seized.

WOMEN HIT BY BROADWAY CAR

Trolley Lifted from the Track to Release Mrs. Kelsey, Who May Die.

Dazed by the rush of traffic at Twenty-fourth Street and Broadway, Mrs. A. Kelsey and her sister, Mrs. Clara Goodenow, of 330 Lexington Avenue, stopped in front of a northbound Broadway car while crossing from Fifth Avenue. The motorman, Thomas Benn of 405 West Fiftieth Street, beckoned them to go on, but when they hesitated he sent his car forward just as the women darted forward. The car struck them just as they reached the centre of the track.

Mrs. Goodenow received a few minor bruises, but Mrs. Kelsey, who is 60 years old, was thrown to the tracks and rolled under the forward platform for ten feet before the car could be stopped. The motorman and the conductor, Bernard Quinn of 1,535 First Avenue, and several passengers lifted the front of the car from the tracks to release Mrs. Kelsey, who was wedged against the trucks.

Dr. R. C. Echart of East Orange, N. J., who was on the car, attended her until an ambulance surgeon took her to Bellevue Hospital, where she was said to have suffered fractures of several ribs, internal injuries, and a possible fracture of the skull. She probably will die.

THE OLD GUN WAS LOADED.

So a Repairer Learns When He Pries Off the Percussion Cap.

An explosion coming from the direction of Ludwig Lipert's gun and locksmith shop in 103 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, shortly before noon yesterday, shook the neighborhood and caused the inmates of the Borough Hall, a block away, to go scurrying out of doors.

Police reserves, the Fire Department, and an ambulance from St. John's Hospital hurried to the gunsmith's shop from which smoke was rolling out in a cloud. They found Lipert lying in one end of his store while an old-fashioned percussion cap musket lay near by. Everything in the place was shattered.

When he regained his voice Lipert told the police that an unknown man brought him the musket to be cleaned. An old-fashioned percussion cap was rusted down on the touch hole, and he took a tool to pry it off when a load that had been slumbering in the gun for a number of years was discharged.

Mansion for Art in Montclair.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Oct. 10.—The Montclair Municipal Art Commission will consider the advisability of purchasing the large Fellowes mansion, in South Fullerton Avenue, for the proposed new art gallery and museum, for which $50,000 has been donated by Mrs. Henry Lang. W. T. Evans, who is President of the commission and who has presented fifty-six paintings for the art gallery, favors the purchase, but so far no offer has been made for the property. The mansion was erected fifteen years ago by William Fellowes, a Wall Street broker, at a cost of $250,000, but was never completed. The stone for the building was brought from Scotland and Russia.

Bequest to Little Sisters of the Poor.

Mrs. Nellie M. Keith, wife of Dr. Nathaniel S. Keith, left $1,200 to the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor and $800 to the Rev. Father Thomas Butler of Lewiston, Me., in a will filed for probate yesterday. Dr. Keith is named as executor and residuary legatee in the will.

ENGINEER LINDSAY A SUICIDE BY GAS

Inability to Provide for His Family Believed to Have Caused Him to Kill Himself.

HAD CHARGE OF GREAT WORKS

Directed Improvements in Roadways and Water Supply in the Philippines—Worked Also in Panama.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Russell E. Lindsay, a prominent consulting engineer of Washington, D. C., committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in a third-story room of an apartment house here to-day. His friends believe that his inability to provide for his wife and son as he had been accustomed to doing when he was in the Government employ led him to take his life.

Beside the body was a note reading: "Do not disturb my body until Mrs. Lindsay arrives. I leave everything to my wife."

Mrs. Lindsay's home is at Passaic Park, N. J., and a fifteen-year-old son is at school at Old Bridge, N. J.

J. W. Davis of Burlington, N. J., who was well acquainted with Lindsay, informed Deputy Coroner McKeever that Lindsay was one of the best known consulting engineers in the world. He said Lindsay had been the engineer in charge of improvements in the roadways, water supply, and other public works at Manila, in the Philippines. He was promoted and afterward transferred to the Engineers' Corps of the Panama Canal, occupying an important position. Leaving Panama, he sold a patent to the Government for $20,000 and with the proceeds made a tour of the world, including China and Japan. Upon his return to the United States he came to Philadelphia and opened an office in the Bourse Building as consulting engineer. He was despondent on account of the amount of patronage he had received and the enforced separation from his wife and son.

Fire Horses

plunging down the street thrill the best of us. The man with a story of stirring adventure gets the floor. A good adventure story is always worth reading. But where can you find such a story? You have to read through a lot of mush to get the real stirring thing you want. Why not get a magazine that has adventure stories and nothing else—especially when you can get a magazine that is edited just as carefully as a magazine like Everybody's—that is, in fact, published by the publishers of Everybody's? For instance:

JUST SUPPOSE you woke from a drugged sleep in the hold of a South American sailing vessel bound for you knew not where—

SUPPOSE you found you were alone on the Pacific with a crew of Chinamen and a lady-skipper, whose only name was "Bessie"—

SUPPOSE you had been robbed of an inventory-list of priceless treasure consigned by Pizarro, from Peru, in the galleon Espiritu Santo, to the King of Spain—

BUT SUPPOSE you remembered the latitude and longitude of the spot where the Espiritu Santo went down—

AND SUPPOSE you found "Bessie" a game sport and her crew of Chinamen a bunch of heroes—

JUST SUPPOSE—

WHAT would you do?

YOU'D join the quest of "The Yellow Men and Gold." And you can join it—for that's the name of the best adventure story you ever read. It's by Gouverneur Morris and it's in ADVENTURE.

AND there are 192 pages of just such stories in this brand-new magazine—some fact stories, mostly fiction stories, but all adventure stories. There is "something doing" in every one of these yarns. They'll grip you. They're in The Ridgway Company's new magazine

TAFT TALKS TO ROOT ABOUT NEW JUSTICES

Has Not Decided Yet to Make Hughes Chief, and Senator Himself Is Mentioned.

NEW YORK SITUATION UP, TOO

Senator Believes Stimson Has a Fighting Chance and That Last Omnibus Tariff Bill Has Been Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 10.—Senator Elihu Root of New York visited the President this morning and remained to luncheon. Mr. Root's arrival, immediately after the departure of Otto T. Bannard of New York, was taken to mean that the President is very much interested in the New York State campaign and that he is improving opportunities to inform himself about conditions and prospects.

The President has not yet decided to promote Charles E. Hughes, who has just resigned as Governor of New York and taken the oath at Washington as Associate Justice, to the position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. He talked with Senator Root to-day about the Supreme Court vacancies and asked his judgment as a lawyer about certain men he has under consideration.

There have been suggestions that Senator Root himself might be chosen as Chief Justice. Such a choice, however, is doubtful. The Senator is now 64 years of age, and under the legal requirement for ten years' service could not retire from the bench till he was 74 years old. The President prefers younger men for the Supreme Court. The fact that Justice Hughes is also from New York might not bar the selection of Senator Root, but it would be a consideration if satisfactory timber could be found in other circuits. Then the possibility of a Democratic Legislature in New York State would have to be borne in mind. Should Senator Root resign his present office, his successor would be named by the next New York Legislature.

Mr. Root, who is a member of the Ballinger Joint Congressional Committee, indicated that there would be no majority report for some time. He touched upon the New York political position tersely while at the Executive offices, whither he had been accompanied by Secretary Norton.

"I believe the New York Republicans have followed the only logical course open to them," said the Senator. "It seems to me that we have a fighting chance to win."

When the tariff was mentioned the Senator declared that in his opinion there would not be another omnibus Tariff bill, but that revisions hereafter would be schedule by schedule, something as President Taft has recommended.

Denial was made to-day at the Executive offices of a New York story that the President contemplates going forthwith to Panama to investigate alleged irregularities in arrangements for the sale and consumption of coal in the Canal Zone. The President still has a trip to the Isthmus in November under consideration, but it is for the purpose of inspecting the construction work and particularly of learning the facts about the big slide in the Culebra cut. He will probably decide in the course of the week whether he will take the trip.

Secretary Norton accompanied Senator Root to Boston and will spend the night there. Mrs. Norton left Beverly to-day and will proceed to Washington to make household arrangements for the Winter.

HUGHES NOW A JUSTICE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The oath of office as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States was administered to-day to Charles E. Hughes, who on last Thursday resigned the office of Governor of New York to take his place on the bench. The Supreme Court, which was in session only eight minutes then adjourned until to-morrow, out of respect to the memory of the late Chief Justice, Melville W. Fuller.

Every available seat in the little courtroom was occupied by perons especially interested in the events of the opening day. The mother, the wife, and the daughter of the new Justice were the first of the relatives of the members of the court to arrive. They came fully half an hour before the court convened. Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary Nagel represented the Cabinet.

Mr. Hughes followed Justices Harlan, White, McKenna, Holmes, Day, and Lurton as they entered the courtroom in procession. Behind the New York ex-Governor came Justice Brown, now retired but formerly a member of the Supreme Court.

Presiding Justice Harlan announced as soon as the members of the court had taken their places that the President had appointed Mr. Hughes to the bench; that the Senate had confirmed the nomination, and that Mr. Hughes was present. He directed Clerk McKenney, by whom Mr. Hughes was seated, to read the latter's commission.

"The court extends a cordial welcome," said Justice Harlan, as the Clerk finished reading.

He then directed the new member to take the oath of office, the oath of allegiance having already been administered in the robing room, a few minutes before. Mr. Hughes read the oath in impressive manner, and at its conclusion repeated after the Clerk the words, "So help me God." Then Marshal Wright escorted the new Justice to his seat.

"Since its last session this court has sustained a very great loss," he said. "The earthly career of the Chief Justice has been closed by death. This sad event occurred on the 4th day of July of the present year at his Summer residence, after nearly twenty-three years of continuous and distinguished service on this bench. He met the final summons with that calmness of spirit and composure of mind that marked his whole life.

"From his early manhood he walked in the Good Way, uprightly before God and his fellow-men, and passed from this life into the life beyond the grave in the confident belief, I doubt not, that the Maker and Ruler of the earth ordereth all things aright. This court—indeed, the Nation—will miss him, but the memory of his stainless life will ever remain with his countrymen as a priceless heritage."

BRADY CUT HIS WIFE OFF.

Shot Her Just Before He Died and She Now Seeks More of His Estate.

Mrs. Wynetta Brady, whose late husband, Arthur Brady, a chronic invalid twice her own age, shot her as she was alighting from a horse at their home at Golden Bridge, Westchester, after a visit to town to get a nurse for him last May, appeared before Surrogate Millard yesterday to oppose the probate of her husband's will. She says that, despite her many years of untiring care and nursing, Brady cut her off with $2,500 out of his estate of $120,000, leaving the bulk of his fortune to their son Arthur, now 4 years old, when he reaches his majority.

At the time of the shoting last May Brady was sitting in an invalid chair near the door, already in the last stages of a consuming disease. The bullet struck his wife in the right shoulder, and she fell from her horse unconscious. Her husband, thinking that he had killed her, died shortly afterward.

Surrogate Millard said he would consider the substitution of another administrator for the present one, a brother of her husband, who, Mrs. Brady says, is opposed to her. The case was adjourned two weeks.

STRANGER GOT HIS $800.

Seattle Man an Easy Victim of an Old, Old Trick.

Elwood McClain of 256 West Twenty-second Street appeared in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday before Magistrate Herrman as complainant against a man described as George Wallace of 286 East Twenty-ninth Street, whom he charged with grand larceny.

McClain, who arrived in New York recently from Seattle, Wash., said that on Sept. 1 he formed a chance acquaintance with two strangers in Broadway, and with them went to the Republican Club, in West Fortieth Street, where they met Wallace, who was introduced to him as the manager of the club.

After having drinks they all went to the Park Avenue Hotel, and some one suggested matching coins. McClain says he lost $65, all he had with him. He went on playing, and won $200. Being asked to show that amount before he could receive his winnings, he went to the bank and drew $800. He says he handed this to Wallace, who was acting as stakeholder. Shortly afterward Wallace went out, saying he would be back in a few minutes. The others then excused themselves and left. McClain says he became suspicious and reported the matter to the Central Office, and there picked out a photograph as that of the man who had taken his money. On the information he gave the detectives Wallace was arrested on Saturday night. He was lined up with several other prisoners in court, and was identified by McClain. He was held in $1,500 bail for examination to-morrow.

RULE FOR MOTHERS-IN-LAW.

Court Says Sons-in-Law Aren't Obliged to Support Them.

"Some women seem to think that when they marry a man they can saddle their whole family on him," remarked Magistrate Harris in the Domestic Relations Court yesterday. "That's altogether wrong.

"A man is not obliged to support his mother-in-law. If a wife does not want to live with her husband separately, the husband is not required to support her unless she can prove that she left him because he acted improperly, or was brutal in his treatment of her. If she leaves him without cause, she must support herself."

His remarks were called out by the testimony in the case of Louise Stockey against her husband, George A. Stockey, a member of the New York Fire Department. They had been married four years when differences occurred between the twain. Stockey went to live with one of his relatives, and his wife remained with her mother.

After hearing some of the evidence in the case, Magistrate Harris adjourned the case until Oct. 25, in the hope that in the meanwhile the Stockeys may be reconciled.

INVESTIGATE LOAN COMPANY.

Receiver of the Inter-State Co-Operative Can't Find Its Officers.

An inquiry was conducted yesterday in the office of United States Commissioner Alexander, in the Post Office Building, into the affairs of the Inter-State Co-operative Building and Loan Association, for which United States Circuit Court Judge Holt appointed a receiver on Saturday. Stenographers and clerks testified that as late as Friday evening officers of the company were present at its office, 261 Broadway, and that its furniture and books were still in the place.

The receiver has been unsuccessful in serving the officers with legal papers. One stenographer testified that late last week the officers prepared chattel mortgages on its movable property, but she was unable to say whether these mortgages had been executed.

The receiver said that fifty or more investors in the company who had not heard of the proceedings called at its offices yesterday to pay weekly installments on securities.

COMMUNION SERVICE STOLEN.

Thief Gets Silver Vessels from an Ozone Park Church.

The members of Christ Reformed Episcopal Church of South Ozone Park, L. I., have organized themselves into a corps of detectives and are searching for the thief who stole a silver communion service that was recently presented to the congregation by William J. Morris, one of the trustees. It was stolen on Saturday night, it is believed, but only members of the congregation knew of the theft until yesterday, when the police of Queens were asked to aid in the search for the thief.

The communion service was the only thing taken by the thief. It was valued at several hundred dollars. It was usually taken out of the church and placed for safe-keeping during the week in the home of Joseph J. Suller, treasurer of the church, but last week it was overlooked.

CUP RACE SEPARATES A PAIR.

Woman Who Was In an Auto Accident Is Sued for Divorce.

A suit for divorce has been started by Edward J. Brandley, a letter carrier, of 122 Wickliff Street, Newark, against Mrs. Rose Brandley, who is at present living at 985 Broad Street, that city.

While in an automobile party that attended the recent Vanderbilt Cup races in which Mrs. Brandley figured there was an odd accident. While assisting Mrs. Brandley from the automobile, Guido O. Groebe, President of the Groebe-McGovern Printing Company of Clinton Street, Newark, was injured in the right eye by the woman's hatpin. Groebe is in the Newark Eye and Ear Infirmary and it is feared that he may lose the sight of the eye.

CHICAGO CHURCH CENSUS.

City Has 900,000 Regular Church Attendants, 475,000 Irregular.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—An estimate of Chicago's church census, taken Saturday and Sunday, was made to-day. It shows:

Number of persons reached, 2,000,000; number without church preference, 175,000; regular church attendants, 900,000; irregular attendants, 475,000; number with membership letters, but out of touch with churches, 450,000; refused to give information, 1,000.

The complete classification of the data will require another week. The census was taken by 12,000 workers representing 800 churches.

GAYNOR RETURNS TO THE CITY HALL

SUPT. MAXWELL HECKLED

Long List of Questions Puts to Him as to the Money He Wants for the Schools.

Mayor Gaynor returned to City Hall yesterday and presided for a short time at the hearing held by the Board of Estimate on the budget for next year. He walked from his home in Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, to the end of the Brooklyn Bridge and then took a trolley car across to Park Row.

After putting in a busy day attending to the business which had piled up during his absence from his office the Mayor left on foot at 3:30 o'clock. He said he intended to walk to his home, and would be at the hall early this morning.

While the Mayor is progressing to recovery, he is by no means entirely well, and may have to take rests frequently for some weeks. His physicians have cautioned him against too continuous strain of office work, and have urged him to take as much recreation as possible.

Referring to a published statement that Mayor Gaynor was leaving his duties in perfect health and going off to amuse himself, a friend remarked yesterday that such assertions were unjust to the Mayor and annoying to him. The ordeal through which he passed has undoubtedly made a severe impression on his nervous system, and it will take some time for him to recover. It is believed that all that saved the Mayor was his vigor and endurance due to years of regular exercise.

The budget hearing was devoted entirely to the Board of Education, and was enlivened by the heckling of Supt. of Schools Maxwell and several of the auditors of the board by Mrs. Mathilde Ford, an examiner in the Bureau of Municipal Investigation and Statistics of the Department of Finance, who has to do principally with school matters. She demanded that they explain their figures in detail, and indicated clearly that she was not satisfied with many of the answers given.

A large number of firemen of all grades were on hand when the hearing opened to plead for the allowance of the increases in their pay next year which Commissioner Waldo placed in his estimate on the tentative authorization of the Board of Estimate some time ago. They were not heard, however, it having been decided to devote the entire day to the Board of Education.

Mrs. Ford occupied a seat on the dais between Controller Prendergast and President Mitchel of the Aldermen. At the opening of the hearing she said:

"I am satisfied, from my examination of the payroll of the Board of Education, that the allowances for teachers' salaries could be cut $400,000 without any harm resulting to the schools."

President Mitchel inquired of Dr. Maxwell how much the estimate for the salaries of teachers in special branches could be cut.

"That is a difficult question to answer," replied the Superintendent. "I consider the teaching of cooking and things like that a very important matter, and the musical corps has been doing very good work. Physical training I believe to be a necessity and of even greater importance to the children than mathematics or languages."

"How about eliminating the languages?" asked the President.

"I would not, if I have my way," replied the Superintendent. "Our German citizens, for instance, would oppose the elimination of their language from the list of studies."

Mrs. Ford then questioned the Superintendent at length about the general competence of the teachers in the general and special classes. He said that the New York Training School teachers were much more competent in the special work than those from out of town. She wanted to know if the teachers could not be assigned to the work which they could do best, thus making the employment of special teachers unnecessary, but he did not seem to look favorably upon the idea.

The principal part of the afternoon session was devoted to recreation centres, and the Superintendent said they had done a great deal of good in taking boys off the streets and keeping girls away from dance halls and moving-picture shows.

BULL ESTATE WORTH $339,147

This Valuation Fixed on the Surgeon's Property by Appraisers.

Dr. William T. Bull, the celebrated surgeon, who died on Feb. 22, 1909, left an estate of $339,147, according to an appraisal filed yesterday in the transfer tax office. Of this estate, $162,596 was the gross personalty, which, with expenses of administration, charges for fees, and debts, was reduced to $125,398.

Dr. Bull's property at 35, 37, and 39 West Thirty-fifth Street was appraised at $243,750, on which there is a $30,000 mortgage. Among the personal property were sixteen 4½ per cent. Japanese bonds valued at $7,153; 108 shares United States Steel preferred, $11,664; 125 shares United States Steel common, $5,437, and 170 shares of the Newport Gaslight Company, $30,600.

Some of these securities have increased in value since the appraisal was made.

AUTO FALLS INTO RAVINE.

Only One of Its Five Passengers Seriously Hurt—Steering Gear Broke.

While being operated along the State Road opposite the Loeb Memorial Home in Eastview by K. B. Connors of Rye, a touring car crashed into a ravine on Sunday night. Connors and a party of four, including two women, were traveling toward White Plains when the steering gear broke.

The car turned over twice and landed about 30 feet from the top of the bank. The forward axle and hood were smashed. The occupants were thrown clear of the car, the only one hurt being a woman whose name could not be learned. Her right arm was broken. The others escaped with bruises.

IMPORTER HEGNER INDICTED.

Charged with Defrauding the Government by False Invoices.

Herman Hegner, a member of the importing firm of William M. Fliteman & Co. of Broome Street, was brought before Judge Hand in the United States Court yesterday to answer to an indictment charging him with having defrauded the United States out of $98.76 by entering goods into this country on false and fraudulent invoices. Hegner was held in $2,500 bail, this amount being asked because the Grand Jury is still at work on his case, and the amount of the customs fraud under inquiry is understood to be many times the sum which the indictment names.

The indictment places the date of the alleged violation as Feb. 28, 1910, and declares that the goods brought in on the false invoice were silks and laces. It charges also that Hegner, while causing the name of William M. Fliteman to be signed to the false invoices, had a secret invoice which set forth the actual value of the goods.

ROSENBERG'S FORFEIT BAIL.

Brothers Accused of Customs Fraud Fail to Appear—Their $20,000 Held.

Judge Hand, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday forfeited the $20,000 bail put up by Jules and Hugo Rosenberg, in sums of $10,000 each, to insure their appearance to answer to a charge of entering a shipment of imported merchandise at the Custom House at less than its true weight by means of a false invoice. The two defendants, who are members of a large Fifth Avenue millinery firm, were indicted last June, the alleged offense dating back to 1905.

At the time the two Rosenbergs were indicted it was explained in their behalf that they wanted to go to Europe, and so the large bail was asked and given, although the difference between the Government's valuation of the merchandise that caused the trouble and the value as stated in the invoice, which the Government says was false, amounted to out $224. A brother of Jules and Hugo Rosenberg, who was indicted at the same time, was in Paris when the other two were arraigned, and has never been arrested.

The offense with which the three men are charged is not extraditable, so there is nothing for the Federal authorities to do but to sit down and wait for developments. Inasmuch as their business is going on as usual, the Government prosecutors are disposed to believe that the Rosenbergs will eventually come back.

SAVES CHILDREN AT FIRE.

Iceman Cheered as He Rescues Two Sick Youngsters.

A great crowd, watching a fire in the Royal Hat Store on the ground floor of a five-story tenement at 49 Avenue A yesterday, witnessed the rescues of two children and later the flight of a pickpocket, who escaped.

Blazing rubbish in the rear of the store sent up a cloud of smoke that drove out the tenants of the building. On the second floor were the children of John Heise, Elsie, 4 years old, and John, 5. Both were ill with tonsilitis. Adam Schaffler, an ice dealer a few doors away, rushed to the Heise appartment to find the mother absent. Elsie was asleep and John crying with fright.

Schaffler seized both youngsters and, crawling out on to the fire escapes with them, made his way along the narrow coping to the adjoining tenement, where he was hauled into the window, while the crowd cheered heartily.

At the south side of the second floor Mrs. Ida Brugger was scheaming for help. She is 78 years old and weighs more than 200 pounds. Fireman Frederick Hopper of Engine 25 and William Vogel of 61 Avenue A tried to get her out of her apartment, but she screamed that she had $100 in the kitchen cupboard. Hoffman assured her that if she went to the street he would get her money, but she tried to return to the kitchen. Hoffman and Vogel finally forced her down the stairs and Hoffman returned and got the money.

A pickpocket tried to steal the purse of a man in the crowd, and when a cry was raised the pickpocket fled through Fourth Street and escaped over tenement roofs. The damage to the store was about $1,000.

Wanzer Again Tells of Vice Crusade.

Claude Wanzer, an Inspector of the Commissioner of Accounts' office, was again on the stand yesterday at the trial of Police Captain John J. O'Brien, who, as Inspector at Coney Island, is alleged to have failed to suppress vice. Under cross-examination by George W. Morgan, counsel for O'Brien, Wanzer retold how he collected evidence at Coney Island resorts. He again declared he spent $82 in four days for drinks, tips, and cab hire.

TO INDICT GALLAGHER TO-DAY

Justice Swayze Expected to Charge Grand Jury on the Gaynor Shooting.

Prosecutor Garven of Hudson County will confer to-day with Justice Swayze and Judges Blair and Carey regarding the case of James Gallagher, who shot Mayor Gaynor last August. He said he would be guided by the advice of the three Judges in presenting Gallagher's case to the Grand Jury.

A short time ago Justice Swayze advised the Grand Jury not to take up the Gallagher case until the doctors who attended Mayor Gaynor had reported officially his condition. On Saturday last Dr. William J. Arlitz of Hoboken, representing the Mayor's attending physicians, reported the Mayor out of danger.

After his conference to-day with his associates and Prosecutor Garven, Justice Swayze will meet the Grand Jury, and it is expected will issue a special charge on the shooting of Mayor Gaynor.

Customs Employe Killed in Subway.

At the 177th Street and Boston Road station of the Subway yesterday morning a laborer employed in the Custom House, Michael J. Morgan of 168 West Sixty-fifth Street, was struck and instantly killed by a southbound train. The police believe the man fell asleep in a northbound train and getting off at 177th Street started to cross the tracks to get to the southbound platform. Motorman John Buckley was unable to stop his train in time, and it was necessary to jack up the first car before the body could be extracted.

Find Another New Hampshire Victim.

The body of another victim of the "New Hampshire" disaster a week ago Saturday was found in the Hudson River yesterday off 180th Street. The body was that of Carl Ericks, seaman, 21 years old. The body was taken to the United States steamship Salem and the Coroner notified.

IN HIS WILL

FIFTH: I nominate and appoint the Title Guarantee and Trust Company as sole executor of this my Will. I make this designation not from any lack of confidence in either the honesty or ability of my children, but because I believe that an institution of that character is best fitted to manage and settle estates.

There are many others who would be wise to make such a Will at once.

THINKS AN IMPULSE TRICKED PROF. PECK

Miss Quinn Certain He Told Her That Was What Led to His Second Marriage.

IDEALIZED HIM, SHE SAYS

But It Was a Sad Shock When He Wedded Another Without Telling Her.

Esther Quinn, the stenographer who is suing Harry Thurston Peck, the former Columbia professor, for breach of promise, gave small satisfaction to Peck and his attorneys when she was examined yesterday before trial. She described two scenes in Prof. Peck's office at Columbia University after his second marriage. At the first he neglected to tell her that he had married another. When he did break the news, she said, she became hysterical, and she described Prof. Peck as saying:

"Hush! Hush! There is nothing to cry about."

He persuaded her, she said, to go into a private room, where the stenographer could not hear her sobs.

"He told me that he had married his present wife on impulse and that he didn't love her," she said. "The whole affair of his marriage, he said, was obnoxious to him. He said he married her merely to have a housekeeper and that he still loved me."

Miss Quinn answered Peck's counsel tartly when he questioned her about various restaurants and hotels where she had dined. She admitted having dined with Peck at the Cadillac, the Café Martin, and the Hotel Astor. She was emphatic in her denial that she had ever been at Rector's.

In her testimony Miss Quinn, who admitted that she was at least 31 years old, showed the self-possession of the experienced business woman. She fixed the date of Peck's proposal as Sept. 15, 1908, twelve days after his first wife had obtained her divorce. Peck, she said, told her that he had not been living with his first wife for some time. Attorney Francis then asked her:

"Did you consider him under any obligations to you prior to Sept. 15?"

"No," replied Miss Quinn.

"But you received some of these alleged letters prior to that day, didn't you?" Mr. Francis added.

There was a heated discussion over the use of the word "alleged," and Miss Quinn answered finally that she had received some of the "Dearest Esther" correspondensce before that date, but had not considered it as binding Prof. Peck to marry her.

"You consider this an innocent correspondence for a single woman to receive from another woman's husband?"

"That depends on the point of view. No other man ever made love to me for four years and then suddenly told me he was married."

"How do you explain that Prof. Peck had not talked of marriage prior to Sept. 15?"

"You'll have to ask him. He's the one who proposed."

"Didn't you have any hesitancy over marrying a divorced man with a family?" Mr. Francis asked.

"No," replied Miss Quinn. "He had won all my affections. I had given him all my life. Why should I hesitate? I felt he had some conscience in immediately offering himself to me."

"But wasn't it very soon to propose after the divorce?"

"I idealized Dr. Peck, and if he thought it was right to propose to me then I thought it was right to accept."

Miss Quinn said that Prof. Peck had always treated her with respect. She said she always insisted on it and received it from every one.

"Then Dr. Peck was always a gentleman?" asked his lawyer.

"He acted the part. I always thought he was a gentleman, but when a man promises to marry a girl and then secretly marries another woman I wouldn't call him a gentleman."

Daniel O'Reilly, Miss Quinn's counsel, in whose offices the examination was held, jumped into the dialogue when Miss Quinn hesitated at telling how long she had known her lawyer.

"She's known me over twenty years," volunteered O'Reilly. "We used to go to school together and lived opposite each other."

Miss Quinn said that Peck had never given her an engagement ring, but had bought her a gold bracelet from a Fifth Avenue jeweler. She showed signs of intense indignation when she was asked whether she knew that undesirable persons lived above her in apartments in West 134th Street.

The name of Russell Griswold, who sued a Connecticut woman for breach of promise and gave letters written by her to newspapers, was brought into the hearing. Miss Quinn denied knowing Griswold and also a reporter for a Park Row newspaper, who, according to O'Reilly, was asked to procure Peck's letters to Miss Quinn.

Miss Quinn also said that though she had met reporters, "singly, in parties, and in droves," when she was in Boston working for B. H. Scheftels & Co., her mother was always present when they called, and that she remembered none of them by name. It was said that several Boston reporters will be called to testify for Peck when the case is brought to trial.

The examination will be continued to-day.

McANENY CUTS EXPENSES.

Reduces the 1911 Allowance for His Department $361,000.

Borough President McAneny of Manhattan has submitted to the Board of Estimate his estimate on the amount of money it will take to run his office and the various bureaus under it for next year, cutting the appropriation made for the department for this year $361,000, or a net decrease of 13.2 per cent.

The heaviest single cut is in the payroll of the office, $218,000, or about 13 per cent. The allowance for fuel for public buildings is reduced from $107,000 to $65,000. Reductions of about $10,000 are made in the contingent fund and about $35,000 in the miscellaneous supply account.

SAVING RIVERSIDE FRONT.

Land Under Water the Length of the Drive to be Reclaimed.

Both Park Commissioner Stover and Dock Commissioner Tomkins, to whom has been referred the project of reclaiming land between the New York Central tracks and the North River along Riverside Drive, and arcading the Drive across the tracks to the new land, are most enthusiastic over the prospect, but in reporting to the Sinking Fund Commission for approval of the plan, they will recommend slow procedure in carrying it out. They realize that it would cost the city many millions of dollars, and that any great immediate expenditure is out of the question. It will probably be many years before the arcade could be brought anywhere near completion. The Commissioners will recommend the commencement at once the reclamation of the water front by utilizing the city's excavated material, which is now dumped at sea, or deposited on Riker's Island.

It is believed that the New York Central will look favorably upon the plan. Some such proposal was in one of the Eleventh Avenue track elimination bills before the Legislature last year, and it was said at that time that the road would agree to the building of the arcade if a satisfactory division of the cost could be made.

"The Park Department has had under consideration for a long time the plan of reclaiming this long strip of land under water between Seventy-second and 129th Streets," said Commissioner Stover. "It seems, however, that hitheto the great cost of the work has frightened the city officials. I believe, however, that the pressure upon the Manhattan parks through the increase in population, has now become so great that it is high time that this filling in work be commenced.

"I am entertaining the idea that the great mass of rock and dirt to be soon excavated in the construction of new subways may be used for this purpose."

WIRELESS CO. LETTERS GONE

President Christopher C. Wilson of the United Wireless Telegraph Company came before the United States Circuit Court yesterday once more on charges of failure to produce books wanted by the Federal Grand Jury, which is conducting a new inquiry into United Wireless affairs. On the former occasion the President of the company and all its Directors were called before Judge Hand because they said they could not find certain stock ledgers which the Government was anxious to get. Judge Hand adjudged them all in contempt, and the ledgers were mysteriously brought in from somewhere and delivered to the wireless concern.

This time Col. Wilson came up before Judge Hand because the Directors of his company had placed in his custody as President certain letterpress books which he, being under indictment, had refused to produce on a Grand Jury subpoena. Col. Wilson, who now is represented by John B. Stanchfield, based his refusal on the claim that the Government was violating his constitutional rights in this matter and making him testify against himself.

When the matter came before Judge Hand yesterday morning he told Mr. Stanchfield to come into court in the afternoon prepared to meet the presentment of the Grand Jury, which declared Col. Wilson in contempt. At the appointed hour the attorney appeared with his client and suggested that inasmuch as an appeal would be taken from the decision of uJdge Hand anyway, a pro forma contempt order be issued on which bail could be given, and then an appeal taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals. This procedure was followed with the agreement of all parties

PRISON FOR LITERARY ROBBER

Man Who Left Notes for His Victims Must Serve Twenty-one Years.

George Wright, alias James Fuller and John Backer, as "The Literary Burglar of Westchester," pleaded guilty to burglary in the first degree and was sentenced yesterday to twenty-one years in Sing Sing by Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions. Stewart H. Hemphill of 341 Pugsley Avenue, the Bronx, charged Wright with breaking into his home on Aug. 25 and threatening him with a revolver. Previous to this Wright had robbed the house of Paul G. Decker.

Wright was arrested by Policeman Burke late on the night of Aug. 28 on the Unionport Road. Burke saw Wright hiding in a doorway and questioned him. Wright said, "Oh, my name is Barnes, and I live at 1,355 Benedict Avenue."

"You're a liar," replied Burke. "That's where I live."

Wright started to run, and when Burke ordered him to stop he turned and fired a shot. The policeman returned the fire, and after running a few more steps Wright surrendered.

Wright was called "the literary burglar," because he always left notes to the tenants of houses he robbed, thanking them for what he had stolen and saying that if the opportunity offered he would call again.

MANY NEW DEVICES AT ELECTRICAL SHOW

A WIDE RANGE OF RANGES

Brilliant with hundreds of thousands of lights was Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon when the fourth annual Electric Show opened for ten days. Ceilings, walls, balconies, and stairways were draped in soft green and white, great decorative chandeliers hung from the girders, while around the balconies were lamp standards green and white. The decorations were much more attractive than those in any previous show.

The exhibits, too, seemed to be more varied—of more general interest. The New York Edison Company has a large space, but by no means does it monopolize the show, nor does it display any apparatus. Electrical supply companies, manufacturers of all sorts, including makers of automobiles, of pumps, and of large machinery, have exhibits.

But probably of greatest interest for the great crowd which filled the Garden was the large display of electrical aids to the housekeeper. There appeared to be more of such things, and these shown seemed to be more practical applications of electricity to everyday affairs. There were stoves, individual cookers, air purifiers, vacuum cleaners, heaters, flatirons, curling irons, portable lights, and all sorts of attractive little things for the home.

Ae device to purify water with ozone was a novelty that attracted much attention. This consists of a small machine for the manufacture of ozone, which is connected by a small tube with an ordinary kitchen faucet. The ozone enters the water as it leaves the spout, oxidizing the impurities and, according to the demonstrators, killing most of the microbes.

An electric and instantaneous water heater, that can be attached anywhere that an electrical current is available, attracted many persons. This consists of a series of coils that fit over the faucet. The coils are heated by the current and the water is in turn heated from the coils. It is claimed that this device will heat a bathtub of water at a very low cost.

There was a wide range of electrical ranges. Some were built like gas ranges, with ovens and places for saucepans. A demonstration showed that they possessed all the facilities for broiling, baking, and boiling that any other range possesses with the advantage that they require no matches and make no smoke.

The electric laundry was another popular exhibit. Here clothes were washed, rinsed, dried, and ironed by electricity almost without the aid of the laundress who showed how the machines work. A device for ventilating rooms and washing and warming the air at the same time attracted much attention. This machine resembled the familiar type of vacuum cleaner on a large scale. The air is drawn in through a screened opening by an electric fan and passed over coils of heated wire. The temperature, it was said, can be controlled at will. The washing is done by passing the air through water before it reaches the heating coils.

For house lighting at least a hundred types of lights were shown, from a tiny glowing night lamp to a new intensely white incandescent globe. New methods of street lighting were shown, with plans of conduit construction and wiring.

At one end of the great hall was the exhibition of Prof. Ovington, a consulting engineer, whose hobby, according to his own statement, is high-frequency electrical currents. Here he handles millions of volts without fear or discomfort. He said he expects to produce an electric spark 8 feet long when all of his apparatus is working.

Near Prof. Ovington's booth is the orchestra, hidden behind the green and white draperies.

Before the show opened yesterday the management entertained a hundred men prominent in electrical work in New York and the East at a luncheon in the concert hall. The only speaker was George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas Company, who made a short address of welcome to the visitors. J. W. Lieb, Jr., was chairman. Those present included Arthur Williams of the New York Edison Company, N. F. Brady, Thomas E. Murray, W. W. Freeman, George F. Parker, George W. Doane, Benjamin Whiteley, W. G. Hoyt, T. C. Martin, Frank W. Smith, W. B. Dowd, C. F. Lacomb, and J. C. Forsythe.

AUSTEN HOLDS HIS PLACE.

Refuses to Resign for Prendergast, Who Wants Him to Get Out.

Gen. David E. Austen is still the head of the Bureau for the Collection of Taxes in the Department of Finance, despite the evident disposition on the part of Controller Prendergast to terminate his service of more than twenty years.

All Gen. Austen would say of the matter yesterday was that he did not intend to resign and that if the Controller will inform him in what way he has offended in the conduct of the affairs of his office he will answer the charges.

When the Controller was asked about the situation he replied: "There may be a change soon."

THE FOLLOWING LETTER IS SELF-EXPLANATORY.

Gentlemen:—

We wish to notify you that your offer for the entire stock of precious stones, pearls and jewelry of Alfred H. Smith & Co. has been finally accepted. The sale was accomplished with difficulty, because of the small dividend it leaves for the unsecured creditors. But as the amount required to redeem the goods held by the numerous banks as collateral security was so large, the creditors approved the acceptance of the offer, realizing that the actual value of the goods was much greater, but that a buyer could not readily be found for such a large cash transaction.

Yours very truly,

VENEZUELA TROOPS IN SAN CARLOS FORT

Loyal Soldiers Take the Place of Revolters Who Aided Prisoners to Escape.

SIX OFFICERS WERE KILLED

More Than 200 Prisoners Free and Are Now Wandering in the Northern Part of the Republic.

CARACAS, Oct. 10.—Government troops to-day occupy San Carlos Fortress and Prison, on San Carlos Island, at the entrance to Lake Maracaibo, following Friday's insubordination, when a portion of the troops conspired with the prisoners and some of the latter escaped.

No political importance is attached by the Government to the revolt.

WILLEMSTAD, Curaçao, Oct. 10.—Capt. Johansson of the American Red D Line steamship Merida, who brought the first news of the revolt of prisoners at the San Carlos Fortress, to-day gave further details of the affair.

According to reports which he gathered, six officers wee killed, but Gen. Pato Gomez, a brother of President Gomez and Warden of the prison, escaped by assuming a disguise.

The soldiers' barracks and the General's quarters were burned and 200 prisoners, some of whom had been incarcerated because of their allegiance to the cause of ex-President Castro, escaped. These are reported to be wandering about the northern part of the republic, and there are many unconfirmed rumors concerning their whereabouts and intentions toward the Government.

The Merida arrived off San Carlos Island at 7 A. M. Oct. 7, and found a fire raging on the island and the flag over the fortress at half mast. A boat was sent ashore, and six armed men waded out, and, pushing the boat back into deeper water, scrambled aboard. They asked to be taken on board the Merida, saying that they were escaped prisoners.

At the same time heavy firing was heard and men could be seen fighting outside the fortress. Capt. Johansson refused to permit the escaped men to board the Merida, but put them on a pilot boat, which subsequently sailed down the bay.

The Merida proceeded to Maracaibo apparently carrying the first news of the revolt. Later in the day Capt. Johansson was notified that the Government was in possession of the fortress, and he obtained permission to proceed. The Merida returned to San Carlos, arriving there at 7 A. M. Saturday. The ruins were still smoking, but all was quiet. A white flag was flying, but there was no sign of the troops.

FIND BOY'S BODY IN AQUEDUCT

90,000,000 Gallons of Water Transferred Before Plenty Lad Is Recovered

Equipped with lanterns, ropes, and rakes, Richard L. Blake, engineer of the Highbridge division of the Croton Aqueduct, and his helper, Edward D. Magassney, entered the aqueduct at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, after the water had drained down from its usual depth of eight feet to one foot, to search for the body of eight-year-old Joseph Plenty of 504 West 130th Street, who fell into the great tube from a narrow three-foot blowout where he had crept for concealment in a game of "Indians and Cowboys" on Saturday afternoon.

Only a few feet south of the end of the blow-out where the boy had fallen they came across the little toy airgun which he had used in his Wild West game. A little later, 150 feet further south, face down in the shallow, sluggish current of the murky, mud-covered tube, they found the boy's body. Magassney carried it back to the end of the blowout, but owing to the height and narrowness of the hole he decided not to send the body up through it by means of a rope, but to carry it 1,500 feet further through the dark aqueduct itself, crossing Highbridge in it to the Highbridge gatehouse, on the Bronx side of the river. From there the body was removed to the West 152d Street station.

It was explained that the boy's body had not drifted further because the current in the aqueduct is sluggish, even when running in full force. From the Croton dam to the gate at 135th Street, forty miles away, there is a grade of only thirty inches. It is believed the body settled and clung to the bottom soon after the accident.

Engineer Blake said it would take eight hours to fill the aqueduct again. The 90,000,000 gallons of water drained off on Sunday, it was said, were not lost, but simply turned into the old reservoir at Central Park for city use after filtering.

AUTOS HIT CAR AND WAGON.

One Driver Was Ill; the Other Was Intoxicated.

"I lost control of the car. I couldn't help it. I lost control of the car," repeated Morris Weinstein, a drug salesman, of 1,501 Southern Boulevard, shifting about restlessly in a chair at the East 126th Street Police Station. He had been arrested for reckless driving, after his automobile, going north on Third avenue at 125th Street, had smashed into a Third Avenue car, damaging the car and wrecking itself.

He acted so strangely that Lieut. Kelleher called for an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital, and when Dr. Richardson arrived Weinstein said he had been suffering from neurasthenia and had bought his automobile to get outdoor air. The surgeon said it was a case of locomotor ataxia.

Jeremiah Wolfert, a chauffeur, of 1,434 Unionport Road, was arraigned in Yorkville Court for operating an automobile while intoxicated. His taxicab, containing four men, smashed a grocery wagon at 207th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, bruised its horse, and slightly injured the driver, Dietrich H. Theesfeld of 2,082 Prospect Avenue.

Wolfert said he was teaching his four friends how to operate a machine. Magistrate Steinert held him in $500 bail for Special Sessions.

FORGOT NAME FOR MONTHS.

Woodhaven, L. I., Youth Back Home with Strange Tale of His Wanderings.

Twenty-one-year-old Carl Thom of Third Street, Woodhaven, L. I., was brought back home yesterday after he had been missing for almost four months. He told a strange tale of his wanderings.

On June 17 Thom, the only support of his widowed mother, left his home in Woodhaven for Oakdale, where he expected to find work on a farm. That evening he was passing the Long Island Railroad station, according to the rambling story he told his mother, and peered into the ticket agent's window to look at the clock. Apparently believing that his intention was sinister, the ticket agent, a young woman, pointed a revolver at Thom, telling him to get out or she would shoot him. Frightened, Thom fled into a near-by woods. There he remained almost a week, he told his mother, living on berries.

After the week in the woods Thom has no very clear idea of what happened to him. He told his mother that he tramped many miles day after day, and that once he spent about two weeks in a hospital, but where he does not know. Neither is he able to tell how he reached Weehawken. He believes he spent about three weeks there. His nights, he says, he spent under any shelter that he could find, and his food consisted principally of odds and ends gathered from garbage cans.

From his condition when found his mother believes that he had had nothing to eat for several days. He was discovered lying in a street gutter by Detective Sergt. Lyons, who took him to Police Headquarters. There he was fed and was able to give his address at Woodhaven. He was unable, however, to remember his name. Lyons himself went to Woodhaven and found the youth's mother, Mrs. Mary Thom. She went to Weehawken and brought her son home yesterday.

Arrives in St. Petersburg—Dinners Given to Him in Moscow.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 10.—Jacob M. Dickinson, the American Secretary of War, and his party arrived here to-day. They were accompanied from Moscow by Willing Spencer, Third Secretary, and Major Stephen Slocum, Military Attaché of the American Embassy here.

At Moscow the Americans were guests at dinner of Baron de Bode, Russian Military Attaché at Washington, and of John H. Snodgrass, American Consul General, whose guests also included prominent officials and citizens.

CHOLERA CONTINUES IN ITALY

Twenty-three New Cases—Syndic Says Palermo Is Free from Epidemic.

ROME, Oct. 10.—The official report on the cholera situation for the past twenty-four hours shows a total of twenty-three new cases, of which eight were in the Province of Caserta, thirteen in the Province of Naples, one in Rome, and one in the Province of Salerno.

In the same period seven deaths occurred, of which two were in the Province of Caserta and five in the Province of Naples.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I herewith beg to inform you that the news about cases of cholera in Palermo, as printed in several newspapers, is quite without foundation. As a matter of fact, the town has not been touched at all by the epidemic, and the sanitary conditions are most excellent.

WANT INHERITANCE NOW.

Five Heirs to $100,000 Ask Court to Set Will Aside—Are in Dire Need.

Struggling with poverty, though heirs to an ample fortune, the five children of Mrs. John Rastetter, through Mrs. Louise Mais-Wagner, filed in the Supreme Court in Long Island City yesterday papers in an action to break the will of Franz Rastetter, who died in August, 1908, tying up his property so it could not be divided until the youngest is 30 years old. That time will not arrive for twenty-six years, and in the meantime the children are suffering.

The children, who range in age from 4 to 9 years, live with their mother at 11 North Henry Street, Astoria. Mrs. Mais-Wagner alleges that Franz Rastetter made a will dividing his property between his daughter, Barbara Schmidt, and the children of their deceased son, John. She asserts that it will be a hardship to ask them to wait twenty-six years for their inheritance, that a small sum now would be worth more than great wealth later on.

The property involved is at 530 to 534 East Eighty-third Street, Manhattan; 2,795 Marion Avenue, the Bronx, and accounts in four savings banks, said to be valued in all at about $100,000.

Taft Frees Man Whose Destitute Family Judge and Attorney Aided.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Max Cohen, who on April 5 was sentenced to eighteen months in jail and to pay a fine of $100 for working an illicit distillery in New York City, was pardoned to-day by President Taft.

The trial judge and the District Attorney have been aiding his destitute family, and the President acted on their recommendations.

German Socialists to Speak Here.

Among the passengers who landed yesterday from the North German Lloyd liner George Washington was Dr. Karl Liebknecht, Socialist leader in the Prussian Diet, and Dr. A. Suderkum, Socialist member of the Reichstag, who have come to deliver a series of lectures. Speaking of the speech of the Kaiser on divine right, Dr. Liebknecht said that it had made thousands of Socialists throughout Germany. He predicted that the German election of 1912 would show a great increase in the Socialist strength.

A Specialty Store for Knit and Woven Underwear

Like all the stocks in this Congress of Stores, the Knit Underwear is in the charge of an approved specialist who has given to the study of that one line the energies of his entire business life.

To his experience and to his profound knowledge of the manufacturers here and abroad, we have given the amplest power of expression. It is a commonplace to say that our lines are "complete." They are far more than merely complete. They are rich in novelties, rife with the unusual, replete with specialties.

If you care what you wear next your skin Gimbels' Knit Underwear Store will especially please the man or woman who has preferences or peculiarities as to the underwear wanted. If the weight, character, model or material desired is made anywhere in the world by a maker of proved reliability and in a grade worthy of this store, it will be found here.

Occupying prominent positions in our stocks will be found full lines of representative makes of Knit and Woven Underwear from

Switzerland England
Germany France

The Gimbel Specialty Millinery Stores

THE utmost that any advertiser can do with this subject is to admit that he can do nothing with it and to explain why. The Gimbel Millinery Stores cannot be described, because they contain the indescribable. Who can picture a Paris hat in words—to say nothing of a collection of two or three hundred of them that changes like a kaleidoscope with the passing of every day and the arrival of every steamer? And for every Paris-made hat here there are at least a hundred others of our own production!

As with many other stocks in this Congress of Stores we must leave the best unsaid and confine our story to plain facts that are easy to give.

Instead of Phrases, Facts

Following our usual policy, our millinery is divided into nine classes, with an expert at the head of each division. There are

Two Divisions of Trimmed Millinery
Two Divisions of Untrimmed Millinery
Two Divisions of Flowers and Feathers
Two Divisions of General Millinery Trimmings
One Division Specializing in Paris Hats

And in addition to these is the Gimbel Millinery Workroom—in size and organization unusual if not unparalleled.

And, controlling and invigorating all are the fashion genius, the trained taste, the skill and the originality of our millinery chiefs and their designers. Behind them is Paris, whose earliest whisper as to new ideas is caught and sent at once by our "millinery detectives" there.

"No Charge Millinery Service"

We offer to all purchasers here of untrimmed hats and millinery trimmings the free service of expert designers and milliners, who will finish the hat to your satisfaction, making as many alterations as are necessary to secure your full approval. No charge whatever.

PLEADS FOR JEWS TO EPISCOPALIANS

Dr. Grosvenor Argues Against Propaganda to Convert Them from Hebrew Faith.

A HEARING ON DIVORCE

Bishops at Episcopal Convention Will Take Up on Thursday Subject of Allowing Remarriage.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 10.—The Episcopal House of Bishops decided this afternoon to hear on Thursday the arguments to change the canons of the church which provide that nobody who is divorced can remarry in the church. The members of both houses stated here to-day that they expect there will be many arguments for and against the change.

An appeal to the Church not to endeavor to convert the Jews was made by the Rev. William M. Grosvenor, rector of the Church of the Incarnation of New York City, who made a stirring address before the House of Deputies. The suggestion had been made that a separate branch of the Christian Church be made for the Jews, but this was opposed by the committee, on the ground that such an arrangement would tend to widen the breach between the Jew and the Gentile.

"I am the rector of a parish in the greatest Jewish city in the world—New York City," said Dr. Grosvenor. "There I am glad to teach any Jew who wants to know more about Christ. But the time for a special propaganda for corporate resolutions concerning the Jew from such a body as this is past. The only way the Jew will ever come into the unity of the Christian Church is when he has had an opportunity to experience a few centuries of Christian tolerance, Christian tact, and Christian justice.

"The Jew knows what the Christian has been to him during the centuries. It has not been a history full of joy. The Jew has suffered inquisition, persecution, and crowding into pales and ghettos. In America, the Jew is doing his best to fit into American institutions. The time is past when we should single out Jews as particularly in need of conversion. After the Jews have experienced a long period of Christian mercy, justice, and brotherly love, then the Christian Church may well look to them for converts."

Action on the matter was deferred.

The house of Bishops decided that Jews who have been converted may continue their rites and practices providing they do it as a matter of morality or for sanitary reasons, but not as a matter of religion.

A resolution introduced a few days ago to change the form of the prayer on Good Friday so as to substitute for "Jews, Turks, infidels and heretics," the words, "those who are without the true faith," received a favorable vote to-day, and final passage seems assured.

By a unanimous vote the House of Deputies this afternoon provided a plan to divide the Diocese of Pittsburg and to create a new diocese in that city.

This evening was held the banquet of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, at which many Bishops and prominent clergymen and laymen of the church were present. H. D. W. English of Pittsburg acted as the toastmaster. Bishop Charles Edward Woodcock of Louisville and George Wharton Pepper were among the speakers. Among the Bishops present were Tuttle of St. Louis, Greer of New York, McCormack of Michigan, Reese of Georgia, Garrett of Dallas, Texas; Spalding of Utah, Johnson of San Antonio, Texas; Olmstead of Denver, Whitehead of Pittsburg, Kinsloving of Brazil, Nichols of San Francisco, Vinton of Springfield, Mass.; Webb of Milwaukee; Wood of Florida, Talbot of Bethlehem, Mass.; Mass of North Dakota, Bowster of Western Colorado, Grawold of Salina, Ala.; Adams of Maryland, Nelson of Atlanta, Funston of Idaho, Doane of Albany, Edsall of Minnesota, Anderson of Iowa, Schadding of Oregon, Johnson of Los Angeles, and Kennick of Arizona.

The proposal to change the name of the Church to read "Holy Catholic Church" was made at the session to-day by George Wharton Pepper. The resolution was referred to a committee, and will be acted upon at the proper time. Speaking for his resolution Mr. Pepper said: "The Roman Catholic Church is using the word 'Protestant' in our title in furtherance of its exclusive claim to Catholicacy. Therefore I think this name a much better one than that we are now using."

PROTEST OF A TAXPAYER.

Bronx Property Owner Interrupts President Purdy's Budget Exhibit Speech.

Some diversion was created at the budget exhibit yesterday afternoon by the interruption of President Purdy of the Tax Board, in his address, by an indignant taxpayer from the Bronx who wanted to know why it is that he "is only a janitor for the city and you unjust men."

"I own six houses in Tremont, and I pay $7,800 into the city treasury every year in rents and taxes," he continued at the top of his voice. "And, legally, I haven't got a leg to stand on. Why should a penalty be imposed on taxpayers if taxes are unpaid by the 1st of November when formerly they could run to the 1st of January? It is robbery."

Mr. Purdy explained that this is regulated by law and not by the Tax Department. In his address he explained that the exhibit of the Tax Department is designed to show what the department does, how it does it, and why it needs the appropriation asked for.

"The cost of assessing each parcel of real estate on the average is 17 cents for administration," he said, "9 cents for making the tax roll and extending the taxes; 9 cents for surveying, and only 48 cents for the actual cost of making the assessment and the assessment roll. Thus the total cost for assessing each parcel of real estate on the average is only 83 cents."

To-day will be "Street Cleaning Day" at the exhibit. Addresses will be made by Commissioner Edwards, Reuben S. Simons, and Chief Engineer Very of the department. Mr. Simons is totally blind, his affliction coming upon him while a foreman in the Street Cleaning Department. He has since that time been detailed to the organization of the Juvenile Leagues in the schools.

Suicide in Undertaker's Shop.

GIRL THIEF'S TALE CONVICTED JOSEPH

GAVE HER FORGED LETTERS

Promised to Marry Her if She Stole Jewelry, and Threatened to Kill Her if She Refused.

It was the pathetic story told by Jennie Weldon that brought about the conviction of Maurice Joseph, who was on trial yesterday before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court, Long Island City, charged with having influenced the girl to rob the home of Henry Oppenheimer, a wealthy Summer resident of Far Rockaway, where she was employed as a nurse, of $2,300 worth of jewelry.

She told the jury that she had been an honest girl until she met Joseph in Central Park two years ago. After a time he tried to induce her to rob the home of a Mrs. Spencer, where she was then employed. Under the cross-examination of Abraham Levy, the girl said she was completely under the domination of Joseph, and that she felt compelled to do whatever he directed, but she refused to rob Mrs. Spencer's home, and left her employment, telling him she had been discharged.

Then by means of forged letters of recommendations she said Joseph obtained for her the place with the Oppenheimers at Far Rockaway, where he instructed her to find out where Mrs. Oppenheimer kept her jewelry. On the night of June 9, 1909, while the Oppenheimer family were in Manhattan at a theatre, she told the jury that Joseph went to Far Rockaway, and meeting her at the station that evening, they took a walk.

"He said," continued the witness, "that if I took the jewelry and gave it to him, that he would marry me and that if I refused to get him the jewelry that he would go away, and I would never see him again."

She said that he also threatened her with a revolver, and that she then went back to the Oppenheimer home and ransacked the bureau drawers and came away with all the jewelry she could find. She gave it to Joseph, and he pawned it for about $600 and furnished a flat, and the money left over he lost on the races.

The girl will plead guilty to the charge against her.

PICTURE MEN FAVOR CENSORS

Concur in the Plan to Have a Public Board Pass on Their Films.

Some astonishment was aroused at the hearing held by the Aldermen's Law Committee yesterday on the proposed ordinance to establish a public Board of Censors for all moving picture films shown in the city by hearty support given to the plan by the moving picture show proprietors. The only opposition to the ordinance came from the present Board of Censors, which is a private body appointed some time ago by a committee of civic organizations.

"The men engaged in this business in the city are business men and wish to make their business as helpful to the community as it can be made. They recognize in the moving picture a moral and educational influence, and believe that it should take its place in the school and church, and they will welcome the day when such a board as you propose is established."

John Collier, Civic Secretary of the People's Institute, and a member of the Board of Censors for moving pictures now in existence, was the only speaker against the ordinance.

"I don't think our board should be abolished," said he. "It has done and is doing good, conscientious work. There has been some cry that we have not done away with all 'crime pictures.' I will tell you why. Many of them teach a high moral lesson. They usually close with the triumph of good over evil."

Another hearing on the ordinance will be held on the afternoon of Wednesday, Oct. 19, at City Hall.

FIRE DESTROYS CARRIAGES.

Theatregoers See a Spectacular Blaze in a Storage Building.

Theatregoers in the Times Square section saw a spectacular blaze last night, when the top floor of a six-story brick stable, Dryer's New Amsterdam Carriage Storage Warehouse, at 221 and 223 West Thirty-seventh Street, was badly damaged by flames shortly after 7 o'clock. The fire was confined to the top floor, as the building is of fireproof construction, with concrete floors, but a large number of carriages in storage there were destroyed. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

Hopper Quits League Chairmanship.

John J. Hopper, candidate for Governor on the Independence League ticket, resigned yesterday as Chairman of the Independence League party. It was announced at the league's headquarters in the Park Avenue Hotel, that new headquarters would be established this week at Broadway and Fortieth Street. Senatorial conventions were held last night by the league. Several districts adjourned until later in the week. Congressional conventions will be held to-night.

TRICKERY IN HEALTH FIGURES

Dr. Biggs Tells Columbia Students How Many Cities Show Low Death Rates.

Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, Medical Officer of the Department of Health, lectured at Columbia University yesterday afternoon on "The Development of Public Health Work," his being the first lecture in a new course on public health problems and the prevention of disease.

From statistics quoted by the lecturer it seemed apparent that the city is one of the world's most healthful places. Many other American cities, especially the newer cities, said Dr. Biggs, have lately made claim to superiority over New York City in this respect, but their statistics tending to prove this are often unreliable.

"The vital statistics throughout the country," declared Dr. Biggs, "are of little value because they are inaccurate."

The new cities, he said, are able to show such low death rates for two reasons. In the first place, the population of the newer cities is being constantly increased by middle-aged people in great numbers taking up their residence in them. Since the death rate is admittedly low among middle-aged people, their presence in the community tends to lower the death rate.

Another explanation, he added, is to be found in the fact that many deaths in smaller cities are never reported, and private burials are of frequent occurrence. Such a thing as a secret burial is impossible in New York City, and our statistics are therefore more accurate than most others throughout the country.

O'Neil Perjury Trial Postponed.

ALBANY, Oct. 10.—The examination of Charles O'Neil of New York on a charge of perjury in connection with testimony he gave at the recent trial of ex-State Engineer Frederick Skene was adjourned to-day by Supreme Court Justice Le Bouef until Nov. 12 at 10 A. M. The adjournment was granted because James W. Osborne of New York, O'Neil's chief counsel, was unable to be here, having been engaged in an action in the Supreme Court in New York City. Mr. Skene and his counsel were in court, and objected to a further postponement. O'Neil finally agreed to reimburse the witnesses against him for expenses incurred by the postponement.

LAJOIE'S BATTING CAUSES SCANDAL

National Commission Will Not Permit Players to Receive Prizes Hereafter.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—Each of the five local sporting writers, in commenting on yesterday's American League baseball games between the Cleveland and the St. Louis teams, charged to-day that certain members of the St. Louis team allowed "Napoleon" Lajoie of Cleveland to obtain hits. The object of this, it is charged, was to enable Lajoie to score a larger batting average during the season than was credited to Tyrus Cobb of Detroit. Lajoie and other players say there was no trickery whatever, merely cleverness, and misjudgment combined.

Lajoie is credited by the official scorer as being at the bat four times in each game of the double header. Each time he obtained a hit. In the summary he is also credited with a sacrifice hit.

The first time at bat Lajoie hit a liner and made three bases on it. The ball went over the centrefielder's head. Six other times he bunted down the third-base line and either beat Third Baseman Corriden's throw to first base or else Corriden did not attempt to throw.

Another time Lajoie grounded to Wallace, who threw wild to first base. Once Lajoie bunted to Corriden, who fielded it, but threw wide to first base. This was the play that gave Lajoie the sacrifice hit.

When Lajoie was at bat, Corriden played far back of third base, the writers say. He ran up each time that Lajoie hit toward him.

Malloy and Nelson were the St. Louis pitchers yesterday. In the only other game that Malloy pitched against Cleveland, Lajoie got one hit in three times at bat. Nelson never pitched to Lajoie before.

"Lajoie outguessed us," said Manager O'Connor. "We figured he did not have the nerve to bunt every time. He beat us at our own game. I will not send any of my players in to play up close to Lajoie when he tries to bunt."

In explaining his playing, Lajoie, in a telegram sent to a St. Louis newspaper to-day from Cincinnati, said:

"After I made my first hit, a clean drive to centre for three bases, the St. Louis men played deep, expecting me to pound the ball out every time. I fooled them right along. The pitchers did their best to deceive me, I am certain."

Corriden and Pitchers Malloy and Nelson could not be found to-day.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—"I have nothing whatever to say," was the way Napoleon Lajoie answered a request for an interview to-night regarding the manner in which he made eight hits at St. Louis yesterday. Before he was through, however, the unofficial leader of the American League batters said that he not only made eight hits in an absolutely genuine manner, but that he really deserved nine hits. When asked to explain this last statement he answered: "That's all I have to say on the subject."

Information was conveyed to Lajoie during the interview that Frank Navin, President of the Detroit team, had said that Lajoie's feat at St. Louis yesterday looked suspicious.

"So it looked suspicious to Navin, did it?" said Lajoie. "Well, he knows what he can do. He can take it before the league if he wants to. At that time I will certainly have my say. Until that time I can only say that I not only got eight hits yesterday in a regular manner, but that I should have been credited with nine."

August Herrmann, Chairman of the National Baseball Commission, in discussing the Lajoie incident to-night, said:

"Lajoie and Cobb, according to unofficial averages, have the race for the leading batsmen in both leagues between them. Which has won I do not know. The National Commission cannot decide until it receives the official averages of both leagues.

"I do want to say one thing, however, since the question came up as to the hits made by Lajoie at St. Louis, and that is that no more prizes, nor bonuses, will be permitted under the rules of the National Commission. We shall be very careful to eliminate anything of the kind in the future."

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—President B. B. Johnson of the American League to-day announced that no more baseball prizes would be offered or permitted while he continued at the head of that baseball organization. President Johnson said that he had taken this position as a result of the Lajoie incident. He also said that he was making an investigation of the allegations made by St. Louis sporting writers.

"Even if the assertions proved unfounded," said President Johnson, "the merest suspicion of crookedness works irreparable injury to the game, and from now on no more individual contests for prizes will be allowed."

GAYNOR STANDS BY BAKER.

Would Not Grant Leave of Absence to Five Athletic Policemen.

Mayor Gaynor yesterday declined to interfere with the order of Police Commissioner Baker refusing permission to a number of athletic policemen who wanted a leave of absence in order to take part in the Amateur Athletic Union championships, which are scheduled for New Orleans on Oct. 14 and 15. When Commissioner Baker refused to allow the men to take the trip James E. Sullivan, Secretary of the A. A. U., sent a letter to Mayor Gaynor asking him to grant the men a special leave of absence. The Mayor sent the letter on to Commissioner Baker without comment of any kind. This means that Martin J. Sheridan, John J. Eller, Mat McGrath, P. McDonald, J. Maguire, and Simon Gillies will not compete at New Orleans on Oct. 14 and 15.

Mr. Sullivan's letter to the Mayor was an earnest plea in behalf of the athletes. He stated that the presence of these men in the championship games meant much to the city's athletic interests.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "these are the type of policemen that I know you want to encourage. If all our policemen were athletes the force would be of high standard."

Mr. Sullivan also called the Mayor's attention to the fact that these athletes did much in promoting games at the city's parks July 4 last, when they went from park to park giving exhibitions.

Mr. Sullivan left for New Orleans before he learned of the fate of the athletic policemen. Commissioner Baker has declared that under no circumstances will he grant the men leave of absence.

SHERIDAN'S DISCUS THROW.

Will Not Be Accepted as Record—Made in "Closed" Competition.

Just before leaving for New Orleans yesterday James E. Sullivan, Chairman of the Record Committee of the A. A. U., announced that under no circumstances could the wonderful discus performance, viz., 142 feet 2 inches, made by Martin J. Sheridan at Celtic Park, Sunday, be accepted as a record to displace the same athlete's accepted mark of 139 feet 10½ inches made at Pastime Oval.

"While I am certain," said Mr. Sullivan, "that every condition relative to fairness of judging, measurement, and the like was lived up to, the rule about records precludes those which are not made in open competition, and the event in which the great throw was made was limited to I. A. A. C. men. There is no way of sidestepping so potent a rule as the one on records, and if the rule did not read 'open' competition we would probably have a never-ending string of 'best on records' to contend with. What should have been done before the games was to have Terence Farley, the Registration Committee Chairman, sanction the event as an open one and let others in, then the rule would have been subserved. However, it cannot be undone, and Sheridan's mark of 139 feet 10½ inches is still the best on record, while the 142 feet 2 inches will be tabulated as a wonderful performance."

MISS HAMMOND VICTOR.

Defeats Miss Marie Wagner in Singles for Metropolitan Women's Title.

Miss Louise M. Hammond of the West Side Tennis Club successfully defended her title in the women's Metropolitan championship singles final yesterday on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at 238th Street and Review Place. She outplayed Miss Marie Wagner, her opponent, at every stage of the game, but it must be said of the latter that she could never really steady herself. The score in favor of Miss Hammond was 6–2, 6–4, but it by no means conveys an idea of the superiority of her dashing style.

Miss Hammond began to serve against the wind, which blew in strong blasts along the court. Miss Wagner was quick to take advantage of the situation, and came to the net for smashes which were so effectual that she won the first set easily.

This temporary advantage did not disconcert Miss Hammond, but rather put her on her mettle, and, getting in her long, stinging drives with wonderful accuracy, she won the next five games in quick succession.

Such a commanding lead was more than Miss Wagner could overcome, though she won another game, but Miss Hammond ran the game out at 6–2. In the second set Miss Wagner made a great effort to steady herself, and for a while it looked as if she would succeed. For the first six games she led at 4–2, but, backing away to deep court, Miss Hammond again indulged in her fierce driving with such telling effect that she won four straight games, the set and the match. The summary:

FIRST SET.

		Pts.	Gms.
Miss Wagner	—4, 3, 2, 1, 4, 1, 6, 4..	25	2

SECOND SET.

		Pts.	Gms.
Miss Hammond	—6, 1, 6, 6, 4, 1, 4, 4, 7, 6	45	4

The final of the doubles was between Miss Elizabeth C. Bunce and Miss Dorothy Green of Philadelphia and Miss Hammond and Miss Elsie Little. It was a severe strain on Miss Hammond to come out for the second tussle right after the singles. The Misses Hammond and Little ran away with the first set easily at 6–2. But in the second Miss Bunce and Miss Green sprung a new tactic on their rivals in the shape of a series of high lobs. That they bothered Miss Hammond and her partner was evident, for they lost the set in exactly the same figure with which they won the first. Seeing that the lobbing was doing so well, Miss Bunce kept it up and led nearly all the way in the third set. When the score stood 5–4 in favor of Miss Bunce and Miss Green they were several times within a stroke of the game, but the other pair stalled them off and made the tally 5 all. Miss Bunce and Miss Green won the next two games, the set, and the match. The summary:

Miss Hammond & Miss Little.2 4 4 6 6 4 2 4—32 6

Miss Elsie Little and G. M. Washburn won the final of the mixed doubles from Miss Elizabeth H. Moore and Lyle E. Mahan. The score was 4–6, 6–3, 6–4.

The final of the men's singles for the Woodmere Challenge Cup was played yesterday at the courts of the Woodmere Country Club, and resulted in a win for J. Longworth. He met H. C. De Riverra in the final match, the score in favor of Longworth being 6–2, 6–0, 7–5.

MISS CAMPBELL LEADS.

Holder of Women's National Golf Championship Turns In Low Score.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Miss Dorothy Campbell of Hamilton, Canada, holder of the Women's National golf championship, to-day led the field of fifty qualifiers in the fifteenth annual tournament for the Women's United States Golf Association title at the Homewood Country Club. Miss Campbell turned in a card of 85 for the eighteen holes, four under the best previous record of 89, made by Miss Campbell last week in practice.

Miss Campbell played perfect golf throughout, except on the long eighth hole, where she went one stroke over bogey.

Out-of-town players took most of the honors, sixteen of them landing among the thirty-two who qualified for match play which starts to-morrow. Chicago furnished the other sixteen players, but twelve of the Chicago women were put out of the running. Philadelphia furnished four of the qualifiers, all the representatives of the Quaker City getting within the limit. Canada's three representatives also qualified.

Mrs. R. H. Barlow of Philadelphia was second to Miss Campbell in the qualifying round, making 89. Mrs. G. M. Martin of Tavistock, England, was third, with 90. Miss Lillian Hyde of New York, holder of the metropolitan division championship, turned in a card of 91. Miss Vida Llewellyn of La Grange Club, Chicago, was the best of the Western Golf Association's representatives, getting 95. Mrs. Thurston Harris, Western and Chicago title holder, made 97.

First round in match play will be started to-morrow. Following are the pairings for the first round of match play with the qualifying score:

Mrs. A. E. Hedstrom, Buffalo, 106, and Miss Dorothy Campbell, Hamilton, Can., 85; Miss Mary Fownes, Pittsburg, 95, and Miss Margaret Knapp, Skokie, 97; Miss Grace Semple, St. Louis, 98, and Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Philadelphia, 89; Miss Myra Helms, Midlothian, 99, and Mrs. F. T. Harris, Westward Ho, 97; Mrs. L. N. Brochon, La Grange, 105, and Mrs. W. B. McIlvane, Onwentsia, 107; Miss Carolina Painter, Midlothian, 105, and Miss Ruth Layman, Hinsdale, 107; Mrs. F. M. Winkler, Beverly, 105, and Mrs. Caleb Fox, Philadelphia, 91; Miss Florence Harvey, Hamilton, Can., 93, and Mrs. H. Galt, Onwentsia, 98; Mrs. W. F. Anderson, Skokie, 97, and Miss Katherine Moulton, Minikahda, 109; Miss Lillian Hyde, New York, 91, and Mrs. C. D. Burrows, Portland, Me., 108; Mrs. Luther Kennett, Evanston, 97, and Miss L. B. Elkins, Pittsburg, 100; Mrs. P. Manchester, Skokie, 108, and Miss Vida Llewellyn, La Grange, 95; Miss E. C. Nesbit, Woodstock, Can., 93, and Mrs. E. R. Williams, Lake Geneva, 101; Miss Ethel Corbett, Homewood, 105, and Mrs. William West, Philadelphia, 100; Mrs. G. M. Martin, England, 90, and Mrs. G. G. Carlyle, Exmoor, 104; Miss Eleanor Chandler, Philadelphia, 107, and Mrs. M. P. Warren, Skokie, 109.

Americans Defeat Nationals.

The American Surety Company baseball team defeated the National Surety Company team Saturday afternoon by the score of 8 to 5. McDonald, pitcher for the winning team, allowed only two hits and struck out thirteen men. The score by innings:

De Oro Wins Two Games with Cue.

Alfred De Oro, the champion three-cushion billiard player, played two exhibition games yesterday at John Doyle's Forty-second Street Billiard Academy and won both matches. In the afternoon he played Tom Gallagher and defeated him by the score of 40 to 26. In the evening he had for his opponent George Moore, the champion three-cushion carrom billiardist of Greater New York. De Oro won by the score of 40 to 35. This afternoon De Oro will play J. Monahan, and in the evening he will meet J. Danckelman.

The Giants and the Phillies got together at the Polo Grounds yesterday in the first of a series of three games which will close the National League season for both teams, and the Quaker boys did not have much trouble handing out a healthy wallop to the New Yorkers. The visitors had a shade on McGraw's men at all stages, and there was no doubt about the outcome after the fifth inning. The score was 8 to 2, with the Giants holding down the slim end of the verdict. This afternoon the teams will finish their season with a double-header, the game scheduled for to-morrow having been advanced. Most of the Yankee players were on hand to see the Giants perform yesterday, and it is not likely that any of them lost any sleep last night over what they saw.

Rudolph, the Toronto youngster, whose slants caused all kinds of lame backs on the Eastern League circuit during the season just closed, was trotted out for his Autumn try-out by Manager McGraw, and he failed to pass. He covered one-third of the route without striking a snag, but the remainder of the distance he was batted hard, and the Giant outfielders got considerable exercise chasing the pill around the meadow. In the first inning "Rudie" fanned Magee and Grant with second and third bases occupied, and in the third inning he fanned Bates for the third out, with Titus at the final turn. Such feats would have done credit to a veteran, and it began to look as if "Rudie's" get-away would be a big success, but a shower of hits broke loose in the fourth inning and "stuck around" to the finish. Fifteen hits for twenty-two cushions was the extent of the reception accorded Rudolph by the bingle brigade from Quakertown.

At the same time it might be mentioned that the support which "Rudie" got did not blind the small crowd of shivering spectators with its brilliancy. The left side of the Giant infield had a hard time trying to make the ball behave. Devlin led in the miscuing with a dropped thrown ball, a fumbled grounder, and a wild throw, while Neighbor Bridwell spilled himself over an easy grounder and got a wild toss out of his system. Devlin regained a bit of glory, however, by pulling in a foul off Pat Moran's bat close to the stand in the sixth inning.

The Phillies bunched two singles off Rudolph in the first inning, and both men were advanced on an error, but did not score, as Magee and Grant fell victims of Rudolph's shoots. Titus reached third base in the third inning on his double to left field and Knabe's out, but was stranded there while Bates whiffed. In the fourth inning Grant doubled past third base, and Bransfield singled to short. Bridwell threw to the stand trying to get Grant at third base, and the latter scored, Bransfield taking second. Doolin fanned, Moran walked, and Brennan singled to centre, scoring Bransfield. In the fourth inning a single by Titus, a pretty bunt by Bates, a bad throw by Devlin, Magee's triple to the left-field fence, and Grant's drive past short netted three more runs. The last three came in the final inning on three successive doubles by Knabe, Bates, and Magee and a scratch hit by Grant.

The Giants got their first run in the second inning. Devlin doubled to left field, and finished the distance when Merkle hit over second base. Merkle died trying to stretch the drive to two bases, and Meyers's long double to left field, which followed, counted for nothing. In the third inning Devore, Doyle, and Snodgrass breezed out in order.

Not another Giant saw second base until the seventh inning. Merkle opened with a single, and Gowdy was put on to run for him. Two infield outs advanced the Texan to third base, and he counted when Doolan fizzled on Devore's grounder.

Cubs Beaten in Loose Game.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—St. Louis defeated Chicago to-day, 15 to 7, in a loosely played contest, marked by free hitting and mediocre pitching. Pfeister was knocked out in the third inning and Weaver, his successor, was pounded for ten safe drives and nine runs. Score:

Champion Athletics Beaten.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—The new champions of the American League were defeated, 5 to 4 in a ten-inning contest by a picked team here this afternoon in the first of the exhibition games to be played this week to keep the players on edge for the world's series. The picked team was made up principally of substitutes from the Athletics. Morgan, who pitched for the picked team, allowed the champions only six hits, while the substitutes hit Dygert quite hard. The champions took the lead and were tied up in the eighth inning. The picked team won out in the tenth. The score by innings.

Commission Fixes Prices.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 10.—The National Baseball Commission to-day amplified its announcement of Saturday on the inter-league series between the New York Americans and Nationals by announcing that prices for seats at the American League Park in Manhattan will range from 50 cents to $2 during the series. In the previous notice the mere statement was made that "prices prevailing during the regular season" would be in effect.

NELSON BEATS SULLIVAN.

Inaugural Professional Bouts of Irish-American A. C. Attract Big Crowd.

Fighters of Celtic origin predominated last night at the inaugural professional boxing series of the Irish-American Athletic Club in East Fifty-ninth Street. A large crowd was present and saw the defeat in the star bout of Paddy Sullivan by Battling Jack Nelson. The go went the limit, ten rounds.

Sullivan did most of the leading in the first round, Nelson contenting himself with counters and punches in the clinches. There was a pretty mix-up midway in the second round, both men fighting hammer and tongs. Nelson confined his work to the body, while Paddy did effective punching to the jaw with both hands. The third round showed neither the worse for wear, and both anxious to mix it. Sullivan uppercut effectually, Nelson failing on some vicious swings. Sullivan played for the head solely, and invited Nelson's hardest punches on the wind, dropping his hands and taking them laughingly.

After a succession of rallies, which showed some good infighting, Sullivan got in some slashing uppercuts, which straightened up the Battler. Each did his share of the work in the fifth round, both getting in some damaging smashes to the body. In the opening part of the sixth round Nelson hit his man low and caused a temporary cessation. There was no let-up in the pace, however, although Nelson made a mark of his opponent's stomach throughout.

Nelson did most of the forcing in the major portion of the seventh round, getting to the body and the head in clever fashion. The eighth showed Nelson after his man, continually peppering him with body punches, which rushed his man to the ropes time and time again. Sullivan pursued rushing tactics during the early part of the ninth round, following this up with some corking jabs, which made Nelson look foolish. This was all Sullivan's round.

Nelson mixed it up to perfection in the final round, doing great work at short range. At the end Sullivan showed the effects of the body punching he got. Nelson had the best of the go.

Young Riley and Phil Kearney, bantams, went four rounds, with the result all in favor of Riley.

The second pair to show were Young Abe Attell and Young Smith, and the latter slammed his man all over the ring until he felt, as he told the referee, "bad," whereupon the referee stopped the bout.

There was a little more class to the third bout, which called out Andy Williams and Eddie Smith, which Smith won.

McGOVERN SHADES O'LEARY.

Brooklyn Boxer Has Only Slight Advantage in 10-Round Bout at Olympic.

Phil McGovern of Brooklyn showed better form last night than he has in some time, and was able to slightly shade Young O'Leary in a ten-round bout at the Olympic Athletic Club. McGovern was a trifle heavy and carried surplus flesh about the body. O'Leary was clever at jabbing, but was not quite as shifty on his feet and willing to mix it as he has been on previous occasions.

O'Leary did the best work in most of the early rounds and more than held his own by his clever jabbing and using a right hook. He had the better of the second, fifth, and sixth rounds by good margins, while the first was about even and the third and fourth were in favor of McGovern. The latter was overanxious and repeatedly missed throughout these rounds, while his opponent was much cooler and judged the distance better.

O'Leary managed to stand McGovern off by steady jabbing and occasional body punches, but Phil insisted on boring in regardless of the punishment, and made a rally at the end of the sixth that started him on the winning end. Philly came out of his corner for the seventh confident and went right after O'Leary. He was a trifle wild and missed a few good swings, but found his mark by planting a hard right hand smash on the jaw that sent O'Leary to the mat for a few seconds. The Brooklyn boy followed his advantage and sent in a hard right to the stomach that slowed up O'Leary. O'Leary came back with a weak jab on the nose and crossed over a short right hook to the chin as the bell sounded.

McGovern continued his lead all through the eighth round and nearly disposed of O'Leary. He started off by sending in a left to the face and quickly followed with the same hand to the body. Forcing O'Leary back into his corner, he planted a stiff right on the point of O'Leary's chin that sent his head back.

McGovern shot over a hard right to the stomach and doubled O'Leary up for a second time and had all the better of the round. O'Leary was in bad shape during this round.

McGovern continued his advantage during the ninth by forcing all the work to O'Leary and landing the best blows, but in the last session O'Leary tried for all he was worth, and the round ended on even terms.

Leach Cross and Jack Dorman.

Leach Cross says he is "coming back" to-night at the Fairmont Athletic Club, when he tackles Jack Dorman in a ten-round bout. If appearances in training is to be considered seriously it looks as if Leach is going to "come back" strong. The dentist in his training showed himself to be faster and stronger than he was two years ago. He has had the benefit of a long sparring session with Packy McFarland, and Leach has been an apt pupil. Cross plans to force the fighting to-night, and says he will stop the Bronxite within eight rounds. Cross has his campaign mapped out. Joe Hyland will probably be his next opponent. Dorman's friends watched Cross at work on Sunday. Leach, however, knew of their presence and did not let out in his work. A strong card of preliminary bouts will precede the main bout to-night.

Joe Wagner Gets Bad Beating.

Thomas to Return to Ring.

After a twelve months' vacation in the Middle West, where he occupied his time between being a cow puncher, a Deputy Sheriff, a hunter of horse thieves, wolves, bears, and coyotes, Joe Thomas, a California heavyweight, will re-enter the roped arena at the Long Acre Club on Thursday night, when he will meet "Jumbo" Wells, a recently imported Australian heavyweight. Thomas is a much better man, both physically and as a fighter, than he was when he fought Stanley Ketchell last November. In Wells he will meet a rugged proposition. Last week at the Armory A. A. in Boston the foreigner knocked out Billy Rolfe, a Boston heavyweight, in one minute and twenty-one seconds.

Moran to Fight Frayne Oct. 15.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 10.—Owen Moran, English lightweight pugilist, and Johnny Frayne of San Francisco, have been matched to fight ten rounds before the New Orleans Athletic Club next Saturday.

JOHNSON RACE UNDER BAN.

A. A. A. Will Not Sanction Match Between Prizefighter and Oldfield.

Chairman S. M. Butler of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association said yesterday that no sanction would be given by that body for the proposed race between Barney Oldfield and Jack Johnson, which is scheduled for Sheepshead Bay on Oct. 20.

"Competition of this sort would not do the sport any good," said Mr. Butler, "and the governing board of this organization would not stand for such a race."

Mr. Butler yesterday revoked Johnson's registration as a driver. He gave out the following statement about taking away the prizefighter's card: "Racing, driver's registration No. 687 issued to John Arthur Johnson by the office of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association on Oct. 7, 1910, is hereby canceled for failure to comply with the necessary requirements in connection with such registration."

THE OLD MORALITIES.

Why does the Legislative Graft Committee make such a fuss about the payment of a few thousand dollars by the Lyons Beet Sugar Refining Company to Senator JOHN RAINES and Assemblyman BURNETT as a mark of its "appreciation" of the services of those two legislators, both of whom are now dead, in procuring the passage of bills for the payment of bounty to the sugar company? RAINES and BURNETT merely applied the old Republican moralities to new beet sugar conditions. The Lyons Beet Sugar Company simply did what the bounty-fed and protected interests all over the country have been doing for years. Do they call these beet sugar transactions bribery? Then the Republican Party has been a bribetaker almost from its birth, and the protected interests have been bribegivers.

It is of common knowledge and it has been for more than a generation an open scandal that the protected interests have paid the Republican Party in campaign contributions for enacting the tariff schedules they desired. The Republicans have not only taken this money, they have insisted on having it. One year the Republican gatherer of tribute insisted that they must "fry the fat" out of the protected manufacturers. In 1890 the representatives of the protected interests in Congress gave votes to pass the Silver Coinage bill in exchange for votes of the silver men for the McKinley tariff.

It has always been a matter of bargain and sale. The only difference is that the Lyons Beet Sugar Company's transactions with RAINES and BURNETT were direct. The protected manufacturers have been accustomed to pay their bribe money into the campaign fund, where it went to help elect protectionist Congressmen and protectionist Presidents like BENJAMIN HARRISON, WILLIAM MCKINLEY, and THEODORE ROOSEVELT. There is no moral difference.

Yet THEODORE ROOSEVELT, who has all these years kept his head tight shut about the bribe-enacted tariff, who has been the beneficiary of the system, now orates of the old moralities. He knew what was going on in 1904, he knew that his campaign committee had an immense fund, and he knew whence it came. A part of it, to be sure, he solicited himself, but that was not from the tariff protected interests. He knew during all his seven years in the White House that the Dingley act was "a mere jumble of preferences and privileges," yet he never found time to condemn it, or to urge its revision upon Congress. Now, at this late day, Mr. ROOSEVELT is with no little difficulty endeavoring to inform his countrymen where he stands upon the tariff. Let us make a little application of the old moralities to that endeavor.

Mr. ROOSEVELT's latest outgiving upon ie subject is an attempt to reconcile ie standpat platform adopted by the epublicans at Saratoga with his tariff tterances in the West. At Atlanta he ld his audience that he must be held sponsible only for what he himself id, not for what the Committee on esolutions said, although that committee was named by him. As a matr of fact, Mr. ROOSEVELT expressed at ratoga no opinion whatever concerng the tariff. His only reference to e subject was contained in a recital the achievements of the Taft Adinistration, in which was included the nauguration of the policy of providfor a disinterested revision of tariff hedules through a high-class commisn of experts," but that statement s merely expository. In reply to wspaper correspondents who asked he desired to make some further tatement explanatory of his Atlanta tterance, Mr. ROOSEVELT said:

> I have nothing to add to what I said last night, except that in my speech at Saratoga I said about the tariff and the Administration exactly what I had said in my speeches at Sioux City, Sioux Falls, and Cincinnati.

At Sioux Falls Mr. ROOSEVELT spoke in praise of the tariff commission policy, of the maximum and minimum privileges of the law, of the negotiations with Canada, and of free trade with the Philippines. He then proceeded:

> I believe in such a tariff measure of protection as will equalize the cost of production here and abroad, that will equalize the labor cost. I believe in such supervision in the working of the law as to make certain that the protected industry gives that difference to the men we are most anxious to protect—the laboring men—and if I find that is not given, I would take off the tariff duty on the particular thing. I believe in protection on that basis as a principle, but if it is a mere jumble of preferences and privileges, then I am against it.

Mr. ROOSEVELT now declares that in his speech at Saratoga he said about the tariff "exactly" what he said in his speech at Sioux Falls. Neither exactly, nor inferentially, by implication, nor in any other way did he say anything remotely resembling his utterance at Sioux Falls. As we have pointed out above, his only reference to the tariff was to the appointment of the commission, and his words there were merely descriptive of what had been done by the Taft Administration, with no indication whatever of a personal opinion that duties should be lowered or that the "jumble of preferences and privileges" should be overhauled.

No wonder Senator CUMMINS and the insurgent newspapers of the West, with his Sioux Falls speech freshly in mind, reached the conclusion when they read the Saratoga platform that THEODORE ROOSEVELT had betrayed them. It seems never to have occurred to Mr. ROOSEVELT that the glaring discrepancy between his Saratoga platform and his Sioux Falls speech required explanation until he was sharply called to account by his friends in the West. And the more he explains the worse off he is. If he disapproved the Saratoga platform the time to say so was when it was reported. He was silent. His subsequent utterances have not mended matters. The only possible conclusion is that when he was at Sioux Falls he felt that he was among downward revisers, when he was at Saratoga he felt that he was speaking to standpatters.

THE RULE OF THE PEOPLE.

The direct rule of the people seems to have reached its climax in Oregon. We referred the other day to one of the thirty-two initiative measures on which it will be the privilege and the implied duty of each voter in that State to express his wish. This we took from The Oregonian. Its accuracy was disputed by the friends of the "reform," and The Oregonian now repeats it in the official form. It is interesting enough to give in full:

> For an amendment to Article IV., Constitution of Oregon, increasing initiative, referendum, and recall powers of the people; restricting use of emergency clause and veto power on State and municipal legislation; requiring proportional election of members of the Legislative Assembly from the State at large; annual sessions and increasing members' salaries and terms of office; providing for elections of Speaker of House and President of Senate outside of members; restricting corporate franchises to twenty years; providing ten-dollar penalty for unexcused absences from any roll call, and changing the form of oath of office to provide against so-called legislative logrolling.

Any one who cares to read this proposed amendment to the Constitution a little carefully will see that it really includes nine measures, and the voter has to vote for or against every one of them by a single cross "at the designated place on the wagon-bed ballot." He may want to vote for five of them and against four, but to get the five he must take the four, or to reject the four he must abandon the five. He may want annual sessions of the Legislature and not want more legislators or higher pay for them. He must take them all or none. He may think well of proportional election of legislators and think ill of twenty-year franchises for corporations; he must approve both or neither. And so on. And this is called extending the control of the people over their affairs. It is really denying them the power to control. We assume that this is an extreme case; at least we know of no other so ridiculous. But it is the logical outcome of the mad, bad fad which at the moment Mr. ROOSEVELT is urging.

THE CURSE OF THE POOR.

The curse of the poor, says the ancient Scripture, is their poverty. In this country, one of the curses of the poor is the aggravation of their poverty through privileges granted by law to special interests, which raise the price of the necessaries of life.

How this comes about in the matter of woolen clothing, which in this climate is certainly a necessary thing, is shown plainly and conclusively in an interview with WILLIAM C. REDFIELD, candidate for Congress in the Fifth (Kings) District. He traces the effect of the tax on foreign wool from the importer to the buyer of a suit of clothes. As the coarser and less costly wool used for the heavier cloths is less clean than that used for finer cloths, the nominally uniform tax per pound amounts to from three to four times more on the residuum of clean and usable wool for the former than for the latter. He then shows how this tax is increased by the profit that each successive process of manufacture demands. The importer claims 10 per cent., the spinner 15 per cent., the weaver 25 per cent., the retail clothier 50 per cent., and in the end the increase in the cost of the suit, starting with the tariff tax of $1.93, reaches the total of $5.66. The result is that the class which can only pay a low price for clothes do not get wool; they get shoddy and cotton, which do not yield nearly the same warmth, and last one-fifth as long.

It will be said that this is an extreme case. Possibly, but it is a case clearly within the direct effect of the tariff taxes. It will also, perhaps, be said that this is a campaign argument, used by a candidate for office. It clearly is, and a very sound and effective argument too. What can be more correct for a man who has been selected for Congress by his party to take part in the making of laws than to show to the voters of his district what is wrong with the laws the opposite party has made, which it will be his aim to reform? In a Congressional election this year there is really only one issue, that of the tariff. That is one in which everybody is concerned, who has to buy, or pay for, woolen cloth of any kind. And those of moderate means are especially concerned in this clause of the tariff because its exactions and extortions weigh more heavily, a great deal more heavily, on them than on the richer members of the community. We may add that Mr. REDFIELD is a business man of ability and standing, and can be relied on to do his utmost in a sensible and practical manner to remedy the abuses he sets forth.

PRESIDENT M'ANENY'S WORK.

The statement given out by the President of the Borough of Manhattan in connection with the budget of next year makes an interesting showing of what he has accomplished since he took office in January.

In substance, he has saved in the current year about $400,000 out of an appropriation of two and three-quarter millions, and has used the bulk of this amount in improving the service of the borough. The nature of that improvement has been such as an intelligent business man would have sought in a private concern of equal importance, though necessarily the process has been more difficult. Useless work and workers have been cut off, duplicated or overlapping work has been concentrated, the hours of work have been extended, so that each worker has done more; by a better system of accounting, and especially by careful cost tests, more accurate knowledge of expenditures, and the result of expenditures, has been acquired; in the purchase of fuel the standard thermal unit has been adopted, so that as good results have been secured for 40 per cent. less cost; contracts and specifications have been made more careful and complete, and throughout the service there has been applied a plan of organized and responsible inspection, so that the head of the borough has known when work was done well or ill, and who exactly was accountable for it.

President MCANENY has certainly justified the confidence placed in him. No one who knew him doubted that he would work conscientiously and hard. He has in addition worked with intelligence, skill, executive ability, and foresight.

CAPTAIN PEARY.

By the retirement or Civil Engineer U. S. G. WHITE, Commander ROBERT E. PEARY becomes to-day a Captain in the United States Navy. It is not a promotion for distinguished service. Had Mr. PEARY remained in the routine service of the Government, instead of making his name immortal among explorers, he would have been advanced further than the rank of Captain.

The man whom Emperors and Kings, scientists, the public, and the press in eleven capitals of Europe have delighted to honor for achievements that emblazon his name in history, is still without honor in his own land.

STEEL AND THE CROPS.

The Steel Corporation has before reported a lower total of orders in hand, but never a smaller proportion to its productive capacity than it reported yesterday. At the same time the Agricultural Department made the best final report on the crops in the Nation's history. Wall Street seemed puzzled what to make out of such contradictory factors, but it is simplicity itself to solve the puzzle. The crop report contains the promise and potency of remedying the conditions of the steel trade, whereas if the steel trade reported itself as in never so good condition, it would speedily fall away if the crops were a disappointment. In other words, we can make any desired quantities of steel to meet our wants, but if there were a deficiency in the harvest there would be no possibility of a remedy before another year.

It is also worth remarking that the run of depression in the steel trade now approaches the record, and cannot persist unless something is to happen beyond all experience. The steel trade declines perpendicularly, but ascends more gradually, and for longer periods as a rule. When last orders were as low as now they rose by a half in a single quarter, kept on rising for more than two years, and retained a full volume for half a year more. With the present productive capacity of the chief producer, its earnings, given the orders, would be something to marvel about. The crop report is the best thing to produce the orders.

The corn crop passes the three billion mark for the first time, and the oats crop adds a hundred millions to the billion which it passed for the first time last year. For good measure a dozen unexpected millions of bushels are added to the wheat crop. We have surpassed our record, which is the same as saying that we have surpassed the world's record, and this is achieved in a harvest which threatened something like an agricultural calamity earlier in the year. It is perhaps within the capacity of human achievement to wreck the promise of prosperity contained in these figures, but it cannot be blamed on Providence this year. There is work in sight for every hand and every wheel, and if they are not kept busy there ought to be a reckoning for whoever spoils the prospect.

OVERCROWDED SING SING.

The escape of five convicts from Sing Sing calls attention once more to the disgraceful overcrowding of the State prison. Setting aside the increase in the difficulty of Warden FROST's task under present conditions and the possibility, if not the probability, of further unofficial jail deliveries, the confinement of nearly 200 men in one hall is directly opposed to every theory of modern criminologists. What chance is there of the reformation of a first offender if he is herded amid scores of fellow-convicts in such close quarters that their beds almost touch and it is impossible for the guards to suppress conversation?

No blame for this condition attaches to Warden FROST. He has simply to accommodate as best he can the prisoners sent to him, and they have of late come crowding in so fast that he can consider nothing but finding room for them somewhere and somehow. It is the State which is responsible for not foreseeing the great increase in the prison population and making suitable provision for it.

Sing Sing was designed to hold 1,200 convicts; in the last eighteen months there have been confined within its walls from 1,700 to 2,047 at one time. Each month except during the judicial vacations the Warden has to receive about 100 new prisoners, and even in the Summer he gets from 40 to 60 every four weeks. He cannot transfer any of his charges, as Dannemora and Clinton Prisons are nearly as congested as Sing Sing.

The one hope of relief from this intolerable state of affairs lies in the rapid pushing to completion of the new State prison at Comstock. It is most important, not only to avoid further occurrences such as that of last week, but also in the interests of the convicts themselves, that the construction of the new institution be hastened to the utmost degree.

FREEDOM AT RISK OF LIFE.

Dr. W. E. COOVER, State Veterinarian of Indiana, wants Gov. MARSHALL to pardon a convict under sentence for life, who will take his chance in an experiment to determine whether bovine tuberculosis can infect mankind. He would imperil his life in the cause of science for the sake of freedom. Gov. MARSHALL is almost persuaded to grant the pardon.

If prisoners who confess and turn State's evidence are entitled to freedom, a convict who risks his life in the cause of humanity should be freed. The origin of yellow fever was discovered by the help of human volunteers, heroes of this age, who submitted to the stings of the deadly gnat then only suspected as a carrier of the disease. A large percentage of dairy herds is infected with tuberculosis. Before his death Dr. KOCH, who had denied its possibility, finally admitted that bovine tuberculosis might infect human beings. Many of Europe's foremost experimenters believe that it is slightly infectious to human adults, but that its dangers to infants and the immature are much greater. If the offer of the yet unnamed convict of Indiana is accepted, it will afford a direct study of the effect of inoculating adults. The results of such a study, also, may be used indirectly in determining the virulence of infection among children.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Who Knows What Is Impossible?

While the result of the Chicago-New York flight is still something more than doubtful, with the present indications, also, tending toward the conclusion that the aeroplane is not yet sufficiently developed to make an approximately continuous journey of even that length practicable, there would seem to most people to be an element of the humorous in offering big prizes for air voyages of much greater length and vastly greater difficulty. It is well to remember, however, that not so many months ago the aviator who remained aloft for ten minutes was credited with performing a most wonderful achievement.

In those months many chapters have been added to the history of aerial navigation, and "impossible" is a word which careful prophets have almost dropped from their vocabularies when talking about what can be done with the heavier-than-air flying machine. Being careful prophets ourselves, we are not at all sure that the prize of $50,000 which The New York American has offered to the aviator who within the next year drives an aeroplane between San Francisco and this city will not be won. That is, indeed, a journey compared with which none yet made is much more than a "shop test," and poor CHAVEZ, who lost his life in crossing the Alps, attempted an almost infinitely less dangerous feat than would be the crossing of the range after range of peaks that must be surmounted in passing from the Pacific Coast to the meridian of Denver. And between each range lie cruel deserts where a landing would be almost as perilous for the disabled aviator as among the crags and precipices of the mountains. Less difficult, but as yet more than difficult enough, is the flight from this city to St. Louis, for which The New York World offers a prize of $30,000.

Even such flights as these could be made to-day if only the internal explosion engine were more trustworthy. As it has to be constructed for use as the motor of an aeroplane that engine can, and often does, go wrong in a disheartening number of ways, but at least as many mechanical geniuses are at work on it, and any day one of them may bring out an engine so far superior to any now in existence that aviation will at once be changed from a magnificent experiment to an assured success. The real conquest of the air is surely coming, and the prizes that now seem to hang so high will all be won sooner or later.

A Defender of the Braganzas.

In THE SUNDAY TIMES that "Veteran Diplomat" who has so often supplemented the daily foreign dispatches with information obtained from sources not ordinarily available gave what may be called "the other side" of the Portuguese revolution. He presented the royal family that has just been driven out of the country, not as its corrupt and vicious exploiters, but as honest and estimable men and women, doing the best they could in a situation which, so far as they were concerned, was created by two parties, both monarchical, and, names apart, differing from each other only in being in or out of power.

Each of these parties in turn had treated Portugal as a prey to be robbed shamelessly and ruthlessly. Both, according to this authority, had hated CARLOS and MANUEL because, instead of being do-nothing Kings, they had endeavored to put something of order in the administration of public affairs, and the enmities and rivalries of these factions provided opportunity and excuse for holding the Braganza family responsible for the country's manifold ills. That is a plausible explanation of recent events in Portugal, and the article supplied a more than plausible explanation of all the scandalous stories that have circulated in regard to MANUEL and his relatives. Of only one King in modern times, probably, have such tales been anything less than wild exaggerations of trivial indiscretions and follies, and the probability of their truth in this case has not been taken very seriously by anybody.

The fact remains, however, that despite the private virtues of the Queen Mother and the good intentions of her son, the Portuguese monarchy had proved a failure, and, whatever may be the unreadiness of the Portuguese people for self-rule under a republican form of Government, they can hardly do worse than they have been doing under the excellent but inefficient Princes whom the "Veteran Diplomat" described. Monarchical institutions have not saved them from a steady deterioration as a nation and world power. And Governments have a way of adapting themselves to the peculiarities of the governed, regardless of names. There are republics and republics, and they can be as different from one another as republics and monarchies. Of course Portugal's troubles are not over, simply because her King has made a most unkingly exit from his capital and country, but for her any change seems likely to be for the better—after a while.

Electricians Held Responsible.

One of our correspondents has solved the mystery of this year's drought in and near New York. It is the result, he says, of using electricity in such quantities that the natural balance of something or other has been disturbed and our atmosphere is no longer able to attract and precipitate moisture. And this is only the beginning, he declares. Drought is to follow drought in unbroken succession, and in ten years there won't be a green leaf or a spear of grass within twenty miles of New York!

This theory has its merits—chief of them the merit that it will seem entirely credible to all of the many people who are ready to believe that anything to them otherwise inexplicable is due to or done by electricity. Against the theory counts rather heavily the fact that there is no known or observed relation between the activities of dynamos and the amount of rainfall. We have had many wet seasons since electricity came into general use, and before that dry ones were not unrecorded.

Perhaps it will reassure our lugubrious prophet if he be told that there is just as much electricity in and around New York as there ever was, and that the quantity we harness is not only minute, but seems to be drawn from—and always returned to—an inexhaustible source.

COST OF A MOTOR CAR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Constant Reader" and "Motorist" have taken an interesting excursion into the statistics and the principles of the cost test between an automobile and a horse and buggy which was recently conducted in this vicinity. They point out the omission of certain elements of cost from consideration in this test and have tried to compound the proposition far beyond the published intention of the test management. "Motorist's" basis of depreciation on the automobile, 20 per cent. per year, is fair enough, but his mileage basis of 5,000 a year is no credit to the car in question. He does not complain of a daily horse travel of ten miles, or 3,650 a year, but he limits the automobile to thirteen miles a day, or 5,000 a year. My car has averaged 10,000 miles a year since 1905, and there are hundreds of others of the same make which have done the same thing.

Assuming that I charged off 20 per cent. per year depreciation, the calculation would to-day wipe out the entire value of my car, whereas I would not sell it for a good proportion of its original price. Its serviceability is as great to-day as when it left the factory. I don't think the test management intended to consider commercial depreciation, but rather the depreciation of its serviceability. Nor does the trial interest the men who annually sacrifice a good used car for a doubtful new one and then preach about "fearful depreciation."

"Motorist" delves into investments and saddles $45 a year on the car for interest on invested capital. Very well. If the annual use of a car is assumed to be 10,000 miles and that mileage represents what we get for our loss of interest, it stands to reason that the proportion of that mileage that may be covered in a given period determines the proportion of "interest" that is chargeable. It would be idiotic to levy a year's interest against a six-day journey. Distribute this over a year and put it on the same per-mile basis as other items of cost. The result is .0016 per mile.

"Motorist" talks of licenses. Put the five-dollar tax on the same basis and the cost is .0002.

"Motorist" brings up insurance. Do the same in this case. The cost is .00042.

The important elements of cost which are said to be omitted make a total of .00222 per mile, or .00111 per passenger mile.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Taking up your paper this morning, I find three or four columns filled with platitudes that were declaimed yesterday at Bristol, Tenn. Now, really, do you think that stuff was fit to print? Is there anything in the whole diatribe that is not known to every schoolboy?

It occurs to me that you may have published the speech at full length to let the readers see how egotism run mad tends rapidly to absurdity and self-destruction. If so, you are justified. Still, it is a cruel waste of the reader's time when, with big headlines, you induce him to wade wearily through four columns, vainly expecting to find something significant. R. J.

Opinions of Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We are accustomed to consider that a man who has held the position of greatest honor in our giving, President, shall so conduct himself after his term expires as to retain the respect of the people whom he has served. It is difficult to imagine more undignified language and actions than those which the only living ex-President is using and exhibiting. I admire the straightforwardness of Mr. Young of the Republican Club, and with him feel that this new "boss" must be downed, now if ever.

Mail in Apartment Houses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After the mails are being guarded and protested like the money in the Treasury, does the Government think it just to hand them over to an elevator attendant for distribution? Is this not a vital point for the Post Office authorities to consider? D. W.

THE WOOL TARIFF.

Candidate William C. Redfield, who is the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Fifth (Kings) District, gives in the following interview an analysis of the tariff on wool as it would affect the various stages in the manufacture of the workingman's suit of clothes—supposing the workingman aspired to the purchase of a woolen suit:

"The President stated in his St. Paul speech that the wool schedule is indefensible.

"Mr. Roosevelt has said that the present method of tariff making cannot, in the very nature of the case, bring satisfactory results.

"Mr. Payne, the author of the tariff, in his speech of Sept. 23 accepting his renomination, said that there were items, like those of the woolen schedule, which he was anxious to revise; it was a source of great disappointment to him, he said, that after two extended and exhaustive hearings he was not able to present any programme that the majority of the committee would adopt for a revision of the schedule.

How the Wool Tax Affects the Poor Man.

"The wool which we wear—and don't wear—comes from all the wool-growing parts of the world, smeared with its various degrees of grease and dirt. We import the raw wool in this condition, the uniform duty being 11 cents per pound. The importer separates this wool, the light-shrinking wool from the high-shrinking, the result, of course, being that upon the wool which shrinks least the percentage of duty is less than upon the usable wool remaining from that which shrinks most. The difference in the case of two assumed grades, the one shrinking 10 per cent., the other shrinking 50 per cent., would result in the latter paying five times as much duty per pound of wool available for clothing for the wool which shrinks one-half as compared with the wool which shrinks one-tenth.

"Now, broadly speaking, the classes or qualities of wool which are used for the cheaper grades of cloth are those which shrink most, and conversely, the wools used for more expensive clothing shrink least. For this reason the actual wool woven into a suit of cheap clothing pays often five times as much duty per pound as that woven into a suit of more expensive clothing. This is so far the case that the duty is prohibitive of the importation of wools that shrink over 50 per cent., and therefore wools that shrink more than this have to be purchased from ranch owners from the West, who are thus absolutely protected in the competition against coarse wool.

"The result is a discrimination in favor of the more costly clothing and against the cheaper clothing by several hundred per cent. Even this is not sufficient, for the wearer is forced to substitute cotton so that the cheap all-wool suit for the workingman does not exist. It has been literally taxed out of existence. And the workingman is thus effectually "protected" against getting clothing that is at once cheap and good.

Profits on Duties.

"In addition to the discriminations which we have shown are made by the wool schedule against cheap and good clothing for workingmen, that same schedule forms a subtle and sufficient means not only of making us all pay duties on such clothing as we wear but of providing that we shall pay compounded profits on those duties to wealthy beneficiaries.

"Taking the extreme case of a 75 per cent. shrinkage, the duty of 11 cents per pound on greasy clothing wool is really a duty of 44 cents a pound on the same wool when washed. In a Winter weight suit of twenty-ounce cloth there are 8¼ yards, weighing, say, 70 ounces, or 4⅜ pounds, therefore as a starting point we have:

On which the importer of the wool should make a profit of at least 10 per cent. when sold to the yarn spinner	.19
The yarn spinners have all grown rich, and for converting the wool into yarn we must allow them at least 15 per cent.	.30
The woolen manufacturer who weaves the yarn into cloth is entitled to at least 25 per cent. profit	.60
The clothing manufacturer who converts the cloth into garments must add another 25 per cent.	.75
The retail clothier, who is not his own manufacturer, adds another 50 per cent.	1.89
Producing a total of duty compounded by profit	$5.66

"It would thus appear, conclusively, that a suit of clothes made from all-wool cloth of the grade calculated to be most serviceable to a workingman, if produced from high shrinking wool, if freed from duty at the base, might pay fair profits at each stage of its manufacturing process, and yet be offered to the consumer at a third to a half less than it now costs.

Now this brings to the unfortunate buyer of the clothing the privilege of paying a profit of 375 per cent., for which he gets no value in the shape of material or labor. It is simply a profit on duty compounded on duty several times at high rates. It should be added, to make its beauty more clear, that it takes no account of the proportion of duty which is added and which is in like manner compounded at each of the different processes through which the material goes in manufacturing. For example, in the yarn, in the cloth, and in the finished clothing, each bears a duty, that on the cloth being the modest duty of 44 cents a pound, plus 50 to 60 per cent. ad valorem, depending on the quality.

What Power Prevents a Change?

"Now, let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter. We have shown a discrimination against the buyer of low-priced clothing which has resulted in making it impossible to procure good material at moderate prices. And we have also shown a general tax upon the entire duties arising from compounded profits. Now, these things were not done in a corner. A protest against them was laid before Mr. Taft by the National Association of Clothiers, and was at his request laid before Mr. Payne.

"What is the power that is so much stronger than the executive and legislative authorities of the country that neither separately nor jointly could they prevail against it?"

Is He a Free Man?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer has always voted the Republican ticket. He believes in the principle of protection and of a tarif to that end, but he would like a little protection for himself. The cigars to be had in America are either very bad in quality or very expensive. In Switzerland (to mention only one country) he can purchase a most excellent small cigar of Sumatra tobacco for 2¼ cents. Sumatra, and even Borneo, tobacco is equal to a (except the very best) Havana.

The following table is of interest, should any of your readers wish to import these cigars:

Duty, per pound	4.50
Ad valorem duty, 20 per cent.	.50

or well over 200 per cent.

I must do without my cigars. The Government gets no revenue. Am I a free man? I may mention incidentally that my freight brokers have missed a piece of business. COMMON SENSE.

WINDOW-SHOOTINGS IN RUSSIAN PRISONS

M. KHROULEFF DENIED THEM

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my criticism of the statements attributed to M. de Khrouleff by Andre Tridon in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sept. 18 I acted on the presumption that the interview was trustworthy. I was aware, of course, that the best of reporters do sometimes make errors; but inasmuch as Mr. Khrouleff, in the course of ten days, had made no objection to, or correction of, the very serious misunderstandings to which he now refers, and inasmuch as the interview was, in substance, a reproduction of an official or semi-official article entitled "Alleged Oppression of Prisoners in Russian Prisons," which was published in The Prison Messenger of St. Petersburg in April last, I certainly had some reason to believe that the Chief of the Russian Prison Administration had been reported correctly.

I accept, however, without demur, his disavowal of the statement that the Russian Government aims to enlighten convicts, rather than to punish them; and the further statement that all Russian convicts are employed out of doors in agricultural work. These corrections, however, leave a large part of my criticisms untouched. Mr. Khrouleff does not explain his apparent misrepresentation of the views of the late Dr. Barrows, nor does he make good his statements concerning the sanitary condition of Russian prisons and the adequacy of the "accommodations" furnished to Russian prisoners. These are matters in which American readers are vitally interested because the punishment of thousands of untried political offenders by administrative process, which seems to us unjust in itself, becomes barbarously cruel and unjust when such offenders are deprived of health, and often of life, by incarceration in prisons that are not only shockingly overcrowded but mediaeval in their construction and sanitary condition. The Russian Government, moreover, has been asking us more and more frequently of late to extradite Russians who have fled to this country for safety, and we naturally want to know what kind of prisons these possibly innocent refugees will be kept in during the year or two that may elapse before they are tried.

Since, however, Mr. Khrouleff may have been misreported with regard to these matters, as well as with regard to criminal enlightenment and agricultural work, I shall make no further reference to them, but shall end this discussion, so far as I am concerned, by examining briefly the assertions which he makes with regard to the Russian practice of shooting prisoners through the windows of their cells. He says that such shooting "is possible in Russia, as in other countries, only when an escape is attempted, or the guards are attacked, and only in the case that no other means can prevent the escape."

I am compelled to say, with all due respect, that this assertion agrees neither with the facts nor with Mr. Khrouleff's previous statements in Russia. All the cases of window-shooting that have been the subjects of interpellations in the Duma and that have been reported in the Russian press took place in the broad light of day, when no prisoner would think of trying to escape through a grated window and in full sight of an armed guard. Emma Padzin was shot dead at the window of her cell in the Riga Central Prison at noon, when she was merely looking out into the courtyard at other prisoners who were taking their exercise there. A few weeks later Edward Pela, a political offender, was shot dead through his cell window while he was brushing his hair. (Proceedings of the Duma; "Speech," St. Petersburg, and Russian Gazette, Moscow, Nov. 13 and 16, 1909.) Within the past year prisoners have been shot through their cell windows in Riga, Kiev, and St. Petersburg, as well as in Uralsk, Yeniseisk, Archangel, Vologda, Baku, Khokand, and many other parts of the empire.

Not a single prisoner thus shot was either attacking the guard or trying to escape, and in the explanation that Mr. Khrouleff made in the Duma he did not even attempt to justify the shooting on the ground of necessity. He merely said that the window-shooting order originated in the Council of Ministers and had been approved and promulgated by the Senate, and that, consequently, it could not be illegal. He added that "measures had been taken to have the order hung up in prison cells, so that prisoners should know of it, and should not, by their own incautious acts, bring upon themselves such undesirable repression." (Prison Messenger, St. Petersburg, March, 1910, p. 303.) From this language it plainly appears that prisoners were to be shot, not for attempting to escape but for "their own incautious act" in going to the window disobediently or even thoughtlessly and unconsciously.

The truth of the whole matter is that prisoners in the cells of overcrowded Russian prisons frequently went to their windows for air, or to look out, and while there sometimes signaled or talked to other prisoners taking exercise in the courtyard, and now and then used disrespectful or abusive language to the guards outside when the latter ordered them to withdraw. The Government determined to put a stop to this behavior and authorized guards to fire at prisoners who did not go away from their windows at the first warning. Mr. Khrouleff cannot truthfully deny this, because in his own official organ, The Prison Messenger, he cites a case in which a political offender named Wedenbaum was shot dead at the window of his cell in the Solitary Confinement Prison of St. Petersburg for using what was described as abusive language to the guard outside. The facts were established by judicial decision in the St. Petersburg Circuit Court, where an editor and a reporter were criminally prosecuted for giving publicity to false information concerning the treatment of politicals in that prison. The court found that Wedenbaum had been shot at the window of his cell by the outside guard for using abusive language, but that he had not been beaten or bayoneted to death afterward, as the prison comrades who washed his body reported. On the contrary, he had been instantly killed by the bullet, which entered his mouth. (Prison Messenger, January, 1910, p. 56.) Mr. Khrouleff says "the Russian prison administration does not consider it necessary to conceal anything that is going on in Russian prisons."

Would it not be better, then, to let the Council of Ministers and the Senate bear all the responsibility for the window-shooting order, and not try to defend it by making assertions that are inconsistent with official records and judicially established facts? GEORGE KENNAN.

MME. TROUBADOUR IS NAIVELY NAUGHTY

LEADING ROLE MISCAST

But the Music Is Charming, and the Singing of the Lyric Cast Is Generally Creditable.

"MADAME TROUBADOUR," an operetta, in three acts, from the French; book and lyrics by Joseph Herbert, music by Felix Albini. Lyric Theatre.

Juliette	Georgia Caine
Joseph	Edgar Atchinson Ely
Marquis De Kergazon	Charles Angelo
The Chevalier	Edgar Norton
Georgette	Anna Wheaton
Martine	Doris Goodwin
Vicomte Max de Voigommeux	Van Rensselaer Wheeler

When a temperamental French gentleman who writes bad ballads mentions St. Anthony and tells a blushing housemaid, "If you'll sup here to-night, I'll prove an anchorite," further insisting that there is to be "nothing doing when alone, when strangers come my love is shown"—when such things are promised in couplets very near the outset of what was once a French operetta and is now an American adaptation, you have every reason to fear the worst. And so far as Joseph Herbert's so-called book of "Mme. Troubadour" is concerned you certainly do get it. Nothing so baldly amateurish and so naïvely naughty has come this way in a long time. And in consequence—or largely in consequence of this—M. Felix Albini's operetta, which is very agreeably compounded of melodic, rhythmic, and spirited material, comes limping badly where it should run merrily along.

Another contributary cause to the failure of this really melodious operetta to arouse genuine enthusiasm last night was the unfitness of Miss Grace La Rue for the principal female rôle. To Miss La Rue's credit be it said that she sings the rather difficult music very well, indeed. But the rôle calls for a woman who can act, and especially a woman who knows how to suggest coquetry, witchery, charm, and grace—who can be playful one minute, a firebrand the next—and these things Miss La Rue cannot do. Moreover, her speech, with its dreadful overemphasis of unimportant letters and underemphasis of important ones, and its frequent mispronunciations, is of a sort that should never be heard upon a public stage.

Until Miss La Rue has learned to speak fairly well in the English language she ought to go into retirement, which wouldn't necessarily mean a long absence, for with proper application and a willingness to respect proper criticism she could doubtless learn quickly enough. All of which is said more in sorrow than in anger, for Miss La Rue is a fine figure of a woman, who, as has been said, shows excellent development as a singer.

In the original "Mme. Troubadour" was presumably very naughty, indeed, with a familiar Gallic triangular sort of plot that gets to be more and more murky the further it gets in the English version. When it isn't murky it is nonsensical, with a lot of kissing interludes that would probably seem highly amusing, if not to say wicked, in a female seminary, but in the threatre are about as piquant as an overdose of treacle, and about as sickening.

Briefly, the Marquis de Kergazon, the disciple of St. Anthony, is tired of his wife, and his wife is tired of him. She has been carrying on—as the American librettist would politely say—with the Vicomte Max de Voigommeux, whose name should convict him, without the gratuitous programme contribution to the effect that he is "a man about town." Both husband and wife would like a divorce, but she says "he hasn't enterprise enough" to go astray. To prove that she is wrong and give her grounds he consults the "man about town," learns the name of an eligible female, and sends for her to visit him at his château. Comes her maid, instead, to announce that the lady has been detained at home by the gentleman who pays the rent, whereupon Monsieur le Marquis, on the assumption that any port will do in a storm, insists upon the maid's supping with him—and in response to her virtuous protestation that she has "scruples and an unblemished past," makes the kindly promises already mentioned in the couplets.

Description need hardly go much further than to mention that the wife thereupon seeks the Vicomte at his country home, is pursued by her husband, who doesn't at all hold to the modern theory that what is sause for the gander should be sauce for the goose, and so onward to the usual finish. Incidentally there are such fresh and exhilarating comic expedients as having the Vicomte sit upon a needle while exclaiming: "I am deeply touched—this situation is painful," and of having the nearsighted Marquis hunting wildly for his specalcles, which are resting on top of his head. And lest this last good joke should fail of its full effect, one or more of the characters must pantomime the while to emphasize its meaning for the audience.

All the which is more regrettable since Albani's score is so very much better than is heard in most of the so-called popular musical entertainments, and is, on the whole, rather better sung. Curiously enough, there is not a single solo in the piece, the score being made up of duos, trios, quartets, and several varied and attractive finales, written often with color, with dash and variety.

It was not always possible to determine the exact status of Mr. Van Rensselaer Wheller's rôle—whether intended as farce, burlesque, or just plain man-about-townery, but the actor had moments that were suggestively Gallic, which was something in his favor. Moreover, he sang very agreeably, as did Mr. Charles Angelo, who played the eccentric husband excellently. Miss Georgia Caine also handled her songs very nicely and brought plenty of vivacity to the proceedings, further enlivened—for those who choose to call it so—by the somewhat noisy demonstrations of Miss Anna Wheaton and Miss Doris Goodwin, who played the maids with kissing propensities and bare legs. Mr. Edgar Atchison Ely has been seen to better advantage, as has Mr. Edgar Norton, but both were weighted down with bad parts.

TAKE TICKETS FROM HOTELS.

Shuberts Say Agencies Have Corrupted Treasurers of Their Theatres.

The Shuberts announced yesterday that they have severed all arrangements with the hotel ticekt agencies, and that all of the tickets for the New York playhouses will henceforth be on sale at the theatre box offices. Until yesterday the Shuberts had disposed of a certain number of front seats to the agencies, with the understanding that not more than 50 cents premium per seat should be charged.

The statement issued by Lee Shubert was as follows:

"The reason for breaking off our arrangement with the hotel agencies is that, not being satisfied with the regular agreements, they have not hesitated to corrupt the Treasurers of the theatres. It has been our custom to let the hotel men have the first ten rows of seats, but the hotel men have gone directly to the Treasurers for additional seats, without our knowledge. As the Treasurer of a theatre is ordinarily paid $30 a week, and as the agencies have even offered as much as $10 a day extra to these men for additional rows of seats, it has obviously been impossible for us to control the men in the box offices.

"It is on account of the manner in which these extra rows of seats have been held out for the agencies by the Treasurers direct, and for a consideration, that the public has found it often impossible to buy anything front of the eighteenth row at the box offices. The agencies would hold these extra seats until 7:30 P. M. and then return those not sold to the box office, so that patrons who had themselves been obliged to take back seats would see vacant orchestra chairs in the front rows. Rather than tolerate this condition of affairs we have declined to sell the agencies any more seats at all, and have advertised the fact at the top of our theatre advertisements in all the newspapers."

MOTOR CAR SOCIETY DINES.

The Motor Car Society of New York held its annual dinner at the Harvard Club last night. The object of this society, which is limited to twenty-five members, is to make tours. During the Spring and Autumn each year they make four or five trips to places of interest not far from New York. During the Winter they give several dinners, to one of which some celebrity is invited. At their chief Winter dinner last year Commander Peary was their guest.

Before the dinner last night a short business meeting was held, at which the work of the last year was reviewed and plans for the coming year were discussed. The society arranged to go to Belmont Park for the aviation meet next week.

The table was decorated with toy automobiles. It was set for twenty-five, although a few were not able to be present. Some of the members of the society are: President—A. E. Gallatin; Vice President—Percy R. Pyne 2d; Secretary—Orme Wilson; Vincent, Astor, Ogden Mills Reid, Newbold Morris, Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., Sidney Fish, Cortlandt Field Bishop, Fulton Cutting, Phoenix Ingraham, Marshall R. Kernochan, R. Thornton Wilson, and Malcolm D. Sloane.

NOVELTIES AT STYLE SHOW.

One a Combination Cloak for Auto Rides, Aeroplane, and the Opera.

The third National Style Show of the United Ladies' Tailor Association of America began yesterday in the Belvedere roof garden of the Hotel Astor. Many women went to look at and yearn for all the novel designs in riding and sporting costumes, but special interest centred in the suffragette suit, with its baggy trousers, nicely creased and cuffed, and its myriad pockets.

Another interesting exhibit is the combination cloak. It starts as a walking cloak, with fur collar and hat. For auto rides the lady takes out of a pocket half way down the left-hand side a silk covering, which goes completely over her head, hat and all, and for further warmth buttons the ends of the sleeves more tightly around her wrists. If she prefers aeroplane, she folds up the corners of the front of the coat at her feet and buttons them up, thus freeing her feet. Then for the opera she replaces the silk covering on her head, lets down the flaps in front, loosens up the sleeves, takes the train of the silk gown, which she has been wearing underneath all this time, out of a pocket at the bottom of the coat in the back, takes off her fur hat and puts it in that pocket, takes another little silk toque out of another pocket on the right, folds back the fur flap under her chin, and loosens up the coat in the back.

The exhibition at the Hotel Astor will continue throughout the week.

EAST SIDERS FILL THE NEW THEATRE

40,000 ASKED FOR SEATS

Founders' Boxes Occupied by Officers and Prominent Members of Settlements and Social Centres.

The New Theatre was filled to capacity last night at the first performance to be given in the east side subscription series at low prices. The top balcony that had been closed in the scheme of remodeling the house during the Summer had to be opened to help satisfy the demand for seats, and it was filled, as well as the body of the house. The founders' boxes were occupied by officers and prominent members of settlements and other social centres, and one of the two large boxes was devoted to newspaper people. In the other large box were several of the founders.

The audience watched the performance of "The Blue Bird" with silence, except at the end of the scenes, when the applause was almost deafening. Some of the speeches, especially those of The Dog, were evidently much appreciated, for there were murmurs of approval and now and then a slight outburst of handclapping that was silenced quickly. Most of the audience had never been in the theatre before, and during the long intermission the lobbies were filled with well-dressed and very much interested people.

There were about 2,000 present, which was the available seating capacity. The management of the theatre stated that fully 40,000 applications had been received for this single performance. The prices, as has already been published, ranged from ten to fifty cents, and the seats were sold by subscription. The distribution was in charge of the University Settlement, the Progressive Slutzker Association, Clara de Hirsch Home for Immigrants, Clara de Hirsch Home for Working Girls, Rand School of Social Science, the German Free People's Stage, and other organizations of this sort. Other performances already determined upon will be given on Saturday evening, Dec. 24; Saturday evening, Feb. 5, and Monday evening, March 13. The second play will be "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Those who occupied the founders' boxes last night were Director Ames of The New Theatre, Robbins Gillman and Louis Eddinger of the University Settlement; B. Weinstein, Organizer of the United Hebrew Trades; Prof. Charles D. Richards, Cooper Union; Algernon Lee, Joseph Margolis, and Mr. and Mrs. William Mailly of the Rand School of Social Science; officers of the Women Trade Union League, Dr. Henry Fleischman, Otto Hollander, Allan Davis, editor of the Educational Alliance; Miss Jane Day of the Public Service Association, Dr. Rudolph Zahn, John Weidekoff, Ludwig Lore, and Mr. Jablinowsky of the German Free People's Stage; Dr. Ernest T. Hapgrove of The Comforter; Robert Adamson, Secretary to the Mayor, and party; Alderman Niles N. Becker, Miss Rose Sommerfield, Clara de Hirsch Home for Working Girls; Miss Sophia Berger, Young Women's Hebrew Association; Falk Yonkers, Men's Hebrew Association; Mr. and Mrs. Salomon Lowenstein, Hebrew Orphan Asylum; Miss Lillian Wald, Nurses' Settlement; Dr. Charles Bernheimer, Hebrew Educational Society, Brooklyn; Otto Kalsh, manager of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum; Miss Rose Dalphin, Technical School for Girls; Dr. L. Barney, Technical School for Boys; Miss Rose Laddon, Herman Bernstein, Mrs. De Mille, Prof. and Mrs. Robert Erskein Ely of the League for Political Education, and Abraham Kaufman of the Clothing Cutters' Union.

FINGER BROKEN, SHE DANCES

Louise La Gal, appearing this week at Hammerstein's as Musette in a five-scene pantomime, "The Carnival of Roses," broke the index finger of her left hand at the beginning of the act last night, and then straightening it out with no indication of the pain it cost her, she danced on for twenty minutes until the fall of the curtain made possible the summoning of a doctor from the Hotel Knickerbocker.

It was in an acrobatic movement, where she had to swing through the air, that the man who held her grasped her hand so tightly that the finger broke. Mlle. La Gal had to hold the injured index bent upward most of the time, and just as the curtain began to lower she heard a woman on the front row whisper audibly:

"The Iron King" with Irish Songs.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—To-night at Parsons Theatre Sidney R. Ellis produced "The Iron King," of which Cosmo Hamilton and Mr. Ellis are the authors. The new play is a story of the industrial world. Pittsburg, Penn., is the scene, and the story tells of a young Irishman, Neil O'Donnell, who has inherited an iron and steel plant. During a strike he mingles with the workmen under an assumed name and learns what reforms are needed. He also learns something about himself from a young school teacher, Jane Horner. After many complications young O'Donnell wins the heart and hand of the school teacher. Frank Adair, an Irish baritone singer, acts the rôle of Neil O'Donnell.

Marc Klaw Forming New Circuits.

Announcement was made yesterday that Marc Klaw, who is on a Westren trip in the interests of Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger, had reached San Francisco, where he had concluded arrangements whereby Gottlob, Marx & Company, owners of the new Columbia Theatre, will become interested in the new circuit of theatres being formed by Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger in the Northwest and on the Coast. Mr. Klaw will start to-day on a tour of Southern California to close similar arrangements in other cities.

FLAG RUSH AT COLUMBIA.

Sophomores Victorious and Freshmen Come Out Short of Clothing.

Before 1,500 people ranged along the sides of South Field yesterday the Columbia freshmen and sophomores engaged in their annual flag rush. Three five-minute periods were fought, but not a freshman was able to gain the top of the pole from which the pennant floated.

The event began with processions of the two classes around the pole. Finally a sophomore hoisted himself to the top of the gallowslike affair and set a Columbia flag in place. The pole around which the fighting was done was a stout affair, nine inches in diameter, with three crossbars, the lowest of these about eight feet above the ground, the second two feet above the lowest, and the topmost crossbar two feet above the middle one.

With the flag in place, the sophomores, standing seven or eight rows deep, locked arms around the pole, leaving a small contingent of their number free in front, however, to break the force of the onrushing freshmen. The latter attacked the sophomores in two groups from opposite directions. Hard as the 1914 boys fought, their best attempts went for naught.

Both sides had bruises and clothing torn to ribbons to show for their fun. Some skillful manoeuvring was necessary to shield from the gaze of visitors a few freshmen who emerged after the second round very short of clothing.

The sophomores finally captured some straggling freshmen after the rush and ducked them in the fountains. One freshman fought hard and pulled a sophomore into the fountain with him.

MME. SEMBRICH ARRIVES.

Begins Concert Tour Soon—Campanini Back to Conduct Opera in Chicago.

Two notable arrivals on the George Washington yesterday were Cleofonte Campanini and Mme. Marcella Sembrich. Mr. Campanini, who returns to this country after a year's absence to conduct opera in Chicago, was accompanied by his wife, Mme. Eva Tetrazzini-Campanini. After a luncheon at the Navarre Hotel and short interviews with various New York friends, Mr. Campanini caught the Twentieth Century Limited for Chicago.

"I shall conduct at least three new works this season," he said—"Puccini's 'Girl of the Golden West,' Strauss's 'Rosencavalier,' and Herbert's 'Natoma.'

"I saw Strauss in Europe this Summer and talked of his new opera with him, but he did not show me any of the music. On the other hand, I have heard a large portion of 'The Girl of the Golden West,' and predict a brilliant success for it."

Mme. Sembrich was accompanied by her husband, Prof. Stengel, and her maid Frieda, who has been with the soprano for twenty-three years. Mme. Sembrich will open her concert tour in Chicago on Oct. 20. She will be heard in New York on Nov. 8.

Nat C. Goodwin in "The Captain."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 10.—The first performance of "Nat C. Goodwin's new play, "The Captain," by George Broadhurst and C. T. Dazey, under the management of Klaw & Erlanger, took place here to-night at English's Opera House. Mr. Goodwin impersonated a New York clubman who becomes involved in a Cuban insurrection and a charge of murder through his good nature in assuming the name of a friend in trouble. Besides Mr. Goodwin the cast included Beatrice Morgan, Rose Curry, Margaret Moreland, Charles Lane, Dodson Mitchell and Sidney Bracey.

Elsie Ferguson Appears in "Ambition."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 10.—Elsie Ferguson appeared here to-night in the first production of "Ambition," a drama written around the principle that a woman's success is sure to be found at the fireside, despite the temptations of a career. Miss Ferguson's rôle ranges from light comedy, in the first act, to emotion in the third. Miss Ferguson's support included Frank Mills, William Harrigan, Helen Macboth, Beatrice Prentice, Ida Glenn, and De Witt Robinson.

"Der Rastelbinder" at German Theatre

The new comic opera stock company at the Irving Place German Theatre made its first appearance last night, offering "Der Rastelbinder," a three-act operetta, by Lehan and Leon. The piece has been given in New York several times at different playhouses. The principals in the cast last night were Emma Malkowska, the new soubrette of the company, who appeared as Susa, and Adolf Kuehns, who played Wolf Baer Pfefferkorn.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THE THEATRES

"The Little Damozel" was transferred from the Comedy to Nazimova's Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last night to continue its run.

Will H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols in their old sketch, "The School of Acting," appeared as headliners at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre yesterday. Others on the bill were Tom Nawn and company, Quinlan and Richards, Harry Breen, Edwards, Van, and Tierney, Mabel McCane, the De Haven Sextet, Ferry, and the Namba troupe.

The bill at the American Music Hall was headed by Charles J. Ross and Elgie Bowen in a new musical skit called "Kisses." The Zigeuner troupe of musicians made their first American appearance, and the rest of the programme included "The Monkey's Paw," the Arvis mysteries, McMahon and Chapelle, the McLellan-Carson duo, Jessie Broughton, James J. Morton, and Mason and Bart.

Gus Edwards's "Song Review" was the principal feature at the Colonial Theatre yesterday. The remainder of the programme was made up of Mrs. Gardner Crane and company, the Royal Calibria trio, the Merrill company, Macart and Bradford, Lil Hawthorne, the four Ueasems, and Hawthorne and Burt.

At Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre the headliner was Belle Blanche, impersonator, and among the other entertainers were Bud Fisher and Tom Mack, Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler; "The Carnival of Roses," Haines and Vidoso, Gene Green, Butler and Bassett, Odell and Kinley, and Claude Rauff.

The bill at the Alhambra Theatre was headed by Karno's Komedians in a new pantomime. Among the others who appeared were Bert Coote and company, George Newburn, Laddie Cliff, Hedges brothers and Jacobson, Barnes and Crawford, Howard and North, and Malia and Bart.

The Rigoletto brothers were the headliners at the Bronx Theatre. Jane Courthope and company appeared in a sketch, and others on the bill were Yorke and Adams, Stuart, Melville and Higgins, and the Arlington Comedy Four.

At the Columbia Theatre Hurtig & Seamon's "Ginger Girls" company began a week's engagement yesterday afternoon, presenting two one-act burlettas. Among the special vaudeville features were the Semon Duo, Goldie and Hill, and Signor and Edith Franz.

Otis Skinner in "Your Humble Servant" is the week's attraction at the Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn. Mr. Skinner's supporting company contains many of the players of last season.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

It is announced that "The Twelve-Pound Look," J. M. Barrie's short play that Charles Frohman is to produce this Fall, was written for Ethel Barrymore, as a compliment for her performance of "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire." She will appear in this playlet during her next New York engagement.

The engagement of Fred Terry and Julia Neilson in "The Scarlet Pimpernel" at the Knickerbocker Theatre will be limited, as they are under contract to produce a new play at the New Theatre, London, on Jan. 2.

Henry W. Savage has engaged George W. Chadwick, director of the New England Conservatory of Music, to write the music that is to be a feature of the allegorical drama, "Everywoman." Mr. Chadwick's music will introduce a number of songs and choruses, as well as entr'acte and prelude compositions.

"Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, Oct. 8, averaged 8.16 cents per pound."—Adv.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Miss Kathleen Lilian Coddington, daughter of the late Charles Egbert Coddington of New York, and Lieut. George Edmund de St. Clair-Stevenson of the Royal West Kent Regiment were married at St. James's in Piccadilly to-day.

Miss Kathleen Lilian Coddington was the only daughter of the late Charles E. Coddington, a prominent lawyer of this city, who died at his home in Bay Shore, L. I., on Aug. 23, 1907. For many years he was an active member of the Manhattan Club, and also of the Larchmont Yacht Club, and after his retirement from the practice of law, five years before his death, he spent considerable time abroad with his family.

The bride's mother still lives at Bay Shore, L. I., and she has a brother, David Coddington, who is engaged in business in this city.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 10.—The marriage of Bayard Stevens, son of Col. Edward Stevens of Castle Point, Hoboken, N. J., to Miss Mary McDonald, daughter of the late Capt. William McDonald and Mrs. McDonald of Clarke County, Va., will take place to-morrow in Grace Protestant Episcopal Church, Berryville. A small reception will follow at the residence of the bride's mother.

GOULD—SHARP.

In St. Mark's Church, West Orange, N. J., yesterday morning, Miss Lida Wood Sharp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sharp of West Orange, was married to George R. Gould, an Albany newspaper man. A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony, and Mr. and Mrs. Gould left for the Bermudas. The best man was Rodney Bean of New York and the maid of honor was Miss Marguerite Arnold.

Lunacy Board for Magistrate's Annoyer.

Louis Saron, who is charged with assault in the first degree, was arraigned before Judge Mulqueen, in General Sessions, yesterday, and a commission in lunacy was appointed to examine him. Saron, who says he is a jeweler by trade and a prizefighter by profession, was arrested on Sept. 8 by Assistant City Marshal Lazarous after he had gone to the Harlem Court and threatened to shoot Magistrate O'Connor, who had once sent him to the Workhouse.

HUMANE CULT IN SCHOOLS.

Dr. Stillman Urges Humanitarianism as a Part of Children's Education.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Public schools throughout the world as agencies for the spread of humanitarianism was advocated by Dr. William O. Stillman, at the International Humane Conference here today. The organization has begun a week's session, with delegates from all over the United States and from many foreign countries.

Dr. Stillman, in opening the conference, said that the work of protecting children and animals was progressing, but that a better understanding of the ideals of the various societies engaged in the work was essential to a more rapid advance. He advocated beginning this educational movement with the children.

"I feel," he said, "that we cannot lay too much stress on the necessity of advancing the introduction of humane education in every public school throughout the world. Humane education should be considered an essential part of modern culture."

Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor spoke on behalf of President Taft, who also sent a personal letter of regret at his inability to be present. Secretary Nagel told the conference of the work done by his department in investigating child labor conditions.

Peter Goelet Gerry of New York read a paper prepared by Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry, founder of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

William B. Dana.

William B. Dana, founder, editor, and owner of The Financial Chronicle, died yesterday in his 82d year at Mastic, L. I. His health was impaired by a recent fall, in which he broke his thigh. Mr. Dana was born at Utica, N. Y., Aug. 26, 1829, and entered upon the practice of law in that city in 1853. In 1859 he abandoned the practice of law and moved to New York, where he became one of the owners of Hunt's Merchants' Magazine. In July, 1865, Mr. Dana began the publication of The Commercial and Financial Chronicle, which he patterned after The Economist of London, and which has ever since held a leading place among financial publications in this country. Mr. Dana was a graduate of Yale of the class of 1851.

A FAIR PROFIT

When we go after a job it is a matter of serious importance to us that we should get it.

But it is equally important to the Owner that we should get it, and sometimes more important to the owner than to us.

YALE TEAM HOLDS ITS HARDEST PRACTICE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 10.—The longest and hardest practice the Yale football squad has had since the season opened was held this afternoon. Head Coach Coy says that the present month means the period of learning the new formations, and that they should be learned as early as possible. A good start was made to-day. It was especially timely, because of the West Point game next Saturday. More than half an hour at scrimmaging behind closed gates was held, and the regulars were played to their limit.

Capt. Daly did not scrimmage, but watched the working out of the new formations with coaches. To-day marked the return of Kilpatrick to the eleven for regular work. He expects to be in the Yale line-up at West Point. Brooks was at right end only a short time, retiring because of an old injury. He will probably not play again this week. Oldenburg, the tallest player on the team, was also slightly hurt. He has been guard on the scrubs.

The call for coaches brought Foster Sanford, Dr. Fred Murphy, and Ray Biglow for the line men and Jack Owsley for the backs. Most of the playing in secret was devoted to improving the rush line. Jack Field was in uniform. He expects to be back in the game in two weeks. Announcement was made to-night that a regular game will be played Wednesday between the 'Varsity and the freshmen.

The cut of the squad announced last night went into effect this afternoon. Only sixty-two of a squad of ninety-five players were retained. The list includes thirty-one half backs, four quarter backs, four centre men, six guards, ten tackles, and seven ends. No order to reduce a football squad has ever been made at Yale before, but the plan of the coaches this Fall in giving up the third and fourth elevens has made the large squad unnecessary.

TIGERS' PRACTICE SECRET.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 10.—Princeton held secret football practice this afternoon. This step was taken because of the realization among the coaches that the Lafayette game at Easton, Penn., on Saturday will be a hard one. The Tiger team has played brilliantly at times, but inconsistently on other occasions, and the hope of the coaches is that the forward pass will be developed and that Princeton's formation will be more compact than heretofore.

Cool weather to-day made more snappy work possible and the play of the Tigers improved perceptibly. In order to perfect the plays that he has planned Coach Roper held no scrimmage, but substituted signal practice and blocking.

Princeton stock went up to-day with the return at right end of Brown, one of the best freshman players last year. Brown has been out of the game ten days. He will probably play at tackle. Sam White, Captain of the baseball team, practiced in the place of Bredemus at left end.

Putting Ginger Into Cornell Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The football week at Cornell opened to-day with a long three hours' drill followed by a forty-minute scrimmage, which was the toughest of the year to date. Ordinarily Monday is a day of rest for the squad, but the unsatisfactory result of the Oberlin game stimulated the coaches to plan one week of grueling work, and they got a good start this afternoon. It was a tired bunch of men which came up the hill at 7 o'clock. In addition to the scrub team, the 'Varsity had to face Reed, O'Rourke, Hutchinson, and Namack in the scrimmage—fourteen men against eleven—and that they won out under the circumstances speaks well for the grit and fight shown by a team which Saturday appeared listless.

Namack, who came back to-day to help coach, was an old centre man, and he and Reed played with the scrub line. Hutchinson was in the back field, while O'Rourke led off the interference on end runs. The 'Varsity, however, fought fiercely. The regulars scored the first touchdown following a twenty-yard end run by White. They came through with another score when Pitcher kicked a field goal from the thirty-yard line. The scrubs were lucky to get a touchdown on a 'Varsity fumble. The changes in the 'Varsity line-up included Zeller for Austin at left tackle, Smith for Butler at quarter back, Whyte and Nichols half backs, and Collins full back.

Wier is West Point's Captain.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Cadet J. L. Wier was elected football Captain at a meeting held to-day by those cadets who have won their letter "A" in football, and according to the rules of the Athletic Association are the only ones allowed to vote on the selection of a Captain. Only one vote was cast, and Wier was then declared unanimously elected Captain. Wier hails from Illinois, and is a member of the first class, and has been prominent in football ever since his entrance. He plays right guard, and is classed along the top notchers. While he is active in athletics, Wier is also well up in his academic work, and stands No. 40 in a class of 85 men.

The coaches are more than pleased with the showing the men made in the game last Saturday, and to-day only signal practice, running under punts was ordered. Hyatt, last year's quarter back, came out to-day, after being laid off with a sprained ankle since the first week of practice. Hicks slightly wrenched his leg last Saturday, and did not practice to-day. All the rest of the men returned to the field to-day in fine condition.

Short Practice for Annapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 10.—Football practice was cut short by a military drill at the Naval Academy this afternoon and was limited to a signal drill. Dalton, left half back, and Erwin, quarter back, did not get into the line-up, as they were suffering with slightly injured legs, and their places were taken by Carey and McReavey. The latter, a fourth classman, has been making an excellent showing in practice, and did particularly well during a portion of the game against Rutgers on Saturday. It is thought that he will give Erwin a hard tussle for the place. The coachers are also much pleased with the work of Gilchrist, another fourth classman, at end. He is one of the hardest tacklers on the squad, and his speed, which was his weak point, has improved. With Howe and Brown both doing well, the Academy squad has received valuable additions from the entering class.

Nixon Returns to N. Y. U. Team.

None of the 'Varsity eleven was in football togs at New York University yesterday afternoon, Coach Olcott having excused the men after their hard game with Princeton last Saturday. Regular practice was held for the second string men, however, especial attention being given to the 'Varsity substitutes. Nixon, who played quarterback on the first team all last season, was back in the game yesterday. Inlegibility has kept him off the field ever since college opened, but he was admitted to good standing last Friday, and is again out for his old position. Capt. Galloway has been playing quarterback this year. Whether or not Nixon's return will cause a shift as doubtful, but his playing yesterday showed that he still possessed his old-time form. Dutcher, the six-footer that has been substituting at left end, has been declared ineligible by the Faculty. It is doubtful if he will play again this year.

New Captain for Lehigh Team.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Oct. 10.—Alexander (Texas) Black of Fort McKavett, Texas, was to-day elected Captain of Lehigh University football team. Black played tackle on Lehigh's 'Varsity for three years previous to this. Black succeeds Chester B. Lawson of Pottsville, who has been compelled to leave college because of his studies.

Amherst Preparing for Harvard.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 10.—Amherst got under way to-day for the Harvard game in a fast, snappy practice. No such thing as a victory is looked for by Coach Hobbs, but a score at least as small as that of the Harvard-Williams game is looked for. Creede, '13, and Sibley, '12, have returned to the line, and Connolly, '13, is once more in the back field.

NO SCRIMMAGE FOR HARVARD.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10.—There was not much stirring on Soldiers' Field this afternoon in a football way. The practice was secret, but there was no scrimmage. The work consisted of technical practice for the ends and backs, blocking and breaking through movements, and signal drilling, in which the first squad men were divided into two elevens. An addition to the coaching staff was Joe Nourse, who played centre on the team that beat Yale two years ago. He was a welcome addition, for he was a fine centre and took the snap backs in hand this afternoon. Haughton, Cutting, Blagdon, Leary, and Fish were the other coaches.

Corbett, one of the best of the backs, who has been out of practice for a week with a boil on his hand, is now afflicted with more boils and did not put on his uniform to-day. Neither did Ted Frothingham, who hurt his knee last Saturday. Bush, a tackle, being somewhat bunged up in the Williams game, did not practice either, while F. Leslie, substitute lineman, also rested. Campbell, who was hurt a week ago, returned to active duty.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Miniature Dusters Known as "Ticklers" Are Held to be "Toys."

After the taking of much testimony and several solemn sessions, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that miniature feather dusters, otherwise and more popularly known as "ticklers," are not real dusters under the tariff law, but are actually "toys." Butler Bros. of New York and Chicago, who imported the articles for the use of celebrants on election night and New Year's, demurred to the high rate of duty exacted by the Collectors of Customs at these two ports.

General Appraiser McClelland, who heard the testimony for Board 1 of the General Board, was told that the Government classified the merchandise as "feather dusters" with a tax of 40 per cent. under the provision in the Payne law for such articles. The importers, who desire to cheapen the prices of the articles to the numerous "ultimate consumers" of the two celebrations referred to, appealed to the board, making the claim that a duty of 35 per cent. as "toys" should satisfy the demands of the Treasury Department.

Mr. McClelland, after consulting the dictionaries, finds that by unanimous consent the authorities are a unit in agreeing that a "toy" is a "trinket, a bauble, and something intended for amusement rather than for serious use, or a plaything." The General Appraiser does not go into the ethics of the case, but draws his conclusions from the preponderance of the testimony. He says:

"The evidence shows that these miniature dusters are used as 'ticklers,' or, in other words, as articles for amusement on carnival and other like occasions. An examination of the official sample leads us to the conclusion that they are not articles of utility and that whatever value they have must be as playthings. We are satisfied that these diminutive dusters fall within this definition, and are therefore subject to classification as toys. The protest is sustained and the decision of the Collector reversed."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 10.—In the fourth round of his fight with Battling Nelson tonight Monte Dale's seconds threw up the sponge. Dale had broken his arm. At that time he had almost been put out by Nelson.

SAVANNAH TO HOLD GRAND PRIZE RACE

Philadelphians Were Preparing to Make an Offer When Decision Was Reached.

The automobile race for the Grand Prize Gold Cup offered by the Automobile Club of America will be held at Savannah about the middle of November. This decision was reached yesterday at a meeting of the Contest Board of the Automobile Club, the Savannah Automobile Club, and the municipal authorities of that city. A tentative date, Nov. 12, was named, but the actual date will be decided later. Nov. 19 and 22 are probable dates. This decision must be ratified by the Board of Governors of the club, and a meeting of that body has been called for to-day. It is a foregone conclusion that the action of the Contest Committee in transferring the race to the Southern city will be approved.

The committee of Georgians who came here to get the race included Mayor George W. Tiedeman, Harvey Granger, and A. W. Solomon of the Savannah Automobile Club; A. B. Moore and Oliver T. Bacon of the County Commission, which has charge of the roads, and Judge George T. Conn, who came in an advisory capacity.

When the Motor Cups Holding Company abandoned the race for the Long Island Motor Parkway Savannah was the first city that made application for the race. The first running of the event was held over the Savannah course in 1908, and was a decided success in every feature. The course was patrolled by the State militia.

The race will be for a distance of 379.2 miles, and it is understood that the Savannah people have given assurance that the roads will again be patroled by the State militia. They have also promised to improve the course over two years ago, and some of the tortuous curves will be eliminated. There will be longer stretch and fewer turns. Under the improved conditions, the Savannah automobile enthusiasts believe that the course will be four miles an hour faster than it was two years ago. It was agreed that the Savannah course could be put in condition by Nov. 1 and the necessary grand stands erected soon after that date.

A meeting of the men interested in the Fairmount Park race in Philadelphia was held in the Mayor's office in that city yesterday, for the purpose of appointing a committee to come to this city to make a proposition for the holding of the Grand Prize on the Fairmount Park course. While this meeting was in progress a telegram was received from this city stating that the race would be held in Savannah.

J. H. Nye, manager of the Atlanta Motordrome, who is in this city in the interests of a big automobile meet which is to be held in Atlanta on Nov. 3 to 5, was also ready to submit a proposition for the Grand Prize, but the offers of the motordrome promoters could not have been considered, as one of the conditions of the race is that it must be run over roads.

JOAN'S NEW RECORD.

Cleveland Filly Makes World's Mark for Four-Year-Old Trotters.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 10.—Joan, owned by Capt. David Shaw of Cleveland, to-day won the Transylvania Stakes, the $5,025 feature of the Grand Circuit harness races, in straight heats, in the first of which she broke the world's record for four-year-old trotting fillies. She went the mile in 2:05¾, half a second better than her own race record, made at Columbus.

Grace, also owned by Capt. Shaw, won the Championship Stallion Stakes, worth $4,402 to the winner. W. E. D. Stokes, breeder of her sire, Peter the Great, got a two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar silver cup.

The 2:09 trot went to Soprano, Ed W. and Joseph Madden's mare, which won the last three heats.

Joan defeated the best field of the year, including Dudie Archdale and Billy Burke. McDevitt in each heat held her in second or third place until the turn into the stretch, and then sent her to the front. In each instance she won with something to spare.

STEEL TONNAGE SHRINKS.

Orders on Books at End of September Close to Low Record.

The United States Steel Corporation issued yesterday its report of unfilled orders on the books at the end of September, the third monthly statement of tonnage since J. Pierpont Morgan's resolution to publish these figures monthly instead of quarterly was passed at the last Directors' meeting. The tonnage of 3,158,106 is the lowest with one exception ever reported since the corporation's organization. At the end of September, 1904, the unfilled orders totaled 3,027,436 tons, 128,670 tons less than the September tonnage reported yesterday. Compared with the tonnage on the books on Aug. 3, yesterday's report indicates a shrinkage of 379,022 tons. On June 30 the unfilled orders totaled 4,257,794 tons, which indicates that during the quarters just ended the reserve of orders ahead has diminished by 1,099,688 tons.

The report was not a surprise to Wall Street. It has been well known that in the absence of buying by the railroads the mills have been turning out orders faster than new business has been coming in. Unfilled orders have been shrinking steadily since Dec. 31, 1909, when the tonnage on the books was 5,927,031. The highest tonnage of unfilled orders on record was reached on Dec. 31, 1906, the height of the boom in the steel trade prior to the panic. On that date the total was 8,489,718 tons.

COMMODITIES MARKET.

The wheat market was weak during the morning, steadying a little toward the close, but later on the Curb, after the Government report came out, showed considerable weakness. The early weakness was due to the cables, which showed unexpected depression on account of the large world's exports and the favorable weather in the Argentine. World's exports up to Saturday night were given at 16,952,000 bushels, compared with 14,544,000 bushels the previous week and 14,160,000 bushels last year. A number of cables were received stating that there were general rains in the Argentine, and the drought which had been so much of a factor the past week was broken in the affected districts. The visible supply of wheat showed an unexpected decrease of 659,000 bushels in the United States, while there was an increase of 2,180,000 bushels in Canada. Last year the visible supply showed an increase of 3,552,000 bushels. This was one of the steadying factors in the late trade. The Government report, which came just after the close as expected, indicated a considerably larger Spring wheat crop than the previous indications. The total given was 233,475,000 bushels, or 22,000,000 bushels more than the September figures, and 58,373,000 less than last year. The grand total of the Spring and Winter wheat crop is 691,769,000 bushels, or 46,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Corn was weak and fairly active on the weather, which was very favorable over Sunday, and the weather map before the opening showed unusually fine conditions for the curing of the crop. The long range weather prediction was for fair weather, and the trade was rather inclined to look for a bearish Government report. There was a small decrease—619,000 bushels—in the visible supply, which served as a steadying factor in the late trade. The Government report made a gain of 2.1 points in the month, and the present condition of 80.3 is 1.9 above the ten-year average. The indicated corn crop was a record one, 3,046,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,772,000,000 bushels final last year. This big increase in the crop, with a general belief in a large carry-over from last year, was considered bearish.

Oats were moderately active and lower, influenced by the decline in other grain. There was a small decrease in the visible supply, 64,000 bushels. The Government report, as expected, confirmed the idea of a record crop. The total given was 1,096,000,000 bushels, or 41,000,000 bushels more than estimated last month, and 89,000,000 bushels more than last year, which was the previous record crop.

Provisions were weak, influenced by the heaviness in grain and some decline in live hogs. There was rather liberal selling after midday, and final prices were at about the lowest.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The trade in cottonseed oil was active in October, but other months were rather neglected. The October broke about 10 points during the morning on further liquidation and selling of speculative long oil; but the buying was credited to one of the leading refining interests and the decline was recovered in the afternoon. The position in the October is much mixed and excepting for the closing out of contracts already entered into there is but little trading in the October. Crude oil was reported somewhat steadier for the forward deliveries. Future prices:

COTTON.

There was a heavy trade in cotton, with prices showing weakness during the morning under the influence of lower cables and general realizing. The decline carried the market off about 20 points. Some of the large Wall Street longs were reported heavy sellers, and there was not so much anxiety shown in the buying. The demand, however, kept up, and in the afternoon prices made strong recoveries, with the market up to about the high point. About 2:15 the suspension of the Cotton Exchange firm of Argo, Jester & Co. was announced, and after this the market was nervous and rather unsettled, with traders nervous, and there seemed to be some evening up. There were reports of the failure of two native banks of Shanghai for 10,000,000 taels, and this undoubtedly added to the nervousness. Bulls are continuing to talk very confidentially of 17c to 20c for cotton, and a special statement was issued by one of the more pronounced bulls predicting that figure. An estimate on the crop by H. L. Scales placed the outturn at 11,650,000 bales. The weather conditions were very favorable over Sunday, and the cotton crop is maturing and being gathered under very favorable conditions. The movement of cotton is large, although the interior receipts for the day were 9,000 bales less than last year, while the shipments from the interior were 1,000 bales more than last year. Exports are large, and the shipments so far this season are only about 100,000 bales less than last year. Southern spot markets were reported at 1/16c decline to 1-16c advance.

COFFEE.

There was a comparatively quiet trade in the local future market for coffee, and after opening steady at a decline of 2@5 points from last week, values showed an easy undertone, and at the close was barely steady at a net loss of 5@10 points. There was little aggressiveness on either side, and total sales for the day amounted to 23,500 bags. There was moderate liquidation on the part of longs and sentiment was influenced by lower markets abroad. Havre was steady early, but eased off during the day, and at the close was unchanged to ¼ franc lower, while Hamburg showed a decline of ¼@¾ pfenning. It seemed to be the general opinion that the weakness abroad was due to the movement which has been running ahead of expectations, and total receipts so far this season at Rio and Santos now aggregate 5,743,000 bags, against 7,938,000 bags last year, and 4,875,000 bags two years ago. The markets in Brazil were steady with Rio unchanged, while Santos showed a decline of 50 reis. The receipts at Rio and Santos for the day amounted to 69,000 bags, compared with 108,000 bags last year. The cash demand for coffee was again inactive, and this halt in orders for spot coffe has had some influence on sentiment. The fact that about 600,000 bags of high-grade Rio coffee has been marketed here since the beginning of the session has had a tendency to restrict active buying, and as buyers in the interior appear to have supplied the requirement for the time being they are not disposed to make provision for the future. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at United States ports last week amounted to 121,547 bags, as against 144,734 bags last week and 130,904 bags last year. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 2,918,377 bags, against 3,873,854 bags last year and 3,330,377 bags two years ago.

The total warehouse deliveries in the United States for the week were 121,547 bags against 144,736 last week and 130,904 last year. Of the former amount New York had 113,586 bags.

The weekly clearances and shipments from Brazilian points during the week were as follows: Total clearances from Rio, 81,000 bags, including 30,000 to the United States, 47,000 to Europe and North Africa, and 4,000 to Cape, River Plate, and West Coast of South America. Santos clearances, 116,000 bags, including 43,000 to the United States, 71,000 to Europe and North Africa, and 2,000 to Cape, River Plate, and West Coast of South America. Santos shipments were 199,000 bags, including 75,000 to the United States and 124,000 to Europe.

Victoria clearances, 4,000 bags to the United States.

Bahia weekly receipts, 5,600 bags; stock, 36,000 bags; clearances to the United States, nil; to Germany, 600, and elsewhere, 1,900.

A SPLENDID CROP REPORT

Professional speculation in securities was at a low ebb in the forepart of yesterday's stock market session and so dull was business on the floor of the Stock Exchange through this period that a resumption of activity late in the afternoon failed to carry the volume of dealings beyond 200,000 shares. Some of the hesitation displayed by traders was due, doubtless, to knowledge of the fact that the United States Steel Corporation report on unfilled orders at the close of September and the Government's report on crop conditions for the same month were to be published later in the day, and that in advance of the figures it was somewhat hazardous to take on commitments. At any rate fluctuations were narrow and the market practically at a standstill throughout the forenoon. The steel report appeared at noon, and although its showing was hardly regarded as favorable, nevertheless this fact did not interfere with the quick expansion of trading and a sharp upturn of prices which came with the splendid Government return. The market closed strong, with any recessions of the morning completely overcome and fractional gains general through the list.

Of the Steel report it may be said very briefly that the loss in tonnage on the books at the close of the month, 379,022 tons, was less than the similar loss reported at the end of August by nearly 55,000 tons, but greater than that noted at the close of July by nearly 100,000 tons. The actual tonnage unfilled is with the exception of that reported in September, 1908, the smallest ever reported publicly by the corporation, although it must be remembered that in the dull times of 1907 as well as in those of 1903-4, when no such monthly reports as are now made were issued tonnage may very well have gone under the present figures. These are not below expectations, and their cause is so simple, consisting, of course, in the drying up of business from the railroads, that the situation is not regarded as serious, however extraordinary it may appear. As for the crop report, it is now established beyond peradventure that the country will harvest the greatest corn crop in its history, indications being for above three million bushels, and, in spite of all the alarms of mid-Summer a wheat harvest only three times exceeded. These, with the record returns for oats, are the really striking features of the Government document, and it is unnecessary to elaborate here on the fundamental strength which such harvests impart to the business and finance of the country.

There was in the time money market some reflection of the better showing made by the banks in their actual statement of Saturday last, which was published, of course, after the close of the Stock Exchange, but call money rates still ruled around last week's figures, and bankers continued to insist upon the necessity for conservatism if strain is to be avoided. The arrival here of one of the prominent members of the foreign banking group, which insisted upon a guarantee of cotton bills by our own bankers, has revived the hope that the dead-lock in this matter may soon be broken through personal study and inquiry, and that from this source there will be placed upon the markets no unusual demands.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Monday.

Three-fifths of the total business of 34,630 shares on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was done in the last two hours. Under the influence of the good Government crop report showing the market closed strong, with indications that trading was broadening out somewhat, following an extremely dull period early in the day. Commission houses handled toward the close many odd-lot buying orders among the specialties as well as the standard stocks, the list of different stocks changing hands numbering forty-seven.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Diamond Match and Sears-Roebuck were the features on the Chicago Stock Exchange to-day, and while the volume of business was not heavy, Match crept a point higher, and Sears-Roebuck wavered some under profit taking after opening a point higher at 169. McCrum-Howell held steady at last week's level, as did Commonwealth Edison. Further profit taking in Sears-Roebuck weighed the price an additional distance during the afternoon, and the close was at 167, while Match succeeded in adding another fraction to its earlier gain. Pneumatic Tool ended the day with several points' increase over Saturday.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—A sudden spurt in the Asphalt stocks and a rush to cover shorts in the local traction issues this afternoon were the chief features on the local Stock Exchange. The upbidding of Rapid Transit and Union Traction did not begin until after 1 o'clock. Prior to that time both issues had been practically inert around Saturday's figures, but before 2 o'clock P. R. T. had been pushed from 19¼ to 20¼, while Union was rushed across 44. About 4,500 shares of P. R. T. changed hands.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Many Issues Show Gains, Although the Close Is Below the Day's Highest.

UNITED CIGAR GOES UP

Rises from 62 to 67 in Active Market—Many Small Gains in the Copper Stocks.

Curb stocks moved irregularly yesterday and few issues closed at the high levels of the day. British Columbia sold up from 6⅞ to 7¼, closing after sales of 3,100 shares at 7. Chino, which reported transactions of 4,700 shares, sold from 20⅛ up to 20⅝ and closed at 19⅞, the low level of the day. Giroux and Greene-Cananea showed small gains at the close, which in each instance was the highest price of the day. Miami and Ray Central also made gains. Ray Consolidated closed ⅛ below the opening. One of the features of the trading was the activity on a rising scale of United Cigar Manufacturing, which, after opening at 62, rose to 67 and sold odd lots at 67½. Transactions of 1,070 shares were reported.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday business was quiet, but the tendency of the market was somewhat firmer. Copper was slightly higher in the asking price for all deliveries to December. Tin was strong but unsettled; spot advanced 1c, to 37c, with no offerings. Lead and spelter were unchanged. The closing bid and asked prices follow:

Standard Cop.	Monday. Bid.	Monday. Asked.	Friday. Bid.	Friday. Asked.
Spot	12.20	12.40	12.20	12.30
October	12.20	12.40	12.20	12.30
November	12.20	12.40	12.20	12.30
December	12.20	12.45	12.20	12.30
Lead	4.40	4.55	4.40	4.55
Spelter	5.50	5.60	5.50	5.60
Tin	37.00	..	36.00	37.00

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday the following table gives the range of prices of spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin. These are the closing prices, and compare with the final figures of Friday:

	Monday. £.	s.	d.	Friday. £.	s.	d.

The market ended strong. Spanish pig lead was steady and up 1s 3d, to £12 18s 9d. Spelter was steady at £23 17s 6d. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 49s 10½d. The range of prices on the spot delivery will be published later.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Shanghai Speculation.

Wall Street has been following with a great deal of interest the reports from Shanghai from time to time describing the financial disturbances at that point which have followed the speculation in rubber shares. Yesterday's advices were that two native banks had failed for 10,000,000 taels. In a private letter one of the officers of a very large company trading in the Orient throws some very interesting light upon the Shanghai situation, writing, of course, before the failures reported yesterday: "You have asked about the recent financial convulsion in Shanghai. It was nothing more nor less than the result of an insane speculation in rubber shares, the outbreak of the gambling spirit being more severe than in London even, as usually happens to outlying places. The list of plantations for which shares were being dealt in at Shanghai previous to the collapse would put to blush a Western mining list. When the bubble burst Shanghai found that there had been remitted elsewhere 18,000,000 taels, the losses of natives and foreigners, for which there was absolutely nothing left to show. So far as it affected commercial business it was centred on a native merchant of high standing and large operations. He took advantage of his connection with foreign merchants and native banks to float a large amount of bank orders payable in ten days, the only form of credit indulged in there, so the end was quick and sure. In his failure were involved several other native merchants and three native banks, the latter to an amount making necessary prompt action by the Government. That has been given effectively, and except for the adjustment of merchandise accounts the affair is regarded as settled, with the Shanghai community going on with a much reduced cash capital."

Corporation Tax Intricacies.

In connection with the collection of the corporation tax, which is now under review by the Supreme Court, a number of interesting questions have developed, one of these concerning the liability of building and loan associations under the law. The specific question of the liability of such companies has been raised in the case of Baltimore institutions, and Washington has advised the Baltimore Collector that their liability can be determined by the application of a test, which is thus set out in a communication to the Baltimore Collector: "It has been held that building and loan associations are not exempt if they loan money to others than their members, thus doing a business similar to that engaged in by banks or trust companies. It is also held that building and loan associations which receive sums of money on deposit which is not in payment of stock, and on which the depositor receives a fixed rate of interest regardless of the earnings of the association, are conducting a business similar to a banking business, and are therefore subject to the special excise tax on corporations and should be required to make a return showing their net income."

Bumper Corn Crop.

That the corn harvest this year will pass the 3,000,000,000-bushel mark for the first time in history seems to be assured by the estimate made by the Produce Exchange statistician yesterday from the Government figures. As was the case last year, the crop has gained rather than followed its usual deterioration since the Summer reports, and the average setback based on five years' records as allowed for in the Produce Exchange estimate has again proved a handicap rather than an aid to close guessing. The estimate is now 3,046,016,000 bushels, a jump from last month's figures of 2,943,341,000.

Steel Tonnage.

The figures of steel tonnage on the books of the Steel Corporation yesterday showed a shrinkage somewhat less than that reported on Sept. 10, but at the same time the total is so small as to be with one exception the lowest ever reported by the corporation, being only 128,670 above the low water mark reported at the end of the September quarter in 1904. The low tonnage was nothing of a surprise to the Street, for no secret has been made of the rapidity with which production has been overtaking orders in the absence of normal buying by the railroads. At this season of the year railroad orders, constituting as they do about one-third of the total steel business of the country, should be piling up a reserve of tonnage. Taking as a whole the three months in which steel tonnage has been reported in accordance with the resolution introduced by J. P. Morgan at the last quarterly meeting, the shrinkage for the quarter ended June 30, amounts to 1,099,688. This is less than the shrinkage between the June 30 report and that for the March quarter. The rate of production has in the meanwhile very materially decreased, and although the monthly tonnage figures give no real clue either to new business received during the month, or to rate of production, the smaller tonnage unfilled in the face of this curtailment of output means of course a corresponding shrinkage in new orders.

Profit in Automobiles.

Automobile men continue to insist that there is nothing wrong with the business, and explain that bargain prices mean really nothing to manufacturers, since they are fully made up in expense reductions. Close upon the financial troubles of the General Motors brought about by dissipation of cash in too ambitious extensions, and in the face of price reductions in cars which constitute a large part of the output, comes the news from Indianapolis that a manufacturer of automobiles in that city plans to double capacity in 1911, and has declared a 30 per cent. dividend for the season just closed, with an increase in the capitalization of from $100,000 to $800,000.

BUMPER CORN CROP SHOWN BY REPORTS

2,927,416,091 PAST RECORD

Other Crops Not Already Harvested Show Improvement Over September Figures as to Condition.

The feature of the October bulletin of the Crop Reporting Bureau of the Department of Agriculture in its confirmation of the improvement in the condition of corn since Sept. 1—an improvement already indicated by the returns from the various State agricultural officials in the corn belt and private advices. The conditions indicate the largest corn crop ever grown in this country, according to the estimate made yesterday by the Produce Exchange statistician, and this estimate takes account of the average deterioration for the last five years between the Sept. 1 report and the harvest.

The Produce Exchange figures out the crop at 3,046,016,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 2,772,376,000 bushels, while the bumper crop of 1906 was 2,927,416,091 bushels, which has since remained the record. Yesterday's estimate is 404,170,000 bushels greater than that made last month on the condition reported on Sept. 1.

Of the other crops referred to in the report which follows, and in which the harvest was not complete at the time of the last returns share in the improvement made by corn. Spring wheat, for instance, in regard to which preliminary harvest figures as of Sept. 1 indicated a yield of 10.7 bushels per acre now promises 11.8 bushels per acre, and the estimated yield has in consequence gone up from 211,239,000 bushels, the lowest in over a decade, to more than either in the season of 1908 or 1907 yielded. The total Spring wheat crop is now estimated at 233,475,000 bushels, and brings the total indicated wheat crop up to 691,769,000 bushels against 669,533,000 bushels estimated last month.

This estimated crop of 691,769,000 bushels is only 45,000,000 bushels under last year's crop of Winter and Spring wheat and is greater than the total wheat crops of either 1907 or 1908.

The oats crops has never been exceeded, the harvest of 1909 holding the record hitherto. The barley yield has been exceeded three times in the last decade, in 1909, 1908, and 1906. The record yield of this cereal is 178,916,484 bushels, harvested in 1906.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The October report of the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture, issued this afternoon, shows that the production of all wheat for 1910 was 691,769,000 bushels, compared with 737,189,000 bushels in 1909, the yield per acre being 14.2 bushels, compared with 15.8 in 1909 and 14.1 the ten-year average; the quality was 98.1 per cent.

The production of Spring wheat for 1910 was 233,475,000 bushels, compared with 290,823,000 bushels in 1909, the yield per acre being 11.8 bushels, compared with 15.8 in 1909, and 13.7 the ten-year average; the quality was 94.1 per cent., compared with 86.2 the ten-year average.

States.	Bushels.	Quality.
North Dakota	39,716,000	95
South Dakota	46,656,000	94

BID FOR STOCK YARDS STOCK

F. S. Mosely & Co., through their Boston office, were said yesterday to have issued a circular to the stockholders of the Chicago Junction Railways & Union Stock Yard Company offering them $160 a share for their stock, providing 16,500 shares of the stock were tendered through a Boston trust company within one month. At the New York office of the firm it was said that no knowledge of the offer had come there. According to rumor the packing interests were back of the offer.

The Chicago Junction Railways & Union Stock Yards Company has $6,500,000 of preferred stock upon which 6 per cent. is paid and an equal amount of common stock upon which 8 per cent. has been paid for years. The company was incorporated in New Jersey in 1890. Through subsidiary corporations it owns the Union Stock Yards at Chicago, owning more than 450 acres of land fitted to accommodate 75,000 head of cattle, 300,000 hogs, &c. The 46 miles of outer belt line formerly owned by the company was sold to the New York Central Lines in 1907 and the company received $2,500,000 in bonds in payment.

CLOTHIERS FAIL.

Receiver Appointed for Meyer & Simon, Who Own a Chain of Stores.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 10.—George B. Draper has been appointed receiver for Michael C. Simon, as an individual and as surviving partner in the wholesale clothing manufacturing firm of Ely Meyer and M. C. Simon, Rochester. Liabilities are estimated at $750,000 and assets at $500,000.

The appointment of a receiver followed the filing of a petition in involuntary bankruptcy by creditors in Buffalo on Saturday before Judge Hazel of the United States District Court. The firm owned and operated retail stores in Chicago, Minneapolis, Boston, Kansas City, and St. Paul, and holds the controlling stock in six incorporated stores in Los Angeles, Louisville, Indianapolis, Atlanta, Ga.; Evansville, Ind., and Birmingham, Ala.

Creditors will meet in this city on Oct. 25. The firm's affairs may be adjusted before the first creditors' meeting, thus allowing it to continue business. Its difficulties are attributed to a general depression in the retail trade of the country.

Houston & Texas Central First Mortgage Bonds.

Notice of Bonds Drawn for Payment

The Houston & Texas Central Railroad Company, having in its possession cash proceeds from sales of lands covered by Trust Indenture between Frederic P. Olcott, the Central Trust Company of New York, and the Southern Pacific Company, dated April 1, 1890, which are applicable to the purchase of the Houston & Texas Central Railroad Company's First Mortgage Bonds, secured by such indenture to an amount sufficient at the price limited in said Trust Indenture to purchase and retire 170 of such bonds, and, it having been found that such bonds cannot be purchased at or below 110 per centum of the par value thereof and accrued interest thereon, there have been drawn by lot, under the provisions of such Trust Indenture, Bonds secured thereby bearing the distinguishing numbers hereinafter stated, to be paid for out of such proceeds of such land sales at the said rate of 110 per centum of the par value thereof and accrued interest thereon.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Money was plentiful and discount rates were quiet to-day.

The Bank of England obtained half and India and the Continent divided the remainder of the $3,500,000 in South African gold available.

The stock market was quiet and irregular. The approach of the settlement checked business. Kaffirs and foreign bonds were easy on Paris selling through fears of trouble in Spain. Home rails and gilt-edged securities were steady.

American securities were quiet and featureless during the forenoon. The New York bank statement was disappointing, and traders hesitated until New York sent supporting orders. Then prices hardened, and the market closed steady.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills 3⅝ per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Prices moved irregularly and closed weak on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—Prices were rather firm on the Boerse to-day.

IN THE REAL ESTATE WORLD

Market Opens Strong, with Sale of Mercantile and Apartment House Property—Old Fifth Avenue Residences Going—Good Auction Prices—Big Deal of 525 Lots at Woodridge.

The realty market opened strong and steady yesterday and gave every promise of continuing so throughout the week.

In addition to the sale of several loft and apartment house properties, there was a rumor of a Park Avenue deal in the Seventies which could not be verified.

At the Vesey Street Salesroom there was a long and varied list of parcels offered under the hammer. The attendance was large and the bidding spirited among operators and speculators, which is looked upon as a very favorable market sign by brokers.

Syndicate Buys the Irving Building.

The growing demand for loft and office building property that has been very noticeable in the transactions of the past couple of weeks showed itself again yesterday in the purchase of the twelve-story Irving Building, at the southwest corner of Irving Place and Sixteenth Street, by a syndicate of New York business men.

The building, which was sold by the Kips Bay Realty Company, of which Benjamin Mordecai is President, has a frontage of 123.9 feet on Irving Place and 100 feet on Sixteenth Street. It was offered recently to a prospective buyer at $850,000.

William Kahn, who represents the purchasing syndicate, refused to divulge the names of the members at present, saying that they were prominent New York business men and that the building had been bought for investment.

Old Fifth Avenue Houses Going.

The fine old houses on the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, which a generation ago were among the high-class private residences on the avenue, are about to be torn down to make way for the eleven-story business structure to be erected by Mrs. A. A. Anderson for the firm of Bonwit, Teller & Co. The houses marked to go, and for which a demolition permit has just been issued by the Building Superintendent, include the residences at 417, 419, and 421 Fifth Avenue, and 2, 4, and 6 East Thirty-eighth Street. The entire plot, fronting 93.5 feet on the avenue and 175 feet on the street, was leased last Summer by Mrs. Anderson to Bonwit, Teller & Co. for a period of twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of nearly $4,000,000.

The lease carries a renewal privilege for another twenty-one years. The new building will cost about $800,000. The corner is right in the heart of the retail trade on Fifth Avenue, being a block north of the Tiffany store. The adjoining corner, on Thirty-seventh Street, owned by the Lewis estate, has been prepared for a business improvement, and negotiations now going on for the property will eventually lead to the erection there of another high-class commercial structure.

Buyers for West Side Dwellings.

Two sales of dwellings for occupancy on the upper west side, where there is a good demand for such property, were recorded yesterday.

B. House sold the five-story American-basement dwelling at 306 West 109th Street, on a plot 25 by 62 by 100.11, through Pease & Elliman, and the four-story and basement dwelling 52 West Ninety-sixth Street, on a lot 20 by 100.8, was sold for occupancy by Agnes Bassford.

Henry Corn Buys in Penn. Zone.

A deal of more than ordinary importance in the new Pennsylvania station section, and which marks the entrance into that locality of a prominent operator, is the purchase by Henry Corn from Louis Bernstein, through Arnold, Byrne & Baumann, of the property at 241, 243, and 245 West Thirty-seventh Street, near Eighth Avenue. This is Mr. Corn's first purchase in this district, and it is stated that the plot, 75 by 98.9, now occupied by old dwellings, will shortly be improved with a high-class twelve-story loft structure. Mr. Bernstein bought the property through the same brokers early in the year.

In part payment, Mr. Corn gave four five-story apartment houses in the Bronx at 1,008, 1,012, 1,016, and 1,020 Simpson Street, recently acquired by him in an exchange from the American Real Estate Company.

Investors Buy Heights Apartment.

Hirsch & Cohen have purchased the Golden Rod, a six-story elevator apartment, 75 by 96 by irregular, at 526 West 178th Street.

The Brown Realty Company, who is the seller, acquired the property early in September from the T. J. McGuire Construction Company.

Business Sale in Harlem.

The four-story and basement business building at 310 and 312 West 143d Street, between Eighth and Bradhurst Avenues, on plot 50 by 100, has been sold by the Duross Company for Michael J. Scanlon to a client for investment.

Bronx Purchase for Improvement.

Edward N. Crosby & Co. have sold for John Ryan two lots on the west side of Fox Street, commencing 164 feet south of 167th Street, and for W. I. Brown the adjoining lot, making a plot 75 by 100, to a builder, who will erect two five-story apartment houses.

Brooklyn Sales.

Gustav Baron has sold 1,507 Fifty-second Street, a two-family house, on a plot 40 by 100, to H. Moskowitz.

525 Woodridge Lots Sold.

A deal involving the transfer of 525 lots at Woodridge, N. J., has just been made by the Duross Company, which has sold the extensive plot acquired some time ago by the Great Eastern Realty Company, to a syndicate. The buyers, it is understood, are preparing plans for the immediate development of the property on high-class residential lines. The property is a short distance above Carlstadt, between that place and Hasbrouck Heights, which has been well developed in recent years. It is adjacent to the New York & New Jersey Railroad, and adjoins the 1,000-acre tract belonging to Frank Cooper. The sale is the largest that has been made recently in that section of New Jersey, and reflects the opinion of investors in the suburban activity looked for immediately after the opening of the Pennsylvania tubes to Jersey City.

Syndicate Buys L. I. Acreage.

The John Duryea property at Uniondale, L. I., consisting of about seventy acres, has been sold to a New York City syndicate for immediate development. The property is near the home of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. A. M. Onderdonk negotiated the sale.

Suburban Sales.

Daniel B. Slocum has purchased six building lots on Russel Avenue, Long Branch, from A. S. Lokerson. The buyer will break ground at once for six modern cottages.

Brewster & Lyons have sold to S. B. Molleson a plot of six lots at the northeast corner of Crocheron Avenue and Thirty-second Street, Broadway-Flushing, L. I.

The residence of W. G. Frost on Upper Mountain, Montclair, N. J., has been sold to I. A. Meekal. The price paid by the buyer is said to be about $75,000.

New Plant for Jersey City.

The International Oxygen Company of this city has prepared plans for a new plant to be erected at 796 to 808 Frelinghuysen Avenue, in the Waverley section of Jersey City, to cost about $12,000. The plant, which will comprise three separate structures, will be constructed of brick, one story high, and will include a generating building 36 by 145 feet in ground dimensions, laboratory building to measure 22 by 54 feet, and an oven shed 15 by 25 feet.

Good Prices for Throgs Neck Lots.

There was some lively bidding for the Throgs Neck property sold by Joseph P. Day at auction Saturday. Prices ranged for lots from $600 to $4,050 each.

Business Property at Auction.

Several good pieces of business property offered by Joseph P. Day drew a large attendance to the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday. There was some lively bidding for the large plot at 227 to 233 West Twenty-third Street, extending through to 220 to 226 West Twenty-fourth Street, 75 feet on each thoroughfare. Eight old four-story buildings are now on the property. It brought $200,000, being bought by Arthur Sutherland. The seven-story loft on a plot 79.4 by 92, at 143 to 149 West Nineteenth Street, went for $130,000 to H. M. Osmand. Louis Smyth bid $40,250 for the three-story building at 37 East Nineteenth Street. The eight-story building at 299 to 305 Water Street brought $40,000, T. Burt McGuire being the purchaser. William L. Rae paid $20,000 for the seventeen-acre tract owned by the Henderson estate at Long Branch.

$825,000 in Building Loans.

Two large building loans aggregating $825,000 were made yesterday by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company on west side apartments. The larger loan was for $500,000, to the Charter Construction Company on the property, 100.8 by 100, on the southeast corner of Eighty-eighth Street and Riverside Drive. The other loan, for $325,000, was given to the Sethlow Realty Company on the property on the north side of 121st Street, 175 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, 150 by 95.11, where a big apartment is to be erected.

Kingsbridge Lots at Auction.

The first large sale in the Kingsbridge section since the big auction in 1908 of Kingsbridge realty will be held to-day in the Vesey Street salesroom when Herbert A. Sherman will sell several of the Bailey estate plots situated on Bailey Avenue, Harlem River Terrace and West 192d Street, some of which have double frontage, running through to the New York & Putnam Railroad tracks. The property is to be sold in separate lots. It is within a short distance of two Broadway Subway stations and a surface line passes the Bailey Avenue plots. The sale is held by order of the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Receivers of Rents.

Justice Amend of the Supreme Court has appointed Moses Greenbaum receiver of the rents of a five-story tenement on the southwest corner of Union Avenue and 168th Street, on plot 41 by 91.10, pending a suit brought by Caroline Stern against the Annirен Realty Company and others to foreclose a mortgage of $38,000.

Henry Brady has been appointed receiver of the rents of 275 West 122d Street, a three-story private dwelling, in proceedings brought by Margaret J. Ellis to foreclose a mortgage of $8,000.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court, Part II., held in and for the County of New York at the County Court House, Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, on the 3d day of September, 1910. Present, Hon. John J. Brady, Justice.—In the matter of the application for dissolution of ANDREWS-MARSH MANUFACTURING CO., a Domestic Corporation.—Order.

On reading and filing the petition of George C. Andrews, Hamilton R. Marsh and Edward G. Ackermann, all of the City of New York, N. Y., a majority of the Directors of Andrews-Marsh Manufacturing Co., a coporation created under the general laws of this State, having its principal office located in the County of New York, and the schedule thereto annexed, duly verified by the petitioners on the 31st day of August, 1910, from which petition it appears that the case is one of those specified in Section 170 of the general corporation law; and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court from said petition that the said corporation is unable to meet its obligations; and its expenses of operating are in excess of its income; that it is unable to raise the necessary funds to continue to conduct its business, and that it is for the best interest of its creditors that it be dissolved and a receiver appointed to conserve its assets and administer its affairs until same can be disposed of advantageously.

And on motion of William H. Freedman, Esq., attorney for the petitioners,

Ordered, That all persons interested in said corporation show cause before this court at a Special Term, Part I., in the New York County Court House, City Hall Park, in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, on the 1st day of November, 1910, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why the said corporation should not be dissolved; and it is further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published at least once in each week for three successive weeks immediately preceding the said first day of November, 1910, in The New York Times and in The New York Law Journal, newspapers published in the County of New York.

Enter. J. J. B., J. S. C.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Showers have continued in the Gulf region and throughout Texas in connection with the disturbance centred in the west portion of the Gulf of Mexico; elsewhere east of the Rockies, clear weather has prevailed, but a rainstorm is gradually overspreading the Pacific States. Comparatively low temperatures have continued in eastern sections, while in the Far West temperatures have risen still further, the readings at some stations on the eastern slope of the Rockies being higher than ever previously recorded during the first of October. The following are some of the high temperatures observed: 90 degrees at Williston and Bismarck, N. D., Pierre and Huron, S. D., and Denver, Col.; 92 degrees at North Platte, Neb., and 96 at Valentine, Neb. Fair weather is promised for eastern and central sections.

The winds along the New England Coast will be diminishing northwest Tuesday, becoming variable Tuesday night and Wednesday; Middle Atlantic Coast, light variable; South Atlantic Coast, light northeast.

Steamers departing Tuesday for European ports will have moderate northwest winds with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair and warmer Tuesday; Wednesday, probably fair, with warmer in south portion; moderate, variable winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday; rising temperature; light, variable winds, shifting to south.

3 A. M.	60	53	4 P. M.	71	61
6 A. M.	58	51	6 P. M.	66	56
9 A. M.	63	54	9 P. M.	63	52
12 M.	70	58	11 P. M.	61	57

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 56; for the corresponding date last year it was 65; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 58.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 53; at 8 P. M. it was 54. Maximum temperature, 62 degrees at 3 P. M.; minimum, 51 degrees at 6 A. M. Humidity, 61 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 61 per cent. at 8 P. M.

RAID EMPTY HOUSE SEEKING CONVICTS

FUGITIVES LEAVE NO CLUE

Officials Now Think a Woman Was Instrumental in Planning Their Escape —May Be on Rockefeller Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 10.—For three days now this village has been on the tiptoe of excitement. Ever since the five convicts escaped from Sing Sing Prison, led by Big Bill Green, the belief has been growing that he and his companions are somewhere near here.

Innumerable rumors have been spread of what he is doing, and people are found ready even to quote the words in which he has told of his escape. The prison authorities and the police have been sent out on clue after clue, to find them all baseless, but this has in no way diminished the feeling that something may at any moment happen.

Green was the bad man of the village. He had a reputation for strength and daring when he was drunk which the police say was by no means justified, and he was a sort of hero among the hangers-on of saloons and the sporting element. Every one is convinced that if he is around he will make his presence felt by some startling deed of violence, and those whose business takes them from the brightly lighted streets to the dark avenues and the poorer districts, like "The Hollow," go after nightfall with a good deal of trepidation.

Warden Frost gave the village a real thrill this morning. It heard that he had been so certain that the five convicts were lying hid in an empty house in Strang Town, a settlement not far from here on the Albany Road, that he had surrounded the place early in the morning, and after a vigil of three hours, had raided it. The expedition was organized on the receipt of information from Chief of Police James W. Tompkins. A woman came to him yesterday afternoon and said that she had seen a strange man enter the house, and she believed that the convicts were there and would try to escape about 1 o'clock in the morning.

Chief Tompkins told Warden Frost and he collected sixteen of his guards and with the chief and one of the village policemen proceeded stealthily to Strang Town soon after midnight. They crept up to the house and surrounded it. They left not a place uncovered, and no one could slip through their cordon without being seen. They were armed with revolvers and billies, and were ordered to maintain silence.

One o'clock came and not a thing moved in the house. They stayed at their posts and only redoubled their vigilance. Nothing had happened by 2 o'clock, and at 2:30 Chief Tompkins became impatient. He crept up to Warden Frost and whispered to him.

Closed in on the House.

"We've got to face the music sooner or later, and it had better be sooner. It's very cold. If the fugitives are there, they certainly know we are here, and they will never try to break out through our lines."

So the Warden gave the word, and the cordon closed in on the house. The ground floor was occupied by a store, and it was easy to make an entrance through a window. The ground floor was searched thoroughly, and not a thing suspicious was found. Then the guards made a rush up the stairs and burst in the door of a room. There they found a man asleep on a sofa. They thought they had got Green at last, but when they awakened him they found it was only Tom Kearns, the son of the owner of the house.

Closely questioned by Warden Frost and Chief Tompkins, he declared that he hadn't heard or seen anything of Green and his comrades, and the Chief of Police declared last night that he was inclined to believe him.

Meanwhile some of the townspeople are sure that Green was seen prowling around his old haunts last night and tell tales, which the police cannot confirm, of how he has held up lonely milk drivers on the country roads, taken their money, and fitted himself out in their clothes. When others ask how Green, a strapping man above 6 feet in height, with shoulders broad in proportion, could ever hope to escape detection in all this neighborhood, and how he could be so insane as to risk capture, which will mean for him a sentence of at least ten or fifteen years for felonious assault and jail breaking, they reply:

"Yes, but he was heard to say he'd only be taken dead."

When this rumor was reported to Warden Frost he remarked, "Well, I'd much rather get him alive. Still, if he offers violence, I hope my guards will have the drop on him first."

Green had really been the terror of the village for a good man years. His father was the town constable in the old days when politics was exciting. Two Democratic factions were everlastingly at war and strong arm methods were found useful at the polls. Constable Green, it is reported, took his full part in these. All his children, however, have turned out to be reputable citizens, excepting "Big Bill," and him the police declare to be a thoroughly "bad man."

He was at one time a barkeeper in a saloon in "The Hollow,' and there it was common for Italians and other laborers to find themselves robbed of all their money on pay day and thrown into the street. They were afraid to complain to the police, and "Big Bill" swaggered round to the admiration of the half grown lads of the place. It is said that he stood particularly high in the good graces of the saloon keeper's wife, and it is more than suspected that it was she who engineered his escape from the prison.

Big Bill was a curious mixture. He is described by citizens and police alike as having been a most mild-mannered man when he was not in his cups. He was gallant with the women, and when he was around they felt safe from molestation by any other man. Many thought that the young man was misjudged and that there was no great harm in him, after all. But when he got a few drinks he became wild and reckless and those who crossed him were terrified at his rage.

But, according to Chief Tompkins, even these mad fits needed only a firm hand. Soon after the Chief came here, he said yesterday, he was informed that Big Bill was raising trouble on the main street. He came up on the run and found him standing in the middle of the road with a paving stone in each hand, threatening to hurl them through the window of a saloon where he had been displeased.

The Chief walked up to him. He dropped the stones at once and went along quietly. Half way to the station house he slipped from the Chief's grasp and ran. Tompkins went after him and Big Bill made for a barn. The door was shut, but he just jumped at the wall and butted a board out with his head. He made his way through and the Chief followed. He hit Green over the head with his billy and knocked him senseless. For this Big Bill received thirty days in White Plains Jail, which he was forced to spend entirely in the hospital nursing his head.

"After that," said the Chief this evening, "I never had any more trouble with him. When I wanted him I went after him, and he always came along quietly. That makes me think that there is not much real courage in the man. But there is a very yellow streak. He was the meanest kind of a thief I ever knew, and was always in trouble for petty larceny or robbery. He used to live in the Italian settlement and swell about there. He often came to me and told that if ever I wanted to get one of the Italians for anything he would help me. But I never took his offers."

Chief Tompkins does not believe the convicts are still in this neighborhood. He is positive that as soon as they scaled the prison railing they made their way along the railroad track to the boat house, and he thinks it probable that from there they crossed to New Jersey. Opposite this place lies a thinly populated region round Rockland Lake and Haverstraw. People are few, police hardly exist, and there are enough quarries in the district to make the presence of strangers on the high roads of no special remark. The Chief considers that in all probability the convicts are hiding or making their way across country in a westerly direction.

Warden Frost, however, is not convinced that they are so far away.

"What puzzles me," he said yesterday, "is the way in which these five men have dropped completely out of sight. It seems to me that Green must have arranged for the harboring of all of them near here."

The Warden admitted that, as far as he knew, the convicts were strangers to each other. They had not worked in the same company and did not come from the same place. The thick woods near here, nearly all of which belong to private estates, are held to be worth beating. It was rumored to-night that Buttermilk Mountain, on the Rockefeller property, is where the men are hiding. Footprints, it is said, have been noted in that direction, and it is believed that in some Italian shanty the five men may have taken shelter.

The White Plains police heard a rumor to-day that the wife of one of the convicts, who lives at Mount Kisco, had received this morning a letter from her husband asking for $200 and a suit of blue clothes. The letter, it was said, was delivered through a friend of the convict. The police are shadowing the messenger, and will follow him up if he is seen going along with anything that looks like a bundle of clothing. In the same way it is stated that Green has in Ossining $1,000 held in trust, and that he has been making efforts to get possession of this.

The State detectives and guards from the prison are still scouring the country and are running down every possible clue. They go well armed as they fully realize that the convicts are not likely to surrender themselves without a regular battle. The injury that they inflicted on the two keepers was too serious to be overlooked and they would have to face a much more severe penalty than a mere deprivation of part of their commutation period.

State Superintendent of Prisons Collins was at Sing Sing this afternoon. Warden Frost explained that he was here merely to attend the regular meeting of the Board of Parole. However, he took the opportunity to go over the dormitories with the Warden and inspected the means taken to safeguard them in their present congested condition. The Warden would not say what steps had been decided upon, but he declared that the Superintendent had suggested additional means for guarding the convicts both inside and outside the dormitories.

L. W. SWEET & CO. BANKRUPT.

Installment Jewelry House Has Debts of $96,000—Seeks a Settlement.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against L. W. Sweet & Co., (corporation,) installment jewelry dealers at 170 Broadway, by Walter T. Kohn, attorney for these creditors: Leo Kohn, $1,120; David Danaw, $208, and Julius Davison, $500. Judge Holt appointed Julius Henry Cohen receiver. The corporation has been endeavoring to make a settlement at 40 cents on the dollar, which was accepted by all but a few creditors.

The business was started in 1880 by Leonard W. Sweet and was incorporated on Feb. 28, 1903, with a capital stock of $20,000, which was increased to $100,000 in 1904. Mr. Sweet died on Feb. 21, 1909, but it is said he had practically no financial interest in the company for two years previously.

A meeting of creditors was held yesterday afternoon at the office of Oppenheimer & Arnold, attorneys for the company. Mr. Oppenheimer stated that on account of the bankruptcy proceedings the best offer he could make now is 25 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents cash and 15 cents in three notes at four, eight, and twelve months. He said that the liabilities are $96,000, of which $41,000 is secured, and the nominal assets are $125,000, in stock and installment leases, most of which have been pledged. He estimated that the unpledged stock would not realize more than $7,500. Nothing definite was decided upon, and the agreement at 25 cents will be sent to all creditors to try to get their signatures.

OFFICIALS AROUSED BY BOYER DETENTION

BYRNES AGENCY INVOLVED

Said to Have Been Acting for the American Bankers' Association, but Denies All.

The detention at Ellis Island of Etienne Boyer, the wealthy Parisian cement manufacturer; Ludovic Michel, his son-in-law, and Jean Rombaud, their friend, on their arrival Sunday on the Fabre line steamship Madonna, was partly cleared up yesterday by the official report of the investigation at Ellis Island, which was made public by Assistant Commissioner of Immigration Uhl. The reason for the detention, which was made on information given by a detective employed by the Byrnes-Sheridan Detective Agency, who acted for the American Bankers' Association, is still a mystery.

In spite of the record spread on the minutes of the Board of Special Inquiry, which heard the case Sunday at the immigration station, the detective agency denies absolutely that it had any part in ordering the Frenchmen detaitled. It is promised that there will be an investigation into the case in that office. In the meantime Assistant Commissioner of Immigration Uhl has heard of this denial, and he has ordered Inspector Harvey Snider, who sent the trio to Ellis Island, to furnish a detailed report.

At first indignant at being forced to leave the steamship and go to Ellis Island, M. Beyer and his companions are now inclined to regard the affair with amusement. They are inclined to think that an industrial rival is having them watched.

When a detective called the attention of Inspector Snider to the three men, and told him he was shadowing them, Snider did not care to take the risk of discharging them at the pier and so he passed it up to his superiors on Ellis Island. He did not accompany the three to the immigration station. Being detailed on another steamship he simply marked their cards "S. I."—meaning held for special inquiry—and sent the cards to the island with them.

This is what he indorsed on the back of the cards as his reason for detaining the voyagers:

> Detective G. A. Harkins, Sheridan Detective Agency, says he is shadowing them on account of American Bankers' Association.

The affidavits of the three Frenchmen are much the same. M. Beyer had $3,000 in money and a money order for 200,000 francs. He testified that he was going to New Orleans on business, but described himself as a tourist. His son-in-law merely testified that he accompanied him. M. Rombaud is in the sulphur refining business. After the hearing of the board, the officials could not get them landed fast enough.

Commissioner Uhl admitted that a mistake had been made in detaining the men. He said, however, that Inspector Snider could only be charged with lack of exercising good judgment, as he could not be blamed greatly for not wanting to assume the responsibility of landing three men whom detectives were trailing.

In spite of the official record connecting the name of Detective Harkins and the Bankers' Association with the case, Supt. R. C. Schnidler of the Byrnes-Sheridan Detective Agency declared that a mistake had been made in connecting their name with the case. He spoke also for the American Bankers' Association.

"I have been called up many times today in regard to this case," he said. "I don't care what the records are on Ellis Island, I insist that our agency had nothing to do with the hold-up of the three men who came here on the Madonna. We have no man in our employ named Harkins, and I do not know such a man. This case is a mystery to me. I cannot understand how our name came into it. I am going to begin an investigation and get at the bottom of this affair."

The detention of the Frenchmen is not regarded as extraordinary by the officials on Ellis Island. The object of the Immigration Department here is to prevent the landing of undesirable aliens, and they take heed to any complaint, anonymous communications, or hearsay testimony, believing that where such complaint is false a hearing will bring the facts out.

However, the proper course in this case, Mr. Uhl said, would have been for the detective agency having knowledge of the case to write to Commissioner Williams, stating the facts, giving the steamship on which the men were to arrive, and asking that they be held upon arrival. This would have been done. The officials say that the next detective agency wanting a men detained here will have to show cause.

The officials do not believe that Inspector Snider got either the name of the detective or the agency wrong as implied by the Superintendent of the agency.

While this difference of opinion is becoming somewhat heated the three Frenchmen are at their hotel still in the dark as to the real reason for their detention and enforced visit to Ellis Island.

COTTON FIRM FAILS.

Argo, Jester & Co. Have Few Debts That Are Unsecured.

The first failure which the Cotton Exchange has experienced in more than two years occurred yesterday when during the afternoon session the suspension of Argo, Jester & Co. of 82 Beaver Street was announced. The failure is said to involve less than $50,000 of secured indebtedness, and no more than $10,000 of unsecured liabilities. Because of the rule providing that the buyer of Cotton Exchange contracts may demand guarantee that a margin ranging up to $5 a bale on all contracts for future delivery be maintained, it was said on the Exchange yesterday, that none of the members would lose a dollar by the failure.

Argo, Jester & Co. are a new firm and have had offices in New York only since August, 1909. Walter G. Jester, the Exchange member, bought his seat on the board Feb. 6, 1909, and the firm started in business at that time in Augusta, Ga. Most of its clients were Southerners, and the failure was attributed by Mr. Jester yesterday to the bear operations of clients who failed to make good margins in the face of the rising market.

He explained that the firm had been obliged to keep up its guarantees on the demands of fellow-Exchange members for cotton sold, and that this drain of funds constantly renewed as the market rose had been too much for the partners in the face of tardy responses by customers to calls for margin. The firm did only a small business, and as its short position was well known, the holders of its contracts were alert to keep them protected. It was said to have contracts for 4,500 bales out as late as Saturday.

Besides Walter G. Jester, the Exchange member, the partners are George R. Argo and three special partners, J. L. O'Dowd, W. H. O'Dowd, and F. H. Barrett.

RAINCOATS

Copyright Hart Schaffner & Marx

OUR title is hardly correct, for these are really rain-proof Fall Overcoats—and mighty smart Overcoats, too. As to Quality,—each one bears the label, Hart, Schaffner & Marx,—the best possible guarantee of Quality and of real dollar-for-dollar and perhaps a bit more kind of Value. Some English model "Slip-ons" among them,—dashing, snappy styles—styles you young men will like.

Raincoats, $18 to $35. Suits, $18 to $50. Overcoats, $15 to $65

Special
Some of last season's Raincoats,—came to us, in fact, just as the last selling season was closing. Regularly sold at $20, $22.50, $25, and $28.
Now Special at $16.50

TO MEN WHO KNOW

The English Idea in Clothes
$25, $30 and $35.

Shoulders without padding, fronts without stiffening—this is the English tailoring idea—enabling the garment to hang gracefully and naturally.

Clothes made on these lines have to be tailored into form, not upholstered—as ordinary ready-made garments are.

IF YOU CANNOT SEE ALL THE PLAYS, THEN SEE THE BEST—AND "REBECCA" IS ONE OF THE VERY BEST. NOTHING FINER OR TRUER HAS EVER BEEN PRESENTED ON THE STAGE—VERITABLE PAGES FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE—FULL OF SUNSHINE AND GLADNESS.
Speaking of physicians, Miranda Sawyer says in the play:
"The doctors have got more patients in graveyards than out of 'em. Still I ain't going to pay 75 cents for advice an' not take it."
